GANDHI REVIVES HOPES OF INDIA FOR LIBERATION

Wins First Victory in Caste War.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

POONA, India, Sept. 28.—The end of Mahatma Gandhi's politico-religious "fast unto death" on the sixth day brings new hope for the peaceful evolution of a national India.

Outside of the political results, which affect the destinies of millions, the first step has been taken towards the great objective—destruction of the ancient caste walls of the Hindus.

Both national citizenship and the end of untouchability seem remote in this land of dazzling contrasts and humiliations, but Gandhi and his followers believe that he is in intimate touch with the will of God and trust in a certain realization of this plane of life. Politics and religion are impossible to divide here.

Gandhi Like Honored Guest.

The scene at Yeravda jail, four miles out on a country road, makes a most absorbing picture drama. Gandhi is more like an honored guest in an English country house than a prisoner.

With most astonishing freedom, white robed Gandhites come and go through the big gate. They arrive in shoals, speak a word at the door and the gates are flung open. They walk past the common yard where prisoners of less importance are clanking about in leg irons, bearing heavy burdens. Visitors go up a little stair, through a special gate, and enter a haven of rest and beauty.

Gandhi is in a special compound, open only to the blue sky where ragged buzzards wheel. There is a row of private cells on one side, tables and chairs are scattered about the little yard where, under a green tree with low, thick leaves that almost brush his head, sits the little spectacled saint of India's millions, whose breath is important to London, Bombay and New Delhi.

Poet at Holy Man's Side.

Today India's grand old man, the patriarchal Rabindranath Tagore, poet, who has become a politician and religious reformer in the common cause with Gandhi against the satanic caste system and untouchability, sits also under the tree.

There Monday, when Gandhi broke his fast, Tagore chanted a song from the Gitanjali and prayed. His long white curly hair, his long curly beard, his robe of white and blue reaching to his feet, a garland of flowers around his neck and his brown eyes express deep love for all the world.

Gandhi's figure is a contrast. He reclines on a white iron cot, a comfortable mattress and pillows under his back, glasses of water and fruit juice on the table beside him, and a little unfinished weaving by his side. Flowers are banked around the trees and the air is fragrant. The troublesome world fades away in the presence of these men, who are unbewildered and with the simplicity of children believe that God talks to them.

Gandhi's a Shrewd Politician.

Gandhi, in addition, is a politician deep and shrewd who has a mind far in advance of common thought. Where he seemed to touch a trivial point at the beginning of his fast over electoral seats it develops into a move of world-wide importance.

Those who come to worship here include women with flowers, children from school, men of all classes, even Europeans who have adopted the native sari dress (a formless white robe) and sandals to look on this frail little frame as holding the spirit of a modern Christ or Buddha.

Certainly there is as much potential sainthood here as in the late Nicolai Lenin (revered by the soviets). Gandhi's intention to die unless his way is granted is not doubted anywhere.

A Glimpse of Kipling's India.

There is a sound of martial music down the road. Soon comes the tramp of many feet and a military band breaks into a smart tune as they march by the prison. This is a glimpse of Kipling's India, for the King's Own Scotch border troops are on their way to camp.

They pass a group of proud Indian gentlemen with brown turbans, smart riding clothes and fine horses. There is one special dignitary with fierce black mustaches.

NEW YORK GAINS LEAD OVER CUBS BY 12-6 VICTORY

Gomez to Pitch in Second Game.

The second game of the world series will be played at the Yankee stadium today starting at 12:30 o'clock (Chicago time). Lon Warneke will pitch for Chicago and Vernon Gomez for New York. The forecast is for fair and cooler weather.

The White Sox yesterday announced the purchase of Outfielders Al Simmons and Mule Haas and Third Baseman Jimmy Dykes from the Philadelphia Athletics.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

New York, Sept. 28.—All the luster the Cubs built up around themselves in the National league race was erased today. The Yanks, true to custom, tore the Chicago club apart, gave it a lesson in baseball, and captured the world series opener, 12 to 6, before 41,000, a crowd which didn't begin to fill the stadium.

No deftness of play was involved in this decision, the first of four needed to consign the so called world title to a definite place. The Yanks simply hit when hits were needed and the Cubs didn't. The Cub pitching, in which the gallant Guy Bush, the venerable Burleigh Grimes, and Bob Smith figured, was almost a series record breaker for its lack of quality. The same Cubs who tore through their own league by sheer courage were plainly panic stricken before the finish.

Warneke vs. Gomez Today.

If a new complexion is to be given the event, the 23 year old Lon Warneke will have to apply it tomorrow when he is put face to face with Vernon Gomez, the Yanks' great left hander, in the second of the series.

The battle was brilliant as befits a world series fight only for the first three innings. The Cubs burst forth unexpectedly in the first inning with a pair of runs off Charley Ruffing. Babe Ruth's old age fielding helped in the incident which startled some of the confident Yankee partisans. And the two runs grew in size as Bush, bearing down on every pitch, kept the American leaguers off the bases until the fourth. Then Ruth and his mighty pal, Lou Gehrig, broke loose. Bush pitched himself down in his eagerness to give all he had while he had it.

Gehrig Hits Home Run.

It was Gehrig who brought forth the turning point in the fourth. Bush had just given his first pass and Ruth had produced the first single, the first Yank run resulting. And then Gehrig hit one. It was found somewhere out in the right field bleachers. It put the Yanks out in front, 3 to 2, but it was only their first nibble. They were up and going again in the sixth when, with the help of Bush's wildness, due to his being tired, five men went clattering across the plate before Grimes could subdue the riot.

It must have reminded Joe McCarthy, the Yankee manager, of how twice that many Athletics went home in one inning in the 1929 world series when he was trying to lead the Cubs into the big end of the series loot. But Joe was kind enough not to come out to the coaching lines this afternoon to parade his satisfaction before the crestfallen Chicagoans.

Only Three Hits Off Bush.

The one thing Bush did well in his five and one-third innings of work was to keep down the total of Yank hits, but it didn't mean anything. They gathered three runs on the only two safe drives they delivered in five innings. In the sixth they produced only one off him before he was given an overdue summons to retire. Along with that lone hit in this inning he handed over four passes, three of them to the first three men. That left a legacy for Grimes of one out, three men home and three on bases. Before he ended the assault two more scored on a single.

Cold figures are the best proof of just how little the Cub pitching meant to the American leaguers. Bush, in his short stay after he had pitched three perfect innings, surrendered three hits and five bases on balls. Grimes was in there only for one and

BOMB DAMAGES DANCE HALL IN NORTH RIVERSIDE

A dynamite bomb thrown from a speeding automobile into the lobby of Melody Mills, a taxi dance hall and sports emporium at 2400 Des Plaines avenue, North Riverside, early today damaged the building and blew out windows in the North Riverside village hall across the street.

According to Chief of Police Otto Martinek of North Riverside, Melody Mills has been operated by Anton Beschleba. Martinek said that owners of rival dance halls in that vicinity, jealous of the business done by Melody Mills, probably were responsible for the bombing. No one was in the hall at the time of the attack. Damage was estimated at from $1,500 to $2,000.

On Dec. 8, 1930, fire of incendiary origin destroyed the dance hall a few nights after it had been completed and opened. The owner was unable to ascribe a motive. The hall was later rebuilt.

Sergt. James Doherty and his squad from Maxwell street station prevented the bombing of a bakery at 657 West 13th street early this morning. After an exchange of shots the bombers fled in their auto. When sighted by the squad the bombers were crouching in the doorway of the bakery attempting to light the fuse of a bomb. They picked up the bomb and fled as the police approached.

Roosevelt and Norris Swap Trade Lasts

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

En route with Roosevelt, McCook, Neb., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt journeyed today to this home town of the insurgent Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, to greet him face to face, and to praise him.

The Democratic presidential nominee has been offered the political support of the radical Republican senator and tonight Mr. Roosevelt said he welcomed this support, and he added: "Senator Norris, I honor myself in honoring you." The New York governor, speeding eastward on the return course of his figure 8 trip through the west and middle west, condemned tonight a party regularity which stands above the rights and privileges of the citizenry at large. Protesting against branding Senator Norris a party traitor, Gov. Roosevelt declared that the selfish interests which fatten on "party regularity" are the real betrayers of party.

Small City, Big Crowd.

The governor spoke at the county fair grounds outside of McCook, before a gathering of mostly farmers, some of them from the nearby states of Kansas and Colorado.

Fully 25,000 persons packed the grand stand and swarmed over acres of ground surrounding the speakers' stand. They cheered without reserve both the Republican Norris and the Democratic Roosevelt. Some idea of the temper of the turnout, organized for no other purpose than to greet Gov. Roosevelt, may be gained from the fact that the town of McCook has a population of only 6,600, the remaining thousands being drawn from many, many miles around.

After eulogizing Senator Norris as a great statesman, possessing integrity, unselfishness, courage, and consistency, Gov. Roosevelt said that the senator stood forth "as the very perfect, gentle knight of American progressive ideals."

The senator's fight has been unselfish, the governor said—a fight "directed to the fact that it is the little fellow who has the fewest friends in high places, and that too often it is the little fellow who has been forgotten by his government."

Hits G. O. P. Leadership.

The governor stated the Republican leadership—not the "millions of splendid men and women who in the past have called themselves Republicans"

MUCH ARRESTED MR. BAUMBAUGH IS "IN" AGAIN

Sergts. Al Jenner and Al Hahn of the detective bureau called on Thomas Joyce Baumbaugh in his home at 2306 West 50th place last night and read a warrant charging burglary. When the detectives finished reading Baumbaugh inquired the name of the complainant. He was told it was Bertha Edsterand.

"That's what I thought," said Baumbaugh. "She's my wife. We separated some time ago. This is the fourteenth time she's had me arrested in six weeks, and on charges of stealing my own life insurance policy. She gets these warrants without any trouble. All she does is to blink her eyes; the tears come and the judges are fooled.

"I'm getting tired of hopping in and out of patrol wagons. In six weeks I've appeared five times in the Court of Domestic Relations, three times in the Fillmore street court, four times in the Stockyards court, and twice in the Wabash avenue court."

Sergts. Jenner and Hahn took the much arrested Mr. Baumbaugh to the lockup and told him that by way of variety he'd appear in the Felony court today.

Explosion and Fire Wreck Home; 1 Dead

An explosion and fire which destroyed a one story frame home at 4116 South Francisco avenue early today, caused the death of Albert Lipske, 45 years old, a roomer. Chief John Kline of the 21st battalion, who investigated the blaze, said that two five gallon cans of cleaning fluid stored in the basement had become opened so that the fumes filled the house. He said he believed the explosion occurred when Kline struck a match to light a cigaret. The owner of the house, Andrew Casper, and his wife, Emily, are away on a visit.

Hail Pelts Los Angeles; First Moisture Since May

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—A hailstorm pelted Los Angeles, covering streets in the downtown area with a coat of white and sending pedestrians and motorists to shelter. It was the first precipitation since a shower last May. A number of auto collisions took place when the downpour obscured visibility and made streets slippery.

Churchill Reported Much Better; Ill of Paratyphoid

LONDON, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Winston Churchill, British statesman, who was taken to a hospital yesterday when he became seriously ill, was reported by physicians today to be very much better. He had suffered a relapse from an attack of paratyphoid.

Racketeer Is Found Slain in Automobile

Iron Barger, 37 years old, once tried as the go-between in the first Evergreen Park mail robbery, was found shot to death in an automobile at 48th place and Albany avenue early this morning. He had been shot in the head and in the back.

Police immediately began combing his underworld connections for a motive. Barger was known to police as an automobile and merchandise thief and, according to Lieut. Ollie Hoffman, as an all around racketeer mixing in booze and other dealings. Barger was suspected in several hijacking expeditions and at the time of his murder was being sought by Lieut. James Kerr.

Hunt Booze War Clew.

"We'll probably find that Barger messed too much in the booze racket," said Lieut. Hoffman.

Barger's murder was discovered at 1:20 o'clock this morning by William Hampstead, a watchman for the Central Watch Service. Hampstead, while making his rounds, noticed an automobile standing in 48th place. During an earlier inspection the street had been clear. He investigated and found the body slumped in the back seat.

Sergt. Frank Donohue of the coroner's office examined the body. He said that Barger had been slain elsewhere and dragged to the automobile. The killers then drove the car and their victim to the southwest side and abandoned both. Identification of the victim was established by fingerprints. In the pocket of the car was found a booklet of the Business Stimulators of America, an advertising solicitors' outfit.

Always Escaped Conviction.

Although known for years to police and arrested many times, Barger had always escaped conviction. In 1926 he was tried before Federal Judge Wilkerson for the first Evergreen Park mail robbery in which $135,000 was stolen. Francis Keating and Thomas Holden were codefendants. Barger was acquitted. They were convicted and given 25 years. In 1928 they escaped from Leavenworth prison, but were recaptured last July. Police said they might investigate the possibility of a slaying motive in that connection.

In 1928 Barger was arrested as a suspect in the theft of the automobile of Thurlow G. Essington, once a Republican candidate for governor of Illinois. Since then he had not come into public notice.

WORK ON TRAFFIC CONTROL LIGHTS FOR MICHIGAN AV.

Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park commissioners, announced yesterday that engineers for the south and Lincoln park boards and the city are working on plans for a new system of traffic control lights from 12th street to Oak street. The engineers will report within a few days.

The south park board at its meeting last week approved the principle of the progressive lighting system, which, if installed, will permit a motorist to drive at a uniform speed without a stop for the two and a half mile stretch on the boulevard.

According to early estimates, the cost for the project would be approximately $20,000. The south park board will bear the expense from 12th street to Randolph street, the city from Randolph street to the north side of the Michigan avenue bridge, and the Lincoln park board from the bridge to Oak street.

Library and Sanitarium Tax Levies Cut $1,272,000

Ordinances reducing the 1931 tax levies of the public library and the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium by a total of $1,272,000 were approved by the city council yesterday. The sanitarium reduced its levy from $2,737,000 to $2,200,000 and the library cut its levy from $2,170,000 to $1,800,000, besides abandoning a levy for building sites amounting to $365,000.

Blames M. J. Insull for Abstraction.

Marshall E. Sampsell, ousted executive of the Insull utilities system, told State's Attorney Swanson yesterday of a second loan which he contracted while president of the Central Illinois Public Service company. He placed full responsibility for this dipping into the securities of Middle West subsidiaries upon Martin J. Insull, who so far as he knew had no authorization for it from any board of directors.

Discovery of the first loan, involving his withdrawal of $400,000 in preferred stock of his company from the company vaults to meet a personal bank obligation, forced his resignation some time ago as president of the company. The state's attorney declined to say what significance the second loan might have.

Stock Up for Loan.

Explaining the second transaction, Mr. Sampsell said that in November, 1931, he owed $500,000 or $600,000 at two Chicago banks, secured by 40,000 shares of the common stock of the Middle West Utilities company, of which Martin Insull was then president. During that month the 40,000 shares of Middle West had an approximate market value of $400,000. The banks, Mr. Sampsell said, insisted on more collateral.

Unable to meet the demand and facing the prospect of being sold out, Mr. Sampsell said he took his problem to Martin Insull. He and Mr. Insull agreed, Mr. Sampsell said, that to dump 40,000 shares of Middle West upon the market at that time would demoralize the standing of all Insull issues.

Uses Other Stock.

Whereupon, according to Mr. Sampsell, Martin Insull abstracted from the portfolio of the Middle West company 9,000 shares of stock of a subsidiary, Central and Southwest Public Service company, the market value of which was then approximately $90,000. Martin Insull gave the shares to Mr. Sampsell, who said he pledged them at the bank. And that was the end of them.

So far as he knows, Mr. Insull's action was without authorization of the Middle West board of directors, Mr. Sampsell said. He surmised that Martin Insull had conferred on the matter with Samuel Insull, then chairman of the board of Middle West, and with Samuel Insull Jr., vice chairman, but could not be certain, he added. Martin Insull is now in a village in Canada; Samuel Sr. is in Paris, and Samuel Jr. en route to France.

Cover Stock Margin.

The receivers for Middle West discovered the first stock loan made by Mr. Sampsell soon after taking charge of the affairs of the company in April. This loan involved a transfer of $400,000 in preferred stock from the vaults of the Central Public Service company, which Mr. Sampsell headed, to cover depleted margin in one of his stock accounts. The receivers demanded immediate repayment of this loan and when Mr. Sampsell was unable to comply removed him from office and filed a claim with the security company holding his bond.

Questioned for 5½ Hours.

Mr. Sampsell spent five and a half hours with Mr. Swanson as the state's attorney and members of his investigating staff sought to penetrate the maze of loans preceding the 2 billion dollar crash of the Insull holding and investment companies.

Emerging shortly before 6 p. m., Mr. Sampsell appeared worn and haggard. He is reported to have suffered a nervous breakdown following the Insull blowup and after his wife committed suicide at their Highland Park home. That was on June 28.

Recently Mr. Sampsell closed his home in Highland Park and with his three sons moved to an apartment in Chicago.

Witness Arrives Promptly.

Mr. Sampsell was prompt to arrive at the Criminal courts building at 10:30 a. m. and the examination went forward without respite until 1 p. m., with Assistant State's Attorneys Charles A. Bellows, John O'Hora, Voyle Johnson, and John Hampton participating.

Because of Mr. Sampsell's nervous condition there was a recess until 4 p. m., when the examination was resumed. At 6 o'clock Mr. Swanson disclosed the results of the examination and dismissed Mr. Sampsell with the remark that his office was "finished with him for the present."

Prior to the afternoon session Assistant Prosecutor Hampton returned from New York to disclose the plight of an unnamed eastern independent utility operator, who sold out to the Insull interests in 1930 and thereby lost 5 million dollars. Mr. Hampton was in New York investigating the affairs of the bankrupt National Electric Power company, 600 million dollar eastern unit of the Insull system.

"I pledged my word not to reveal the man's name," said Mr. Hampton, "but I can state the circumstances. The Insulls offered him 10 million dollars for his controlling stock in a certain electric company. He accepted the offer and got 5 million dollars cash. For the balance he took a 5 million dollar unsecured note. The note, of course, is worthless, and the man is so enraged that he is having an independent audit made of National Electric Power in a hunt for evidence of criminality."

Mr. Hampton found no evidence in New York which might be brought within jurisdiction of the Cook county grand jury, he said. A visit to the offices of National Electric Power at 57 West Williams street, just off Wall street, revealed that the Insulls had a "Hollywood" style of furnishing their eastern headquarters, he said.

Find Secret Panels.

"The offices of Harry Reid, the president, and C. B. Ziegler, vice president, were furnished in motion picture style," Mr. Hampton said. "Hidden lights cast a subdued glow over the modernistic furnishings. Push buttons opened secret panels in the walls, admitting to the directors' room. It was dazzling and very fancy."

Wall street financiers held the Insulls in small regard as utility operators, Mr. Hampton said he learned. He conferred with Alfred H. McCausland and H. J. Dowd, officers of the Irving Trust company, receiver for National Electric Power. He said he found the company's affairs in "muddled shape."

P. J. McEnroe and John F. O'Keefe, vice president and treasurer, respectively, of the two bankrupt Insull investment trusts, the Corporation Securities company, and Insull Utility Investments, reported at the Criminal court yesterday for questioning by the state's attorney, but were dismissed until Saturday. They explained that they wished to employ the afternoon gathering records of both concerns for presentation in federal court today, where a hunt will begin for assets in bankruptcy proceedings before Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley.

'BOY, 16, BOASTS OF HOLDUP AFTER TWO ARE SLAIN

The prisoner is John Haas, arrested in his home at 544 West 53d street. Bragging about his toughness, he declared he had been shot in the mouth during the fray but had "spit the bullet out." As a result of his confession, he may face the electric chair on a charge of participating in the murder of Walsh.

Detective Kenney and Walsh were held up at 85th street and Racine avenue when their automobile stalled. Kenney shot it out with the five bandits, killing Albert Schwartz, 17 years old, and severely wounding William "Bull" O'Brien, another holdup man, who was captured.

Hangs Himself Because of Financial Losses

Despondent because his savings of many years had been wiped out by the falling of security prices, Ivar Rowaldt, 54 years old, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself on a rear porch at his home, 3500 West 64th place. Rowaldt's widow told the coroner's jury which returned the verdict of suicide that he had once been a banker in Germany.

WOMAN IS SUICIDE.

A verdict of suicide while temporarily insane was returned yesterday at the inquest into the death of Mrs. Josephine Pradsik, 38 years old, who shot and killed herself on Tuesday in her home at 1109 North Hermitage avenue.

U. S. GRAND JURY TO SCAN HALSEY, STUART DEALS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—A United States grand jury here will be asked tomorrow to decide whether fraud was involved in the state sale of bonds by Halsey, Stuart & Co., national dealers in investment securities, with branch offices in Milwaukee.

Forest A. Harness, Washington, D. C., special assistant attorney general, and E. J. Armbruster, special representative of the United States bureau of investigation, arrived here today. They are prepared to present to the federal grand jury the history of the sale of bonds on Wardman properties in Washington totaling about 13 million dollars and to seek indictments of the officials of the company on a charge of misuse of the mails.

Large Sale in Wisconsin.

The grand jury, which was ordered to convene by Federal Judge Ferdinand A. Geiger, will begin its hearings tomorrow. The sale of the Wardman bonds was general over the entire country, Mr. Harness said, but Milwaukee was chosen as the site for the grand jury presentation because of the number of sales in this state. It was said sales in Milwaukee and Wisconsin totaled between $100,000 and $200,000. Wisconsin purchasers of the bonds, it was expected, will also be called as witnesses.

Mr. Harness said there were 13 or 14 large Washington properties involved in the financing—hotels, apartments, and office buildings. The Wardman Construction company, a Maryland corporation located in Washington, issued debenture bonds amounting to about $2,500,000, and the Wardman Real Estate Properties, Inc., a subsidiary of the construction company, issued bonds totaling about 11 million dollars. These were sold through Halsey, Stuart & Co. by mail and by personal presentations.

Sold During 1928-'30.

The sales were made throughout 1928, 1929, and 1930. The bonds have been in default since 1931, Mr. Harness said. H. L. Stuart is president of Halsey, Stuart & Co. and in charge of the office in Chicago. C. B. Stuart, brother of the president, is in charge of the New York office. The Milwaukee office, which is located in the First Wisconsin National Bank building, 735 North Water street, is in charge of Otis B. Adams as manager. The company also has offices in Philadelphia, Detroit, Boston, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, and Minneapolis.

PLANE FLIES LOW AT LAKE FOREST; COMPLAIN TO U. S.

Mrs. John T. Pirie, 930 Rosemary road, Lake Forest, yesterday telephoned Lake Forest police that an airplane, bearing the number NC477K was flying low over the roof of her residence. A member of the faculty of Lake Forest university, who did not give his name, made the same complaint and furnished the same number.

Chief Frank Tiffany after learning that the plane was owned by the Curtiss Wright Flying company, filed a written complaint with the department of commerce against the plane flying at low altitudes.

Residents of North Chicago have also complained to police about planes flying low over the town during the last few weeks. The planes sometimes just miss striking the chimneys of residences, the police were informed.

Three British Cabinet Ministers Resign; Assail Tariffs as "Menace to Empire"

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 28.—Three new cabinet appointments were announced tonight following the resignation this morning of three ministers. They quit as a protest against the tariff issues involved in the agreements signed by the British delegates to the recent imperial conference in Ottawa.

The ministers who resigned are Viscount Snowden, lord privy seal and former Labor party leader, and two Liberals, Sir Herbert Samuel, home secretary, and Sir Archibald Sinclair, secretary of state for Scotland.

Eight Junior Officials Quit.

Eight junior ministerial officials, all of them members of the Samuel free trade faction of the Liberal party, also resigned. They are Isaac Foot, secretary to the mines department; Sir Robert Hamilton, undersecretary for colonies; the marquess of Lothian, undersecretary for India; H. Graham White, assistant postmaster general; Sir Murdock Mackenzie Wood and Harcourt Johnstone, assistant whips; Walter Rea, controller of his majesty's household, and Lord Allendale, lord in waiting.

The new appointments announced tonight follow:

Snowden's Successor Unnamed.

Sir Godfrey Collins, Liberal Nationalist, who succeeds Sinclair as secretary of state for Scotland.

Viscount Snowden's successor as lord privy seal has not yet been named. The eight junior posts are also yet to be filled.

Two other leading Liberals, Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, and Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, remained in the cabinet. Thus with the new additions the cabinet now is made up of 13 Conservatives, three Liberals of the faction headed by Simon, and three nominal members of the Labor party—Prime Minister MacDonald, J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, and Lord Sankey, the lord chancellor.

Viscount Snowden in resigning broke 40 years of close comradeship in the labor movement with MacDonald. It is not expected that their personal friendship will be broken by Snowden quitting.

Attack Ottawa Agreements.

In their letters of resignation to MacDonald the retiring ministers made it clear that their chief differences with the national government concern the Ottawa agreements, upon which they made a scorching attack. They will oppose all legislation to put the Ottawa agreements into effect, but will give the government active support in other directions, notably regarding the Indian policy.

The Liberal ministers in a joint letter said they regard the Ottawa agreement as "a danger to the best interests of the empire, a derogation from the powers of parliament, a barrier to removing restrictions on the world's trade, a burden upon the British people and as a probable cause of increased unemployment and social unrest. In our view, the whole policy of 'hard bargaining' on trade matters between different parts of the empire is entirely wrong."

Fear Russian Trade Perilled.

The letter also states that "a condition imposed on our delegates in the last stages of the Ottawa conference will require hat immediate notice shall be given to terminate our present trade agreement wtih Russia."

Viscount Snowden's letter is couched in uncompromising language. It declared that the policy the government is pursuing will prove disastrous and that the protectionist section of the government is determined to use the premier "as an instrument for carrying through the Tory policy." Bitterly attacking the Ottawa decisions, Snowden said:

"The British delegation has come back after weeks of acrimonious disputes and sordid struggles with vested interests with agreements which have surrendered our fiscal autonomy and handed over to the dominions control of the British trade policy, reducing this country below the status of a dominion."

MacDonald to Carry on.

Prime Minister MacDonald is determined to carry on and maintain the work of the national government. This was made clear in a statement which he issued tonight. It presented the views of himself and his national labor colleagues, Lord Sankey and Thomas.

MacDonald said that when the national government was formed a year ago, when Britain faced a financial crisis, "we put our hands to a very big job. The work is not finished and cannot be finished until, one way or aonther, there is a reparations and debt settlement and the world economic conference is held. We will go on until these things are done."

A statement also was issued tonight by three leading Liberal peers, Lord Crewe, Lord Reading, and Viscount Grey of Fallodon, expressing full agreement with the course taken by the Liberal ministers in their decision not to continue in the government. They urged however, the necessity of national support for the government on Indian, European, and international affairs generally.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SALONIKI, Greece, Sept. 28.—The death toll from the series of earthquakes that have ravished the peninsula of Chalcidice during the last two days mounted to 338 today, according to the latest figures available here. The villages of Ierissos, Nea Rhoda, Stratonion, Yomatia and Stayira were among the 23 wholly destroyed and many others were partly ruined. A new element was added to the situation when the river, which had been diverted from its course, inundated Ierissos and Tari.

The governor general of Macedonia and the ministers of public instruction and public health and a corps of doctors with first aid equipment has sped to the area in the destroyer Pergamus.

Many historic monuments of Byzantine civilization were demolished by the quakes.

British Economist Visions Canada Absorbed by U. S.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—(AP)—John Ford Darling, noted economist and director of the Midland bank, said today in a review of the imperial conference at Ottawa that economic "attraction" may lead ultimately to the absorption of Canada by the United States. He cited geographical reasons and added that the fact which most deeply impressed him at Ottawa was that "Canada has to pay the United States 150 million dollars a year interest."

LOTTERY PLANS REPUDIATED BY MOOSE COUNCIL

Officials of Lodge Aid Davis Defense.

New York, Sept. 28.—[Special.]—The contract under which the Moose charity balls were promoted, which obligated the propagation department of the order to pay out many thousands of dollars, was repudiated by three members of the Moose supreme council in federal court today to support the claim of Senator James J. Davis, on trial for a lottery law violation, that he knew nothing of the lottery aspect of the affairs.

Under the contract, which was entered between Theodore G. Miller, head of the propagation department which arranged the charity balls, and Bernard C. McGuire, a professional promoter, more than 1¼ million dollars was handled in 1931. The contract bound the propagation department to pay to McGuire one-third of the profit of the charity ball and cash prize drawing proceeds, which in that year were about $100,000.

Deny Having Seen Contract.

In it Miller stated expressly that he was signing it with the approval and knowledge of the supreme council and of "Director General James J. Davis of the Loyal Order of Moose of the World." The testimony of three members of the supreme council, who denied it had ever come before that body, was taken as an indication that Mr. Davis would also take the witness stand to deny that Miller had any authority from him to enter into such an agreement.

The three witnesses were William F. Broening, former mayor of Baltimore; William H. Nast of Long Island City, and William M. Smith of Rochester, all members of the supreme council. Under questions asked by Charles H. Tuttle, former United States attorney, and Charles J. Margiotti of Pittsburgh, both of defense counsel, all three denied that the contract between Miller and McGuire, both of whom also are under indictment, had ever come before the supreme council.

Build Up Refutation.

Through these and a number of other witnesses, the defense devoted the day to building up its refutation of items of the prosecution's case, presented by Louis Mead Treadwell, assistant United States attorney, which were presented with the intent of showing that Mr. Davis was thoroughly cognizant of the terms under which the charity balls were conducted and was therefore aware that what the government charges was a lottery was being operated.

Mr. Smith, the last witness of the day, struck a snag in the cross-examination by Mr. Treadwell. After having testified, as had both Mr. Nast and Mr. Broening before him, that Senator Davis had announced at Sharon, Pa., in September of 1930, the transfer of his contract with the order by which he got a part of the initial fee of every new member, Mr. Smith was confronted with a copy of the minutes of an earlier examination at which he had denied any knowledge of such a contract.

Denies Earlier Answers.

From the witness stand today he denied he had been asked questions recorded in those earlier minutes, or that he had made answers attributed to him.

The transfer of the organization contract, which the first defense witness, Fred W. Jones, had testified was made to him and Joseph A. Jenkins at Sharon upon a promise to pay Mr. Davis $600,000 was the principal point about which the defense revolved.

Through Mr. Broening and Mr. Nast, as well as Mr. Smith, the defense brought out that the transfer of the contract had been announced to a meeting of the supreme council at that time.

"Davis said he was through with the whole works as far as the organization department was concerned," was the way Mr. Nast put it.

The trial will be resumed tomorrow."

COMMUNIST RIOTER FINED.

Judge Justin F. McCarthy in the Jury court yesterday imposed a $4 fine on Ambrose Stoinis, 27 years old, 10413 South Michigan avenue, for throwing a brick at a policeman during a communist riot in Roseland Sept. 14. Stoinis was unable to pay the fine and will work it out in the Bridewell.

TAX VALUES CUT 24 PER CENT IN 17 COUNTRY TOWNS

Expect City Reduction of $687,559,000.

County Assessor J. L. Jacobs yesterday made public the 1931 assessed valuation of real estate in 17 country towns. These valuations, on which 1931 tax bills will be based, average 24 per cent below the 1930 assessments.

The 1930 assessments for the 17 towns totaled $182,668,489. They have been reduced by the assessor's office to $139,629,388 for 1931. The reduction is $43,039,101.

The 24 per cent reduction in the country towns indicates that a similar reduction will be granted in city towns, Mr. Jacobs said. The reductions in the city thus far range from 15 to 30 per cent. Reckoning on that basis and the results in the country towns, the total of Chicago real estate valuations will be reduced approximately $687,559,000 from $2,750,237,890 the 1930 assessed valuation, to bring 1931 real estate valuations to approximately $2,062,678,000.

	1930 total.	1931 total.	Pct. reduction.
Worth	$ 16,895,022	$ 12,263,785	28
Palos	2,681,867	2,177,389	19
Lemont	1,919,089	1,617,166	16
Orland	1,910,351	1,529,545	21
Bremen	7,198,224	4,945,516	32
Schaumberg	1,557,004	1,406,150	10
Barrington	3,380,139	2,978,957	12
Palatine	4,872,385	4,458,273	9
Hanover	2,493,596	2,067,429	17
Rich	5,500,247	3,551,061	35
Wheeling	8,552,773	6,375,875	25
Northfield	8,308,010	6,723,684	19
Thornton	34,134,442	25,736,462	25
Maine	30,782,562	24,294,085	21
Niles	30,172,458	21,976,010	28
Tots. 17 towns.	$182,668,489	$139,629,388	24

The 1931 valuations represent an average reduction of 21 per cent from the 1928 assessments, the last quadrennial valuation. The 1930 valuations averaged 3 per cent higher than the 1928 assessments. The assessed valuation of the 17 towns in 1928 was $177,628,583.

"Must Keep Levies Down."

In making the valuations public Assessor Jacobs pointed out that the tax bill is based on the levies of the local governmental bodies as well as the assessments. Only if levies are maintained at the present level and in many cases reduced will the reduction in the assessments bring a corresponding reduction in the tax bills, he said.

"Most levies are so drawn that the reduction of 24 per cent in the assessment will not necessarily bring the tax bill down 24 per cent," Mr. Jacobs said. "The office of the assessor has done its work for the burdened real estate taxpayer. It is up to the taxpayer to see that the governments cut governmental expenditures and reduce levies to hold tax bills down."

Assessor Jacobs warned taxpayers to steer clear of attorneys and other persons who promise to secure a reduction of 25 per cent in 1931 tax bills. With the reduction of 24 per cent in assessments in the 17 towns indicating a general reduction throughout the county the taxpayer's bill can be cut 25 per cent without throwing away money in legal actions, he said, provided, of course, that the levies are held down.

Changed Realty Values.

"The reduction in the 17 towns reflects the change in value of real estate which has come with the changed economic condition," Mr. Jacobs said. "It also reflects the careful study of values in particular sections in which the property is situated and the correction of inaccuracies in the 1930 assessment."

The 1931 assessment is a quadrennial assessment and the valuations will stand for the next four years. The assessments of the next three years will not vary greatly from the 1931 assessment unless conditions change markedly, it is said. For the most part the assessments of the next three years will be in adjustment of the quadrennial assessments and the listing of new property.

To Hear Complaints Monday.

The assessor will begin hearing of complaints on the 1931 valuations on Monday when the books for six country towns will be placed on the counter in his office. Property owners for the towns of Palatine, Northfield, Barrington, Hanover, Schaumberg, and Elk Grove will be able to obtain the valuations placed on their real estate.

On Oct. 7 the assessments in the towns of Worth, Palos, Lemont, Orland, and Thornton will be run up for revision and on Oct. 13 those for Bremen, Bloom, Wheeling, Maine, and Niles will be taken up.

After the tax bills are issued, which will be shortly after the first of the year, property owners dissatisfied with the final valuation of their real estate will have an opportunity to protest before the board of appeals. The taxes for 1931 are payable in two installments, on April 1 and Nov. 1.

Wed Three Years

New York, Sept. 28.—[Special.]—Walter Camp Jr. and his wife, the former Ruth Elder, declined tonight to discuss reports that the aviatrix plans a Reno divorce.

Miss Elder contented herself with the statement that "I cannot talk." Mr. Camp seemed surprised when the question was raised. He said he expected to dine with his wife tonight. "I cannot answer the question at the moment," he said.

They were married three years ago. Miss Elder divorced her second husband, Lyle Womack, shortly after her Atlantic flight. Her first husband was C. E. Moody.

SEIZE SALESMEN IN LAKE FOREST; TWO ARE FINED

Society Women Complain Against Canvassers.

A dozen or more fashionable Lake Forest families were listed yesterday as complainants against three men charged with having swindled them out of small amounts. Two men were accused of working a magazine subscription racket and the other was charged with the sale of fake World's Fair stamps.

The magazine salesmen were Philip Land and S. R. Krause, who said they were from Hollywood. For ten days, they had been visiting Lake Forest residents, selling subscriptions to magazines and collecting $126.50 in cash and $49.50 in checks. Finally, several women became suspicious and the men were arrested on complaint of Mrs. John F. Jelke Jr., Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter, and Mrs. S. F. North.

Imposing List of Complainants.

As soon as the arrest became known other Lake Forest residents came forward until there was an imposing list of well known society women arrayed as complainants against the two men. Last night, Justice of the Peace Samuel Sorenson fined the men $200 each on charges of disorderly conduct and then suspended the fine on condition that they return all the money and checks they had collected and leave Lake Forest forever.

The men immediately began paying back what they had collected. Among the claimants and the amounts claimed were Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy, $25; Mrs. Ralph Poole, $4; Mrs. Dexter Cummings, $6; Mrs. Jelke, $4.50; Mrs. William Burry, $9; Mrs. Lester Armour, $28.50; Mrs. Scott Bromwell, $8, and Mrs. Robert A. Gardner, $49.

Sells Fair Stickers.

The third prisoner was Roy Yost, 1160 Des Plaines avenue, Des Plaines, who was charged with selling stickers [for the backs of envelopes] with "Century of Progress, 1933" printed on them. Yost sold lots of 100 and 200 stamps to a number of prominent persons and had 6,000 stamps in his possession when arrested. He admitted the sales and revealed that he had been chased out of Evanston, Winnetka, and Wilmette for making the sales.

STATE ANSWERS TAX SUIT APPEAL IN HIGHEST COURT

Carlstrom Asks Dismissal of Hearing.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—Answer to the recent Cook county taxpayers' petition for Supreme court action was filed with the court today by Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom on behalf of Joseph B. McDonough, treasurer of Cook county.

Headed by James E. Bistor of Chicago, numerous Cook county real estate owners recently sought a Supreme court review of their complaint that taxes on real estate were purposely made so high by Cook county taxing bodies as compared with taxes on personal property as to amount to a violation of their constitutional rights.

In his answer Attorney General Carlstrom argued that the plaintiffs had no right to come before the Supreme court until they had exhausted all the legal and administrative remedies open to them in Cook county and Illinois. This, he said, they had not done.

Furthermore, he claimed, state authorities have the right to levy more revenue on one type of property than another. He declared that in the absence of proof that there was discrimination among property owners or different properties in the same class no federal question was presented.

Dry Agents Raid Five Stills, Arrest Three Men

Prohibition agents under E. A. Hamilton, deputy administrator, yesterday raided five stills and arrested three men. The largest plant found was a 250 gallon still in a house at 2926 75th avenue, Elmwood Park. Frank Rilli was arrested as the operator and 3,000 gallons of mash and 90 gallons of alcohol were seized. Small stills were found at 56 East 36th place, 4327 Prairie avenue, 624 Oakwood boulevard, and 9956 South Union avenue.

FIND SUBMARINE MOUNTAIN OFF WEST COAST

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—A submarine mountain, one mile high has been discovered off the California coast by a party on the geodetic survey ship Guide, according to advices received today by the department of commerce. It was located in latitude 37 degrees N., 01.9 minutes, and longitude 123 degrees W., 19.9 minutes or about 60 nautical miles southwest of the Golden Gate and the same distance westward from Santa Cruz. The least depth obtained was 900 fathoms, or 5,400 feet, with the mountain's western side sloping steeply to 1,900 fathoms.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 28.—Cuba's "assassination crisis" today was marked by these developments:

A plot to blow to pieces most of the personnel of the Machado government, was frustrated.

The fifth political leader who was a victim of bullets of assassins yesterday died.

One of about twenty men arrested as suspects in the murder yesterday of Dr. Clemente Vazquez Bello, senate president who supported President Machado, committed suicide in jail under strange circumstances.

Colon cemetery, near Havana, where Dr. Bello was expected to be buried, was found today to have been underlaid with an electrically wired system of dynamite mines which could be controlled from another cemetery a few blocks away. Approximately 200 pounds of dynamite bombs were dug up by police.

Widow Plays Part.

The mines presumably were to be touched off as the comin was being lowered into the grave.

It was the widow of the slain senate president, who was also president of the Liberal party and slated to succeed his friend Machado as president, who unwittingly averted the mass murder. She telephoned from Rochester, N. Y., a request that her husband's body be taken to the city of Santa Clara for burial instead of Colon cemetery. This request was acted upon this afternoon.

Fate also played a part in the discovery of the plot, which apparently had been laid even before Dr. Bello's assassination. A woman visited a grave in the cemetery this morning and happened to see some wires. She notified the police, who traced the wires and, after flooding the ground, uncovered the mines.

Representative Miguel Angel Aguilar, Conservative house majority leader, who opposed Machado, became the fifth political victim of the series of murders when he died this morning of bullet wounds received yesterday. It is charged by opposition leaders that he was killed in retaliation for the slaying of Dr. Bello.

Hangs Self with Sheet.

The suicide was Leopoldo Alvarez, who, according to the police statement, hung himself with a bed sheet after being questioned regarding the Bello murder. Here again oppositionists claimed that Alvarez was done to death to avenge Bello.

Demonstrations occurred near the national capitol today as huge crowds waited to file past the body of Dr. Bello. A group of oppositionists shouted comments concerning the murders. When a riot threatened police and troops charged and dispersed the crowd.

Later a special train took the body of Bello to Santa Clara. The widow is expected to arrive here tomorrow from the United States. Burial will be on Friday. Police have ordered a thorough search for mines.

Martial law prevailed in Cuba today and army planes patrolled the coast to prevent the escape of Dr. Bello's assassins.

With the slaying of Angel Aguilar and the three Freyre de Andrade brothers, Representative Carlos Manuel de la Cruz now becomes the most prominent leader in Cuba opposing the Machado government. In an interview today he took a gloomy view of the situation as far as peace is concerned.

"America Must Save Cuba."

"Cubans are no longer able to settle their own problems peacefully," he said. "The present warfare is caused by deep rooted hatreds and political rivalries. The slayings mark the beginning of the end of the republic. Only American intervention can save the country.

"There are two cliques. One is headed by Machado. He and his followers are unscrupulously fighting to remain in power against ever increasing political obstacles and public opinion. The other clique is composed of outsiders endeavoring to clinch control of the government for no other purpose than to alleviate their own critical financial positions."

President Machado's brother, Col. Carlos Machado, was named today to succeed Bello as president of the Liberal party in Santa Clara province and Senator Alberto Barreras, Liberal of Havana, was named president of the senate. José Ramon Barcelo, Liberal governor of Oriente province, replaced Bello as president of the Liberal party throughout Cuba.

SEIZE GUN GIRL AFTER ROBBERY OF A MOTORIST

A black haired gungirl, 21 years old, was arrested at Madison street and Oakley boulevard last night five minutes after she had hitched a ride with a motorist and robbed him of $1. She is Mary Kramer.

Mary was standing at Madison street and Homan avenue when she asked Leonard Schlecht, 518 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, for a ride downtown. Schlecht had stopped for a traffic light. He consented and Mary entered his car.

At Madison street and Western avenue she drew a revolver and ordered Schlecht to drive to Campbell avenue and Adams street. There she robbed him and walked away. Schlecht drove to Western avenue and Madison street and notified Policemen Emmett McNamara and Frad Ristau of the Warren avenue station. The girl, he said, wore a black and white tam o'shanter. The policemen cruised around and found her—because of the tam—two blocks away. She did not resist. She carried a loaded revolver in her purse. The numbers had been filed off the gun.

CHARGES A MOVE IS AFOOT TO TIE SWANSON HANDS

Refusal of Inquiry Funds Hit by Cornelius.

The charge that an effort is being made to "muzzle" State's Attorney John A. Swanson's important investigations, including the inquiries into the Insull crash and the failure of the Bain bank chain, was made last evening by J. F. Cornelius, president of the Businessmen's Non-Partisan league. In a statement pointing out that the county board, controlled by Democrats, failed to appropriate $50,000 for the state's attorney's investigations, Mr. Cornelius said that the same board is willing to expend $9,000 for a special grand jury under Democratic control.

"The county board has refused to appropriate $50,000 to the state's attorney's office to carry on the Insull, Bain bank, and Judge McGoorty bombing investigations," said Mr. Cornelius.

$9,000 for Fisher Jury.

"Despite this refusal, the board appropriated $9,000 to Judge Harry Fisher for a special grand jury to investigate organized gangs and gangster operations. It will be recalled that Judge Fisher and Judge Michael Feinberg each appointed grand juries in the spring, when Feinberg was running for the Republican nomination for state's attorney. The Feinberg jury was declared illegal by the Supreme court.

"If the county board can afford to support Judge Fisher, who now has no connection with the Criminal court bench, it certainly is unfair to hamper State's Attorney Swanson in his work on such important things as the Insull crash.

"Swanson's notable record in investigating and successfully prosecuting loan sharks, rackets, and bankers is ample demonstration of his efforts to stop crime in both high and low places in Cook county. Certain interests in Chicago are seemingly trying their best to muzzle the state's attorney's office and to hinder and threaten the states' attorney in the hope that the Insull inquiry will be dropped."

Ex-Judge Assails Swanson.

From headquarters of the Courtney Republican club, Charles M. Thomson, ex-judge, launched a criticism last night of State's Attorney Swanson. Mr. Thomson, a Republican, a former judge of the Circuit court, former progressive congressman from the 10th district and former alderman from the old Lake View ward, is chairman of the country towns Independent Republican club which is supporting Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic opponent of Mr. Swanson.

"Judge Swanson was elected state's attorney for years ago," said the Thomson statement, "as a protest against the atrocious record made in that office by his predecessor, Robert E. Crowe. Swanson solemnly pledged himself to clean out the office, and not to play politics. He has played politics from the minute he took his oath of office.

Two Primaries Compared.

"When Swanson ran against Crowe in 1928 Crowe ran up an enormous primary vote in the badlands of Chicago. One of the arguments in urging Republicans to support Swanson instead of Crowe was that Crowe had the support of these vicious elements. By a strange coincidence the wards that were the political strongholds of Mr. Crowe in the 1928 primary proved to be the political strongholds of Mr. Swanson in the 1932 primary.

"I would like Mr. Swanson to explain the phenomenon of the overwhelming support of his candidacy in these breeding grounds of rackets, gambling and vice. Were these wards delivered to him in consideration of favors already received or to be received, or both? Certainly the support thus accorded Swanson indicates no fear of the avenging sword of justice so long as that sword is held in Swanson's palsied hand."

ROOSEVELT PATS NORRIS ON BACK FOR INSURGENCY

Then the governor took up the charge that Senator Norris was not a respecter of party, and he said he would suggest something more important than this.

"The forces of evil," said Mr. Roosevelt, "are far less respecters of parties. Selfish business, which seeks through tariff monopoly on a given product to obtain vast private profit at the expense of the people, is no respecter of parties.

"No Respecter of Party."

"Those bankers and brokers who, in order to obtain a commission, will willingly deceive an investing public into buying worthless domestic or foreign bonds are no respecters of party.

"A conscienceless power trust seeking to charge the home owner, the small manufacturer, the little business man, all the traffic will bear, is no respecter of parties.

"These men and these organizations seek to fatten themselves by the use of the kind of party regularity, whether it be Republican or Democratic, which can best be purchased to serve them.

"Theirs is the type of bad citizenship which cries the loudest against public servants, like Senator Norris, who are consistent, unselfish, courageous, and can't be bought. They are the lineal descendants of the men and the organizations who called Jefferson a 'radical'; who called Jackson a 'demagogue'; who called Lincoln a 'crack pot idealist'; who called Theodore Roosevelt a 'wild man'; who called Woodrow Wilson an 'impractical idealist'.

"Senator Norris, I go along with you because it is my honest belief that you follow in their footsteps—radical like Jefferson; demagogue like Jackson; idealist like Lincoln; wild like Theodore Roosevelt; theorist like Wilson—dare to be all of these, as you have in bygone years. So can we most greatly help our beloved nation in time of need."

Senator Norris Speaks.

Using the administration of Theodore Roosevelt for illustration, Senator Norris said the country has been wishing, during the administration of President Hoover, for another Roosevelt.

"We all remember Theodore Roosevelt," the Nebraska radical said, "and how he stood for the rights of the people against human greed and injustice. He called himself a Republican. Would he have been any better, would he have been any different, if he had called himself a Democrat?

"And now we can see, in the very shadow of our national capitol, another Roosevelt approaching the White House. He calls himself a Democrat. Would he be any different, would he be any better, if he called himself some other political name?"

"There is nothing sacred about a party," Senator Norris continued, and he added that the spirit of partisanship, if carried to the extreme, "will destroy the very fundamental principles of democratic government."

In Omaha Today.

Immediately after the conclusion of his address Gov. Roosevelt started the overnight trip to Omaha, where he will tarry for six hours. Tomorrow evening the governor will reach Sioux City, where he is to deliver the final major speech of this campaign tour.

FRAZIER, RADICAL N. DAKOTA SENATOR, IS AGAINST HOOVER

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—United States Senator Lynn J. Frazier, radical Republican of North Dakota, who is here in connection with an inquiry on Indian affairs, today came out against reelection of President Hoover.

"I am dissatisfied with the present administration," he said. "I do not belong to the wing of the Republican party that the administration represents. Virtually all the progressive group in the senate has adopted the attitude I express."

The North Dakota senator did not say whether he would vote for, or in any way aid the candidacy of Roosevelt, the Democratic nominee.

ROOSEVELT DUE TOMORROW; PLAN DEMONSTRATION

Candidate to Address Dinner at the Stevens.

Local Democrats yesterday prepared a welcome for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt tomorrow which they expect will eclipse the Democratic demonstrations for Woodrow Wilson and William Jennings Bryan in their heyday as presidential candidates. The New York governor's visit will have its climax in a dinner Saturday night at the Stevens hotel, for which more than 2,500 tickets have been sold. His address will be broadcast by W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE station.

Sherman hotel headquarters said some confusion had been caused by persons who had been calling up under the impression that Gov. Roosevelt would not make an address in Chicago, but an explanation was put out by headquarters that the only change in plan is that the candidate will not deliver one of his major campaign utterances. The original intention was that the governor would discuss reduction of the cost of government, but it has been decided to postpone this address.

Remarks of General Nature.

In making the explanation the headquarters sent the following bulletin to all ward leaders: "There is no intention that Gov. Roosevelt will refrain from talking at the Chicago dinner, but his remarks will be of a more general nature than originally intended." Amplifying devices are to project the Roosevelt remarks from the banquet hall into Grant park.

The understanding of the local managers is that Roosevelt's principal speech in Chicago will be delivered in the closing two weeks of the campaign at the time when Judge Henry Horner, nominee for governor, will be concentrating on Cook county.

Gov. Roosevelt will arrive at the Union station at 9 o'clock tomorrow night. He is coming from Milwaukee over the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad. Democrats of the regular organization plan to surround the station and line Jackson boulevard. From his train Roosevelt will be escorted with the members of his party, 60 in all, to the Congress hotel, where an informal reception will be held.

Mrs. James L. Houghteling of 731 Prospect avenue, Winnetka, a cousin of the governor, said last night that she had hoped he and Mrs. Roosevelt would be able to stop at the Houghteling home tomorrow night, but that she had been informed by Mrs. Roosevelt that the arrangements for the downtown reception made this impossible.

"We did not have a dinner planned as reported," said Mrs. Houghteling. "We just thought there would be a quiet family gathering here."

Will Attend Series Game.

Saturday afternoon, weather permitting, Gov. Roosevelt is to attend the world series game at Cubs park. At 6 o'clock the candidate will be the guest of the local Democratic organization at the Stevens hotel dinner. Headquarters reports a heavy demand for tickets, and the banquet is expected to be one of the largest of its kind the Democrats have ever held in Chicago. The governor is to speak at 8:15. Local Democratic leaders are also on the program.

Arrangements were being perfected last night for the parade which is to escort Gov. Roosevelt to the Congress hotel from the train tomorrow night. Every ward and all the country towns are to have delegations in the parade.

RETIRED FARMER DIES.

Hoover Moves to Help Wheat Farmer with Debt Holiday

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—The administration today began efforts to relieve the wheat farmer.

From the White House formal announcement was made that the government will permit the postponement of repayment of 75 per cent of the 20 to 33 million dollars loaned to wheat farmers for the purpose of crop production in 1932.

A few hours later Gardner Cowles and Wilson McCarthy, directors of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and Henry M. Robinson, chairman of the central committee of the banking and industrial committees, boarded a train for Chicago to attend a meeting called by the Chicago committee at which the farm credit situation is to be threshed out.

The subject of the Chicago conference was discussed by the board of the finance corporation before Mr. Cowles' and Mr. McCarthy's departure. It was understood that the two directors will tell the meeting that the federal loan agency is definitely in favor of some sort of extension on farm mortgages. Both Mr. Cowles and Mr. McCarthy were described as personally in sympathy with any move to secure more leniency for farm debtors.

Charges G. O. P. Plays Politics.

Charges that the administration was playing politics in granting leniency to wheat farmers only were made by Senator Ellison D. Smith [Dem., S. C.]. He complained to department of agriculture officials at exclusion of cotton and tobacco farmers. He noted, he said, that the administration was worried about the midwestern and northwestern sections where political disaffection is inclining the farm vote away from President Hoover, while the southern states, where the Republicans have no chance in any case, are to be allowed to shift for themselves.

Henry Clark, in charge of crop production loans, asserted in answer to Senator Smith that increased prices of cotton and tobacco were assisting southern farmers to meet their obligations and said this was the reason they were not included.

A picture of the situation the meeting will discuss was given out in a report issued today by the department of agriculture's bureau of agricultural economics.

About 37 per cent of the mortgaged farms in the United States on Jan. 1, 1932, were pledged for more than half their value, the bureau's survey found.

Statistics on Farm Debts.

As of Jan. 1, the bureau said, 25.4 per cent of the mortgaged farms were indebted for 25 per cent or less of their value; 27.9 per cent were mortgaged for between 25 and 50 per cent of their value; 21 per cent were mortgaged for between 50 and 75 per cent of their value; 10.7 per cent were mortgaged between 75 and 100 per cent of their value, and 5 per cent were mortgaged for more than 100 per cent of their value.

The proportion of farms with high debt ratios was found in the survey to be largest in the west north central states, where 7.6 per cent of mortgaged farms reported debt in excess of their farm value on Jan. 1, 1932; 32.3 per cent showed debt in excess of 75 per cent of their value, and 45.9 per cent were mortgaged for more than half their value. The most favorable mortgage debt situation was in New England, where 80 per cent of the mortgaged farms were indebted for less than one-half their value.

Defaulted Payments Funded.

Farms operated by their owners showed a greater proportion of high debt ratio throughout the country than did farms of other tenure. The census of 1930 indicated that 53 per cent of owner operated farms were free of mortgage debt, compared with 63 per cent in 1920.

The steps which it was announced would be undertaken with respect to the crop production loans are in keeping with the action taken concerning the 1931 loans.

The 1931 loans, totaling some 45 million dollars, found about 40 per cent of borrowers unable to pay at the end of the crop year. As a result the defaulted payments were funded over a period of three years.

The 1932 loans which were made by the secretary of agriculture from 200 million dollars of Reconstruction Finance corporation funds designated for that purpose total to date about 64 millions, with only five or six millions so far repaid.

Between 20 and 28 millions want to wheat farmers and it is to them that leniency is to be extended.

SENATOR LEWIS BETTER; HOPES TO ENTER CAMPAIGN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 28.—Senator James Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.], who was forbidden at the eleventh hour to embark on the liner Manhattan with Ambassador Walter E. Edge last week, due to doctors' fears that he might develop acute appendicitis at sea, was much improved today. He said he will sail Oct. 5 and hopes to be sufficiently recovered to participate in the last two weeks of the Illinois gubernatorial campaign.

"Judge Henry Horner," he continued, "ranks with the two other judges, John P. Altgeld and Edward F. Dunne, whom we put in the governor's chair, and he is particularly needed because of the present condition of Illinois."

Senator Lewis was allowed to walk about his room today. He said the danger of appendicitis has passed, although he is warned that recovery of strength will be slow. He expects his wife at the end of this week. She will return to Chicago with him.

NEW HAMPSHIRE DEMOCRATS VOTE FOR DRY REPEAL

Concord, N. H., Sept. 28.—(AP)—New Hampshire Democrats, in convention today, wrote a straight repeal plank into their platform, listed the economic situation as the major issue, and launched a campaign that leaders promised would be the party's greatest offensive in a decade.

The convention's prohibition plank called for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and return to the states of the power to control liquor, with a stipulation pledging "no saloons and no speakeasies."

Another plank urged drastic reduction in taxes and governmental costs.

DEFENDS HOOVER AGAINST ATTACK OF NELLIE ROSS

Ruth Pratt Answers Her Charges.

New York, Sept. 28.—[Special.]—Representative Ruth Baker Pratt took issue today with former Gov. Nellie Taylor Ross of Wyoming, who in a campaign speech said that President Hoover and the administration are responsible for suffering of women and children in the depression. Mrs. Pratt is a Republican and Mrs. Ross a Democrat.

Cites Child Welfare Session.

"Every American father and mother knows," said Mrs. Pratt, "that one of the greatest ambitions of President Hoover has been to do his utmost for the child and the home in this country of ours, he has even said that if the things he hopes for would come out of the White House conference on child health and protection, held last year, they would represent the greatest achievement of his administration.

"I should like to ask Mrs. Ross why it was that one of the first things the President insisted upon when he called together the conference of industrial leaders at the beginning of his great fight against the depression was a promise that those leaders should not cut wages in the industries they represented.

Protection of Home.

"Could this demand from the President have been made for any other reason than to protect the American home? All the world knows that this demand delayed a reduction in the wage scale until the cost of living itself had dropped.

"Moreover, the President not only opposed wage cuts in private industry, but he protected the 600,000 men and women in Uncle Sam's employ."

HOOVER TO HAVE EXTRA GUARD ON JOURNEY TO IOWA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—Extraordinary precautions have been ordered to assure the safety of President Hoover and his party when the Republican presidential candidate invades the west next Tuesday to deliver his first campaign speech at Des Moines.

The arrangements call for special protective efforts on the part of the railroads, the White House secret service, and local police officials in all the cities through which the presidential train will travel during the three days Mr. Hoover will be away from his desk at the capital.

Mills Also Takes Stump.

The disclosure that special efforts were being arranged to avoid any possibility of trouble as the President moves through communities hard hit by the depression came as Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills departed from the capital for a three weeks' tour of the middle and far west. Mr. Mills will speak at Detroit tomorrow night and at St. Louis Friday.

While White House officials were reticent regarding plans for the Des Moines trip, it became known today that the railroads over which the presidential train will travel have made arrangements for picked train crews and for careful patroling of the tracks. The schedule of the Hoover train also is to be kept secret and, according to one authority, only a few stops are to be made.

Will Have a Regular Section.

The presidential train will move as one of two or three sections of a regularly scheduled train. As an extra precaution no advance information will be given out as to which of the sections is being used by the President. Local police in all the cities through which the Hoover train is scheduled to pass have been notified to take special precautions. President Hoover will spend only a few hours at Des Moines, arriving there a few moments before the time his address is to be delivered and boarding his train for the return journey the same night.

The departure of Secretary Mills for Detroit marked the opening of the major Republican offensive against Gov. Roosevelt in the west. For the next few days the western prairies will be filled with Republican challenges to the New York governor urging him to state his views on immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus, upon continuance of the reconstruction program begun this last year, upon the tariff and upon prospective new pork barrel building legislation modeled along the lines of the measure introduced last year by Speaker Garner, the vice presidential nominee on the Democratic ticket.

Deny Mud Slinging Plans.

Just how far the President will go in demanding that his opponent tell the American people his stand on the bonus and other issues has not been disclosed. Republican officials assert this is not to be a mud slinging campaign so far as they are concerned. It is already apparent, however, that Mr. Hoover will include in his campaign addresses not ony his plan for meeting the depression, but also an attack on Gov. Roosevelt.

As the time for the President's departure draws closer it is becoming more and more apparent that the Republican leaders here and in Chicago are banking upon Hoover's address at Des Moines to reverse the trend toward Roosevelt throughout the central states. Unless the President can change western sentiment and jolt the Democratic party with a vigorous campaign address Mr. Hoover's closest friends see little chance for his carrying a majority of the middle western states.

The whole Republican plan of campaign is now being built up around the Hoover addresses. Speeches now being made are paving the way for the Des Moines speech. Plans also have been perfected for following up the address with numerous other speeches by the big guns of the party.

That the Republicans still hold out hope of carrying Minnesota in the face of the dissatisfaction there is shown by the fact that Mr. Mills has included the Twin Cities in his itinerary. If a vestige of hope remains that the state can be carried it is possible the second western speech to be delivered by the President will be made at Minneapolis.

Police to Show Steps from Crime to Prison

NOMINATION OF SIMPSON IS SENT TO STATE BOARD

A copy of Circuit Judge Thomas J. Lynch's decree declaring James Simpson Jr. the Republican nominee for congress in the Tenth district was carried by plane to Springfield yesterday afternoon in order that the state canvassing board, in session there, might certify the nomination.

Attorneys for Ralph E. Church, who lost the recount contest before Judge Lynch, said they would protest the certification of the nomination by the canvassing board.

Judge Lynch denied a number of motions by Church's counsel yesterday morning. Motions to appeal to the Appellate court were denied, there being no appeal from a Circuit court's rulings in a primary recount case.

HOOVER'S SPEECH IN IOWA TO OPEN BATTLE FOR WEST

G. O. P. Headquarters Hit Democratic Tariff.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Republican national headquarters yesterday heralded President Hoover's speech to be delivered at Des Moines, Ia., next Tuesday, as marking the real opening of the Republican presidential campaign. October is usually the great Republican month, in the opinion of the party warhorses, and the opening of the drive to win the agricultural west next week by the President is regarded at the Palmer house headquarters as the start of the actual battle of 1932.

Texts of a farm tariff speech were sent out from headquarters yesterday to 600 platform orators in the west. It was written by the agricultural division as a text to be used in the corn, wheat, cattle, and hog belt. Its theme is that the tariff policy of the Democrats, judged by past performances, has been to place the American farmer in "direct competition" with the cheap farm labor of foreign countries.

Oppose Pork Barrel.

Meanwhile a stand against the pork barrel, bureaucracy, and government in business was taken by the Young Republican league, which is being organized in every state to include men and women from 21 to 35 years of age.

League directors in 18 states were sent telegrams by George Olmstead, national director, asking for information on the members' stand on national issues. "All the replies," reported Mr. Olmsted, "said the young Republicans are definitely opposed to increasing the tax bill, that they are in favor of lowering taxes where possible so that capital can be invested and employment increased. It is surprising to learn how few communities want Speaker Garner's postoffices. The replies point out that President Hoover has vetoed more appropriations than any President in the last 35 years."

Almost a Death Blow.

The model text sent out to Republican speakers who are meeting the attacks of the Democrats against the "Grundyized" tariff states that under the Democrats the Underwood tariff nearly 20 years ago was "almost a death blow to agriculture."

"Under the Underwood bill," the text reads, "industrial products carried an average of 27 per cent protection, while all products of the farm were placed on the free list. Why did the Democrats place farm products on the free list. Senator Underwood was spokesman for the Democrats, and he said: 'The reason we favor a reduction or removal of farm products protection is that the increase in farm products prices in preceding Republican protective laws has increased the price of farm products 93 per cent since 1897.'

"Here we have the Democrats' attitude towards the American farmer. The farmer was making money. The Democrats found it out, so they robbed him of his tariff.

"The war was over in 1918. War prices for farm products were a thing of the past, and the Republican party knew foreign dumping would begin again, and the American farmer needed protection. So they passed an emergency tariff bill which President Wilson vetoed, again demonstrating the Democratic party's attitude towards the farmer.

Dumping Is Stopped.

"After the election of President Harding the Republicans passed an emergency agricultural tariff which stopped dumping of foreign products. A year later the Fordney-McCumber bill was passed. It was soon discovered that agricultural rates under this bill were not high enough and the Republican party began its untiring fight to increase these rates, with the result that the Hawley-Smoot bill was passed in 1930.

"The agricultural rates under this act are the highest in the country's history. They have given to the farmer the American market for over 90 per cent of his products, excluding what and cotton, and because of this the American farmer is receiving higher prices for the things he has to sell than are the farmers of any other country."

"It took the farmers fifty years, with the aid of the Republicans, to compel congress to recognize agriculture as an integral part of the political structure," it says. "Farmers must see this recognition is not submerged.

Sixty Billion Investment.

"Few realize that agriculture represents a capital investment of nearly 60 billion dollars and that 30 million persons are stockholders in this gigantic capital investment and are actually engaged in agricultural pursuits.

"In the past the farmer has always labored under the threat of a Democratic administration taking charge of the government and raising his tariff, as the Wilson administration did by the passage of the dread Underwood act of 1913.

"If the Democrats had pilloried the American farmer as an object of human derision they could not have done more to him than they propose in their tariff plank. They declare for 'competitive tariff' and 'reciprocal tariff agreements.'

"A competitive tariff means, of course, that the American farmer must compete with the farmer of Russia, Argentina, Canada, Australia, and other foreign lands. It means also he will have to adjust his production costs to meet the lower production costs of the competing nations.

"But the crowning blow to agriculture in the Democratic plank would be that the doors would be closed on the equalization fee, the debenture plan, and the domestic allotment plan. All three of these measures are being advocated by one or more of the combined forces of the great agricultural organizations. These three plans are based entirely upon a division of the tariff on farm products as a means of increasing the domestic price for the farmers. In all three of these measures the higher the tariff the better it is for the farmer. With the stroke of a pen the Democrats would wipe out all possibility for any legislation of this kind."

HORNER PLEDGES ECONOMY IN TALK AT EAST ST. LOUIS

Plea for Dry Repeal Also Brings Cheers.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

East St. Louis, Ill., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—The free and easy style of campaigning which brings a candidate into direct contact with the voters was adopted this afternoon by Judge Henry Horner, the Democratic nominee for governor, as he drove from Carbondale to East St. Louis for the big meeting of the day.

Informality ruled during the afternoon, but it gave way to a concise discussion of the issues facing the voters of Illinois here tonight. His advocacy of repeal of the prohibition laws proved an immensely popular topic with the distinctly urban audience which heard the judge. There were also cheers for his home rule plank for cities, his pledge for economy and the promise of a drastically reduced pay roll.

Urges Support of Bond Issue.

Mr. Horner also asked support of the $20,000,000 bond issue which will appear on the ballot Nov. 8. The legislature, he explained, authorized state aid to such counties as needed to care for their poor last winter and provided for the sale of tax anticipation warrants to the extent of $18,000,000. Provision was also made for the sale of bonds, the proceeds of which were to take up these warrants and the bonds to be redeemed by the share of the gasoline tax of each county using a portion of the relief fund to the extent of the amount used.

Unless these bonds are authorized the $18,000,000 distributed for the relief will be an added burden to the taxpayers. In view of the fact that not all the counties made use of this relief measure it would not be fair to compel the whole state to pay this money. I urge the electorate to vote for the bond issue and I also invite the Republican party to join us in this act of simple justice.

Stops at Carbondale.

Judge Horner and his party set out from Carbondale about noon, going first to De Soto where the Democratic nominee walked up and down the main street of the village chatting with tradesmen, aproned restaurant proprietors, and housewives going about their shopping.

Elkville was the next stop, then Dowell where the judge visited a coal mine but did not have time to go down the shaft where the men were digging. He drove then to Duquoin where he chatted with the citizens on the street.

Pinckneyville was the next stop and the judge then went on to Sparta where he spoke to a crowd at the Randolph county fair.

(Wallinger Photo.)

Mrs. Alice Webster, 3240 North Hamlin avenue, has filed suit in the Circuit court for separate maintenance from Daniel Webster, attorney, former state senator and former assistant city prosecutor, it was revealed yesterday.

The suit was first filed July 13 and an amended bill filed Sept. 21. Webster did not appear at the court hearing before Judge George F. Rush several weeks ago. Mrs. Webster accuses her husband of misconduct with his stenographer, Miss Emily Kinast, 24 years old, who formerly resided at 5312 South Fairfield avenue.

The Websters were married Aug. 31, 1917, and have one child, Lois, 14 years old.

Hoover to Carry His 1928 States, Curtis Predicts

Vice President Charles Curtis predicted yesterday that the Hoover-Curtis ticket would win in nearly all the states which gave Hoover and Curtis majorities four years ago. He paused in Chicago between trains on a speaking tour and tonight he speaks at Enid, Okla. "If the meetings I have had are any indications of what Kansas and the western states are thinking," he said, "we will carry the same states we did in 1928. The Democrats have always been great claimers but poor deliverers. Everywhere people are demanding a man of vision and not a visionary man to lead them out of this economic crisis."

Fear for Fate of Crew of Pacific Freighter

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 28.—(AP)—The fate of the 29 officers and men of the crew of the freighter Nevada, wrecked on the shore of Amatignak island in the middle Aleutian group in the North Pacific, remained doubtful late tonight after a rescue ship, the Japanese steamer Oregon Maru, radioed her small boat was unable to reach the wrecked vessel. The Oregon Maru after a 16 hour search radioed she had found and was standing by the Nevada, and reported at least four men had reached shore from the wrecked ship.

GOVERNOR FLIES OVER PORTO RICO; DESCRIBES HAVOC

Homes and Crops Ruined by Hurricane.

With at least 200 dead and 1,000 injured by yesterday's hurricane, Porto Rico plunged today into the work of rehabilitation. Gov. Beverley spent 2 hours and 15 minutes in the air surveying the damage done by the storm. When he returned to San Juan he wrote the following description of the devastation he saw.

BY GOV. JAMES R. BEVERLEY.
[Written for the Associated Press.]

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 28.—From the air the Porto Rico storm area looks as follows:

Bayamon is in very bad shape. Half the poor type houses are down and many are unroofed. The sugar in central Juanita appears to have been destroyed and the cane is down everywhere. Trees fell toward the southeast.

Proceeding from Bayamon toward Comerio, the damage lessens considerably, with many houses in the country standing. The town of Comerio is little damaged. The trees are lying east and northeast. Bananas are down everywhere.

Barros Slightly Damaged.

Between Comerio and Barros damage to houses and trees, except bananas, is slight. The trees lie southeast and east. The town of Barros is slightly damaged. Forest trees appear intact from the air, but all bananas were destroyed.

Bearing north from Barros toward Ciales, there is slightly more damage to the houses and trees. Utuado shows little damage from the air. The power lines are standing and some bananas.

Passing north of Lares, the royal palms show considerable damage, while banana trees are down all the way to Las Marias. Some poor type houses were unroofed, although there was no apparent damage to the towns of Las Marias and San Sebastian.

District Is Flooded.

Between San Sebastian and Mayagues the power lines are intact. The cane is down and the royal palms are stripped. Mayagues shows no damage, nor does Anasco, but the cane is partially down in this district and there is a great deal of flood water.

Flying from Anasco toward Quebradillas, crossing the hills opposite Rincon and Aguadilla, about 20 per cent of the houses in the hills are unroofed. The town of Moca shows no damage, nor does central Eureka, except for flood water.

Toward Isabela the wind evidently was stronger. A number of country houses are down. Cane and bananas appear flat on the ground. Trees lie south or southeast. At and near by Isabela it appears that 50 per cent of the houses suffered damage to their roofs.

Slum District Damaged.

The Quebradillas slum district appears damaged, but the rest of the town shows no ill effects of the storm. Near by, however, many small country houses are down.

Turning inland from Quebradillas, conditions are better than along the coast until near Arecibo, where it appears the town is badly hit. I estimated one-third to one-half of the poorer houses are damaged or destroyed. Trees close to Arecibo lie southeast.

Inland from Arecibo toward Florida the cane is down but houses appear intact. At Manati sugar seems in good condition and damage to the town is slight.

Approaching Vega Baja the damage increases. Central San Vicente is unroofed and the roads flooded. Central Carmen is unroofed and the cane is down everywhere. Many houses were destroyed along this coast.

The damage increases toward Toa Baja and Dorado, where conditions in both towns appear bad. Many houses were destroyed, especially at Dorado, where half the town is down.

Heading toward Toa Alta the damage lessens, although I estimate one-third of the houses in Toa Alta were damaged or destroyed. Approaching Bayamon from Toa Alta the damage becomes worse. In Bayamon the damage is terrible.

Begin Reconstruction Work.

SAN JUAN, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Porto Rico began the work of rehabilitation in her hurricane wrecked areas today, hardly 24 hours behind the tropical storm that killed 200 or more islanders and wrought millions of dollars' damage.

Exhorted by Gov. Beverley to face the tragedy with grim determination, the Red Cross concentrated the control of emergency medical and food relief to a single agency, the Porto Rico chapter.

The Red Cross dispatched two surgical units to Fajardo, some 30 miles down the coast east of San Juan, where 500 injured were reported in immediate need of surgical attention. Another unit was sent to Luquillo and another to Ceiba.

The supplies available through the National Guard and the 65th United States infantry were exhausted today, and the Red Cross issued a requisition upon the army for 2,000 tents, 18,000 cots, and 18,000 blankets for the homeless.

Storm Loses Force.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.—(AP)—A belief that the hurricane that ravaged Porto Rico has diminished in intensity was set forth tonight by the weather bureau here in an advisory warning locating the storm moving westward at about 15 miles an hour between Navassa island and Jamaica.

(This would indicate that the hurricane had passed Santo Domingo and Haiti without doing much damage and might either strike Jamaica or pass between that island and Cuba.)

DISCOVERS WILL, SEEKS BROTHER'S $50,000 ESTATE

Sister Says Flood Bared Old Document.

Miss Anna Margaret Corcoran, 39 years old, 223 Madison street, Oak Park, yesterday announced that she had found, under romantic circumstances, a will which makes her the sole heir to the $50,000 estate of her brother John. The latter, who was for many years an engineer in the federal building, died in 1928.

He was supposedly intestate and $30,000 worth of securities, found in a safety deposit box at the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, were divided by Miss Corcoran, her sister, Mrs. Nellie Williams, and her niece, Mrs. Margaret Demling.

Miss Corcoran, with whom the brother had lived, advanced a claim for services in caring for him over a period of nine years. This claim, according to Miss Corcoran's attorney, Thomas Young, was disallowed because in the absence of written evidence it was impossible to prove there was any implied contract to pay her.

Sale of the home in which she lives, which was also the property of the brother, was ordered that the heirs might share equally in the proceeds. This was done in opposition to the wishes of Miss Corcoran, who maintained that she was entitled to the residence.

Recently when the basement of the house was flooded Miss Corcoran dropped a ring in the water. A neighbor, 12 year old Jerry Ferrone, went to search for it, and in doing so displaced a bundle of old magazines. Among these was a letter, aged but legible. Miss Corcoran dried it out.

"It was a will," she said, "in John's handwriting, but not witnessed. It stated that he wanted me to have all his property."

She added that her attorney has filed a motion to have the case reopened in the hope that she will be declared the sole heiress so far as the house is concerned.

Hundreds See Shoemaker Jump to Death in River

A man believed to be Isadore Foreman, 34 years old, 2712 Evergreen avenue, jumped off the Randolph street bridge yesterday morning in view of hundreds of pedestrians. He sank as he was carried south by the current. Coast guards dragged the river unsuccessfully for the body. Neighbors of Foreman said he was a shoemaker who had been out of work for months.

STATE SENATE DELAYS ACTION ON SALES TAX

Emergency Clause Votes Lacking.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—By a vote of 29 to 5 the Illinois state senate today failed to pass the bill for a county optional sales tax for the relief of the jobless and their families. Since the bill carries an emergency clause to put it into effect immediately, it required a two-thirds vote—34—for passage.

On the heels of the defeat, upon the motion of George M. Maypole [Dem., Chicago], the record of the roll call was expunged—an extraordinary procedure—intending to give the bill a second chance, probably next week. The special session later adjourned until Tuesday.

Enactment of this bill was one of two steps that an Illinois delegation assured the Reconstruction Finance corporation in Washington last week would be sought to demonstrate that the state is not relying on federal funds entirely and would exhaust its own resources to aid the unemployed.

Chicago Members Protest.

Chicago senators charged that its defeat, at least temporarily, was due to adoption of a resolution limiting the operation of the proposed law to Cook county, and lack of interest indicated by the large number of absentees.

There are 50 members of the senate living and the roll call produced only 35 votes, one downstater voting "present." And there were seven downstaters who obtained consent and recorded themselves in favor of the bill, but left before argument in favor of restoring the measure to its original form was heard.

There were four Cook county men—apparently unwilling to assume the onus of voting for a new tax on Cook county residents alone—who voted against the bill. They were Arthur A. Huebsch and Daniel A. Serritella, Republicans, and Harold Ward and Thomas J. Courtney, Democrats. Courtney changed his vote when he saw the bill was defeated.

And there were three Chicagoans present who did not vote—James B. Leonardo, Republican, and Joseph Mendel and Francis Loughran, Democrats. Still another Chicagoan, P. J. Carroll, Democrat, was absent.

Chicago Members Defeated.

The amendment eliminating all counties, except Cook, by limiting the operation of the bill to counties of more than 500,000 population was adopted at the morning session of the senate upon motion of Simon E. Lantz [Rep., Congerville], one of the leaders of the agriculture bloc. It was fought vigorously by Chicago members, but they lost when the amendment won, 24 to 17.

About 4 o'clock this afternoon it was found that 32 senators were present and six had left favorable votes behind them before departing.

At this point Courtney [Dem., Chicago], minority leader, sought to effect an agreement to rescind the amendment confining the bill to Cook county. Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling in the chair and Richard J. Barr [Rep., Joliet], president pro tem., held that if this procedure were followed the six votes recorded in advance could not be counted for a state-wide optional county sales tax.

Even Courtney conceded eventually that the advance recording had been in favor of an exclusively Cook county measure. Lacking those six votes even the unanimous vote of the 32 present would not pass the bill with its emergency clause.

Barbour Assails Absentees.

James J. Barbour [Rep., Evanston] denounced delay.

"It's a farce and almost a scandal," he said in reference to the absence of so many, "not to have members here attending to business.

"This amendment makes the bill ridiculous. When you jam it down our throats you are taking another step toward making Chicago a separate state and advancing the time when something drastic will be done."

Senator Barr objected to this argument, saying that the bill in its original form did not require counties adjoining Cook to adopt a sales tax, and that therefore the amendment had not injured the metropolitan county.

Courtney cited the visit to Washington, arguing that it had been intended that a county sales tax and possibly use of the gasoline tax would be sources from which to meet relief needs after the loan of $5,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The sales tax was to be statewide and that was understood, he said.

Barr replied that all the Washington delegation had promised was that the passage of the all county tax law, subject to the action of the county board in each instance, would be attempted.

The only action approaching the final in the senate during the day was adoption of house bills to protect the pensions of Chicago city policemen, firemen, municipal employés, and park policemen, but these still require house concurrence in senate amendments.

There was some surprise when the senate passed by 35 to 1 the bill sponsored by Victor Michel [Rep., Peoria] to increase the daily license fees of race tracks, except Fairmount and Lincoln Fields, $1,000 a day and to increase the track owners' percentage of the betting in pari-mutuels from 6½ to 8½ per cent.

Racing Season Near End.

The new revenue, the bill specifies, is to go for relief, but since the racing season is almost over, little aid is expected from this source until after the "hard winter ahead"—not until next summer in fact. That bill now goes to the house. So does Richey V. Graham's bill to allow municipalities to pledge their bonds in exchange for loans from the R. F. C.

During the morning the house completed passage of the senate bill to allow receivers of closed banks to put up their assets as security for R. F. C. loans. It also acted on the senate bill to rescind the N. S. F. teachers' pay check bill, which killed the market for tax anticipation warrants of the Chicago board of education. Both of those now go to Gov. Emmerson for approval.

The house also had a lively time as the result of five different resolutions. One, considered of greatest interest, was by F. W. Lewis [Dem., Robinson] calling on the attorney general to inform the assembly whether he intends to press the suits still pending against former state treasurers—"Len Small, Fred E. Sterling, Andrew Russel, and others"—for the recovery of interest received on public funds during their terms of office. It was ordered to lie on Speaker Shanahan's desk. A resolution for investigation of the Illinois commerce commission and the affairs of the Insull utility régime was ruled out of order.

EXPLAINS PAYING OF TEACHERS IN GOODS COUPONS

The plan by which Evanston school teachers are being paid partly in merchandise coupons redeemable at certain stores was explained yesterday by Albert D. Sanders, vice president of the finance committee of school district 75. Payment is made partly in tax warrants and plenty in merchandise coupons or entirely in warrants at the request of the teachers, he said. The coupon plan was decided upon after officials had satisfied themselves that tax warrants were not readily redeemable in the stores.

"This plan is one of convenience for our teachers," Mr. Sanders said. "Any store or organization buying Evanston school warrants may have the coupon privilege. If a store buys $500 in warrants, the school board will take up a like amount of its coupons. Teachers may sell their coupons to any one who trades at the coupon listed stores, and realize some cash. Not more than $15 in coupons for any one store will be issued to a teacher."

At present the coupons are issued for Sears, Roebuck & Co. in Evanston, the National Tea stores, the Standard Oil company, the Walgreen Drug company, and the Consumers company. The plan is becoming so successful, Mr. Sanders said, that the Evanston Independent Retail Merchants' association, including more than 200 members, may join.

COUNCIL URGES STATE TO PASS R. F. C. LOAN ACT

After a lengthy debate yesterday the city council approved a resolution, signed by members of the special committee on unemployment, urging the general assembly to enact laws that would permit the state to take advantage of loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for the rehabilitation of slum districts.

"The passage of the state housing act," said Ald. James B. Waller [43d], chairman of the unemployment committee; "would make possible the application of funds to building projects that would provide work for a large number of persons in the city and at the same time improve housing conditions."

TEACHERS' PAY HOPES RECEIVE A NEW SETBACK

Council Delays Move for Aid from City Funds.

Hopes of Chicago school teachers for a two weeks' pay day this week went glimmering yesterday. The 18,000 city employés may be paid soon, but the 14,000 school teachers may have to wait for some time for their next salary installment.

These developments were revealed yesterday when City Controller Szymczak asked the city council for instructions concerning payment of the school board pay rolls. He declared bankers are ready to purchase more 1931 city corporate tax warrants, but will not invest in board of education warrants.

Teachers Denied City Funds.

The controller reminded the aldermen that on July 28 they advised him to discontinue the practice of financing the board of education pay rolls from the city's aggregate of funds until the funds are sufficient to permit the purchase of school board warrants without hampering the financing of city pay rolls and payment of the city's debt obligations.

Controller Szymczak asked for "immediate action" from the council, but the aldermen, without discussion, referred the communication to the finance committe, thus making improbable the payment of the teachers this week, even if funds are available for the city.

Banks Plan New Purchases.

"The banks are working on a plan under which they propose to purchase only city corporate tax warrants in an amount sufficient to meet half a month's pay roll for the board of education and also to provide cash for the purpose of paying half a month's payroll for city employés," the controller informed the council. "This will require a purchase by the banks of approximately $4,500,00 of city corporate tax warrants. The banks refuse to buy any board of education tax warrants, claiming there are too many questions involved at present for them to invest their depositors' money in board of education securities.

"This will mean the city will further increase its investments in board of education tax warrants over and above the $32,000,000 now held in its funds in the form of board of education warrants and bonds. The most we could hope to sell during the balance of 1932 of 1931 city corporate tax warrants to the banks would total approximately $10,000,000. [The banks have shown no desire to purchase any of the city or school 1932 tax warrants.]

Pay in Sight to Sept. 15.

"The city would receive for its pay rolls out of this $10,000,000 approximately $4,500,000 and the board of education pay rolls approximately $5,500,000. The city's portion of this cash, plus miscellaneous receipts it would receive for the balance of the year, would be sufficient to meet city pay rolls up to Sept. 15, 1932, after which time no further cash would be available for the remainder of the year.

"The city would require approximately $13,000,000 in cash to meet pay rolls for the balance of the year from Sept. 15, for which purpose we would have nothing to offer to the banks that they would be likely to buy."

The controller concluded his statement with the query whether the city council wished to change its policy as expressed July 28 in order that the teachers might be paid.

See Additional Month's Pay.

In a discussion of the controller's communication at the meeting of the finance committee it was pointed out that if $10,000,000 worth of warrants is sold and none of the money is invested in school warrants the amount, plus miscellaneous revenue, probably would be sufficient to pay city employés until Oct. 15 instead of Sept. 15 as mentioned in the communication.

The aldermen pointed out further, though, that the controller did not hold out any hope of making a $10,000,000 sale at one time, but "during the balance of 1932," which would make salary payments to the city employés, and to the school teachers if they are included, at intervals during the remainder of this year. It was considered likely that two or three checks would be given out between now and the first part of November and probably an equal number in the month preceding Christmas.

A special meeting of the finance committee, to which the matter was referred, may be called for next Tuesday. Mayor Cermak, Lewis E. Myers, president of the board of education, and other city and school board officers have been invited to discuss the pay roll problem. Following this meeting another meeting may be called to discuss the matter with the bankers.

TRUSTEES DECIDE TO INVESTIGATE SPECIAL SCHOOL ATTENDANTS

The school board yesterday asked Supt. William J. Bogan and Col. Howard P. Savage, business manager, for a report on the qualifications and experience of bath attendants and crippled children's attendants in the school system.

Trustee Joseph Savage introduced the motion following a debate with Mrs. W. S. Hefferan. Savage had proposed that teachers be given the jobs of the attendants who take the crippled children from their homes to the classrooms. Mrs. Hefferan contended that the teachers were physically unfit for the task of lifting the children.

The jobs of 49 bath attendants were abolished two weeks ago by the board on the motion of Mr. Savage. Mrs. Hefferan asked that this action be reconsidered because the bathrooms at fourteen elementary schools and swimming pools at five high schools had been closed as a result. This was opposed by Mr. Savage and it failed to come to a vote.

The bath attendants had just been certified by the civil service commission. Questioned after the board meeting Mr. Savage admitted that an aunt of his had failed to pass the examination.

"She had been in the service for years and deserved to pass," he said.

Miss Jacqueline Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shea Smith, 1400 Lake Shore drive, visited the Probate court on her eighteenth birthday yesterday to collect $18,000 under the provisions of the wills of her great-grandfather, Jonathan Clark, pioneer realty dealer, and her great-uncle, George T. Clark. The cash and securities were turned over to her by Attorney Dwight McKay, representing the Chicago Title and Trust company.

Miss Smith said she would use part of the money to travel to Shanghai, China, where she is to appear with the Gladys Hight dancing troupe. Her younger brother, Shea Smith, now 15 years old, will receive a similar sum when he comes of age. Her father is the retired president of a bookbinding company.

Read their testimony—and then remember:

Any want ad rate is high if you don't rent the apartment, sell the auto, find a buyer for your house, or do any of the hundreds of things that effective want advertising can do for you.

Ask yourself if you would answer a want ad printed in a medium in which you had no confidence or in a medium you didn't even read.

Experienced want ad users know that paper, ink, and circulation alone do not produce results. Without confidence in the medium which prints it, the most attractive, the most legitimate offer will go unheeded.

For twenty years the Chicago Tribune has built reader confidence by rigidly censoring all want advertising offered it.

It does not permit the reader's confidence in all advertising to be undermined by the questionable operations of a few advertisers. Neither knowingly nor carelessly does it tolerate shady dealing in any form.

It does not force reputable advertisers to carry this burden and so increase their cost of doing business.

It does not force some advertisers to compete at a disadvantage by favoring a special few.

It does not offer secret rebates.

It does not allow free reruns, except for reasons outlined in its rate card.

The Tribune insists that all advertisers enjoy equal opportunities, pay promptly, and at regular card rates.

These are some of the reasons why the Tribune is the preferred advertising medium of reputable want advertisers.

—why the Tribune gets better results and gets them more quickly than any other Chicago newspaper.

—why the Tribune during the first eight months of 1932, as it has for the past 20 years, printed more want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper.

When you have any job that a want ad can do, phone it to the newspaper that can do the job quickly and at low cost—the Tribune. Call Superior 0100—Want Ad-Viser.

Exchange!

"Having need for three electric refrigerators I offered to trade first class furs for them through a want ad in the Tribune Barter & Exchange column. The ad pulled fourteen replies. I made a satisfactory trade for the refrigerators wanted."

JOHN WESLEY GRAY

House!

"We advertised for rent a ten-room brick house located on the near south side. The ad appeared in the Tribune only for four days, beginning September 1st. Seventy prospects answered the ad. One of them wanted to buy the place. We closed a deal quickly."

E. C. ZIMMERMAN

Business!

"The first week in September I ran a want ad in the Tribune to find someone who would lease a part of the space in my store for a meat market. The ad pulled twenty-seven replies. The day after the ad ran I closed a deal."

SAMUEL WEISS

Lost & Found!

"Friends of mine left their pet bulldog in my charge, and as luck would have it, he ran away! I placed a want ad in the Tribune which ran September 6th. The morning the ad ran a Tribune reader brought back the dog and saved me considerable embarrassment."

B. W. MAY

House!

"I used a Tribune Want Ad to rent a six-room house at $35 a month. Fourteen people answered the ad, which ran during the third week in September. I have always found Tribune Want Ads satisfactory during the seventeen years I have used them."

CHARLES E. SCHILLER
5029 Grace Street

Business!

"A Tribune Want Ad helped us sell our machine shop quickly. The ad ran during the second week in September. Ten prospects called. We sold the shop to one of them the day after the ad ran."

CHINESE REVOLT IN MANCHURIA; SEIZE PROVINCE

Many Towns Taken; Jap Envoy Calls for Help.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Sept. 28.—Chinese railway guards and troops heretofore loyal to the Manchukuo government in Manchuria rebelled today and occupied practically all towns along the Chinese Eastern railway west from Harbin except Tsitsihar, capital of Heilungkiang province. Tsitsihar still is held by a Japanese garrison, according to dispatches.

The towns occupied include Manchuli, on the western end of the railroad near the soviet border; Hailar, capital of the Mongolian Barga district; Chalantun, in the Khingan mountains; Anganchi, about 30 miles south of Tsitsihar, and Hengtaohotze, about 60 miles west of Harbin.

Japanese Envoy Asks Help.

Japanese reports said the first news of the rebellion was a message from the Japanese consul at Manchuli requesting help and stating that the lives of 200 Japanese residents at Manchuli and Hailor, including consular officials and civilians, were endangered. The Japanese sent a military plane to investigate. The plane was believed to have been shot down, since it did not return.

A Chinese force also occupied the town of Tungliao, on the Chinese Eastern railway west of Mukden.

The Japanese are seriously disturbed by the situation, and Gen. Nobuyoshi Muto, Japanese commander in Manchuria, has called a conference of leading Japanese military commanders at Mukden to outline a campaign of reoccupation and reconquest of Heilung-kiang province, which, excepting for the Harbin district, practically has flopped over to Chinese loyalists.

Japs Blame Marshall Chang.

The Japanese allege that Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, ousted Manchurian war lord, chiefly is responsible. They claim his emissaries, as well as volunteers, constantly are passing into Manchuria through Jehol province.

The situation also has caused a renewal of the Japanese agitation against the soviets. They claim that soviet border forces are lending moral support to the Chinese loyalists. The soviets recently refused to withdraw an outpost near Manchuli which Manchukuo officials claimed was stationed inside Manchuria.

SMOOT PLEDGES G. O. P. TO WORK FOR BILLION SLASH IN BUDGET

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—The coming session of congress must cut government costs and put aside thought of raising taxes, for the people cannot stand addition of another straw to the tax load they are now bearing, Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], chairman of the senate finance committee, declared today.

He is one of the few congressional leaders who have gone home, mingled with his constitutents and then returned to Washington.

"I believe that the people cannot pay more taxes and live," was Senator Smoot's expression of what he had found back home.

He pledged his efforts and those of the Republican party to work for a reduction of a billion dollars a year. Such a slash, he asserted, could be made without impairing governmental efficiency.

Together with economy, said Senator Smoot, must go a determination not to cancel or scale down war debts; for if this were done, appropriations must be made to take the place of lost European payments.

"There must be consolidations, the dropping of many bureaus and commissions," said Senator Smoot. "We must do away with agencies that sprouted during prosperity, but have outlived their purpose."

GERMANY WILL NOT PAY $7,800,000 DUE TOMORROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—Germany will not pay the $7,800,000 installment due Sept. 30 on her claims and army of occupation debt to the United States, it was announced today by Secretary of the Treasury Mills.

Secretary Mills revealed that the German government had signified its inability to pay, and that in accordance with an assurance given the German ambassador to the United States on June 30 he had waived the ninety day notice required under the debt funding agreement of 1930 between Germany and the United States.

Two installments on the German debt have already been postponed under the general moratorium, though the United States paid Germany during the debt holiday $18,000,000 owed to German citizens as the result of claims decisions.

The payments due on Sept. 30 consisted of 20,400,000 reichsmarks, or approximately $4,800,000, due on claims settlements, and 12,650,000 reichsmarks, or approximately $3,000,000, due in payment of army of occupation costs.

The claims payment was postponed for two years with interest to run at 5 per cent, while the army cost payment was postponed for 2½ years with interest at 3⅝ per cent.

Poland, Estonia, and Latvia recently employed the 90 day clause to serve notice that they would be unable to pay $1,252,000 on Dec. 15.

Fireman Is Injured While Fighting Flames.

Five race horses were burned to death and more than forty others were driven to safety when fire attacked the southwest end stables at the Hawthorne race track in Stickney last night. Excluding the loss of the animals, the property damage was estimated at $50,000 by John Schank, president of the Chicago Business Men's Racing association. One fireman was slightly hurt.

One of the horses destroyed was said to be Flash o' Light, owned by Tony Jenicke. The others were not identified. Three of them were trapped in the stables assigned to the horses of Emil Denemark, west side automobile dealer. Among the horses imperiled were Josephine D., well known on Chicago tracks; Rough Rider, Alcove, and Bess Cloy, owned by Denemark.

Flames Spread Rapidly.

The fire started from unknown causes in stable No. 1, assigned to the Denemark horses, and spread quickly to adjoining sections and a large feed barn. Firemen were summoned from Cicero, Chicago, and Berwyn.

Prompt action on the part of stable boys prevented a much larger loss of horses. Several of these attendants risked their lives to open stable doors and drive the animals to the outside. Most of the horses dashed madly across the fields and into village streets, a few galloping a mile in their fright. Early this morning some of the runaway horses still were at large, and this prevented complete identification of the horses killed.

Mostly Young Horses.

Most of the animals were yearlings or two year olds. None, it was said, was especially noted although a few bore local reputations. Among the owners whose horses were imperiled were Mrs. G. Miller, wife of Ben Miller, superintendent of the track; Jack Bainton, J. M. McCoole, and Jerry Sullivan. Two of Mrs. Miller's racers are Mother's Choice and Copely Square. Bainton has four horses, McCoole two, and Sullivan two.

Preliminary investigation indicated that the fire was of accidental origin. Denemark said that it was probable that a lantern or a lighted cigarette stub might have been responsible.

Middle Aged Bandit Robs Theater Cashier of $36

Miss Edith Halperin, cashier of the Alamo theater, 3639 Chicago avenue, was robbed of $36 by a middle aged bandit last night. The man leveled what appeared to be a pistol at her and demanded the theater receipts. Later Miss Halperin told police the supposed gun might have been a cigaret case.

DENIES CHARGES OF MISCONDUCT MADE BY WIFE

Everard C. Elliott, electrical superintendent of the Universal Portland Cement corporation, Indiana Harbor, appeared in the South Chicago court yesterday and denied accusations of his wife who was before the court on a disorderly conduct charge.

The accusations of the wife, Mrs. Cora Elliott, 54 years old, 8323 Jeffrey avenue, became a court matter after she had written threatening letters to a number of women, and accused them of misconduct with her husband. Carl Olberg 8015 Kingston avenue, a truck driver, whose wife, Cora, received one of the letters, swore out a warrant against Mrs. Elliott.

Mrs. Elliott produced a letter yesterday in which her husband admitted that he had been friendly with a colored woman in Gary ten years ago.

"Did you write that letter?" asked Judge Jay Schiller.

"I did," Elliott replied, "but it's not true. She promised to quit nagging me if I would write a confession."

Judge Schiller continued the case until Dec. 31. He indicated that he would discharge Mrs. Elliott if her behavior is good until then.

2 ASSASSINS FAIL TO KILL EDITOR; END OWN LIVES

CALCUTTA, India, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Two men committed suicide by poison tonight after failing in an attempt to assassinate Sir Alfred Watson, editor of the Statesman, a daily newspaper.

Sir Alfred was shot in both shoulders as he was motoring in the Maidan, a large parklike area in the heart of Calcutta. A third member of the group that tried to kill him escaped. Police found the automobile they used abandoned outside the city.

One of the bullets fired at the editor struck his chauffeur, who was seriously wounded, and another grazed the hand of Mrs. Rose Gross, his secretary.

BERENGER URGES FRANCE NOT TO PAY WAR DEBTS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 28.—Senator Henri Berenger, who negotiated the Franco-American debt accord, again took the stand today that war debts and reparations are indissolubly linked, and that since France is cancelling reparations, the United States must cancel war debts.

The senator's article is one of a series appearing daily in the evening paper Liberte. The tenor of all these articles is that France must not pay war debts, and in order to rouse popular opinion against their payment the paper has organized what it calls a "general taxpayers' league."

5 cups a day is not too much! ..if the coffee is DATED

Morning, afternoon or evening, you need no longer deny yourself a sociable extra cup of coffee. When it's Chase & Sanborn's DATED Coffee—it's good for you.

YES—we Americans think coffee is the greatest drink on earth!

New scientific findings have done away with that ancient superstition about "too much" coffee:—

It's the rancid oil in stale coffee that's harmful. A frequent cause of the headaches, sleeplessness, indigestion, often attributed to coffee itself.

We know now that the average man or woman has a "coffee tolerance" of 5 cups a day of FRESH COFFEE—just the amount a real coffee lover likes to drink!

Because of this, Chase & Sanborn instituted DATED coffee.

Coffee rushed from the roasting ovens to your grocer by swift trucks. Every pound stamped with an expiration date. And no can allowed to stay on the grocer's shelf after its date has expired.

SCIENTIFIC AUTHORITY

Present scientific knowledge establishes the fact that the average man or woman has a coffee "tolerance" of fully 5 cups a day. "Tolerance" means the ability of one's body to receive and utilize and enjoy without the slightest bad effect. But—that coffee must be fresh! The regular drinking of stale coffee has bad effects on the digestion.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE RAILROAD INQUEST.

Walter H. Bennett, New York banker, has made public the names of men accepting place on the new commission for the study of the railroads. The acceptances include those of Calvin Coolidge and Al Smith. The inquiry into railroad affairs, prompted by the condition of the roads, is backed by insurance companies, banks, investment organizations and educational institutions whose welfare is involved in railroad securities. Their interests, threatened by the precarious state of the American railroad as a national institution, sufficiently indicate how this service is woven into the economic life of the country. Mr. Bennett says that the "present financial condition of the railroads is a matter of grave concern." A moderate statement.

Private enterprise begins an inquiry and the need seems to be imperative, but there is a public body which knows all about the railroads. It should. It has control of them. The interstate commerce commission represents an absolute government control of the rails. It is an instrument of a highly socialized state which pretends to be one of democratic doctrine and individual initiative. It fixes rates, says yes or no to plans of organization and keeps the railroad executives and lawyers in its anterooms. It has been making a physical examination of the properties for years at the cost of millions. Law binds the roads as to earnings and terms of employment. They are merely operating agencies of a government which interferes with profit making and management, but which, until the R. F. C. was forced on the scene, accepts no responsibility for losses.

The government can look at the railroads and behold its work. As it has the power to destroy it might be thought to have the power to rescue, but the one will be used and the other will not. These are the results of a planned society as applied to the carriers. If the railroad executives could see their way out it would do no good. Before the bureaucracy would act upon a complaint, recommendation or plea it would be too late. The good which might have been done will be lost in the injury which has been done.

The citizens who will undertake to study the roads cannot within the time allowed find out a tenth of what the interstate commerce commission knows. When these citizens have discovered causes of disaster they cannot act. The government, operating through its commission, could act now, and will not.

The planned scheme for the railroads sees its victim in exhaustion and, able to bring it to such a condition, is incompetent to get it out, although fully authorized to do so. From a lamentable state the roads go to a calamitous one, with the R. F. C. just barely averting the worst from time to time by giving a government dole to the institution the interstate commerce commission has starved to death. Of the crimes which have been committed in the United States in the hybrid experiment with state socialism the crime against the railroads is easily first up to date.

TEXAS AND MANCHUKUO.

Once before in our times part of the world tried to say to a large but smaller part: "You came too late." The nation thus counseled was Germany and the purpose advised against was the acquisition of colonies. We remember the ambition as for a "place in the sun." The nations which said the time had passed when explorers and soldiers could go out to extend national boundaries and annex new territories were already well provided with lands abroad. They had not come too late. They had started on their search and seizure with Columbus.

A state of repose had been reached, an equilibrium which the possessing nations thought it immoral to disturb. Germany could not admit the point, but it was insisted upon with consequences which even the winners would not take on themselves now of their own free will.

This episode seems to be in a way of being repeated. Japan desires to safeguard its future by taking over control of Manchuria, on the mainland, by creating and fostering a dependent state of great natural wealth. The Japanese say they do not expect to colonize it because their people will not go into the country and settle there, but they want to add its resources to their economy. They do not accept the moral prohibitions which particularly Mr. Stimson's policy seeks to erect against them. Again the injunction is issued, "You come too late." It must be confessed as true that the nations which issue it, none other being so forward as the United States, have built their property and their prestige upon such foundations as they say Japan shall not use. It is apparently sufficient for them to argue that there was a time for this and the present is not the time, but that will not be satisfactory to the scolded nation which does not believe a rule made by sated countries to be a mandate upon an appetent one.

A morality which proceeds from a full stomach to an empty one will appear hypocritical to the latter and that quality of statesmanship is no good in a situation which becomes as strained as the present day relationship of Japan and the United States. If over here Mr. Stimson is the only one excited, in Japan every one seems to be excited, and that is not good.

For the new state of Manchukuo Japan can find many equivalents. It might be noted that the Italian king is going to Africa to look over new acquisitions and that there is talk of an Italian empire. Possibly an Italian emperor could emerge from Mussolini's shadow. Some of the newly found soil occupied by European nations is quite fresh. Much of it is not old, historically. Japan, looking about for parallels along which its conduct travels, might observe Texas, or for more recent although lesser examples, Haiti and Nicaragua, even if nothing at all were to be made of Guam and the Philippines.

"You came too late." Is the phrase worth a war?

A POINT OF HONOR.

A point of honor is involved in the 20 million dollar bond issue to be voted upon at the November election. The bond issue should be approved. It will be approved if the voters, and particularly the property owners among them, understand the issues involved.

In January of this year there was no money at hand to continue relief to the unemployed. The legislature had authorized the issuance of several million dollars in Cook county bonds for relief purposes, but the bonds could not be sold for lack of buyers. Cook county's credit was exhausted. There was therefore grave danger that relief work would have to be discontinued in midwinter with all the consequences of human suffering and perhaps civil disorder that might be expected to flow from widespread hunger and cold.

The relief problem was largely Chicago's problem and the downstate members of the legislature might have allowed Chicago to stew in its own juice. They did not do so. They accepted a plan which in a measure jeopardized the taxpayers in their own districts in order to give relief to the sufferers in Chicago. The plan which was adopted was based on the fact that, though Cook county's credit was exhausted, the state of Illinois could borrow.

This was the arrangement reached last January. The state was authorized to sell up to 20 million dollars in tax notes. The notes were to be redeemed through the issuance of 20 million dollars in bonds if the voters at the forthcoming election approve the bond issue. If the referendum goes against the bond issue, the repayment of the notes becomes a charge against every taxpaying property owner in the state, and in effect will about double the portion of his taxes destined for state purposes. If the bond issue is approved it is provided that the bonds are to be repaid, principal and interest, from the counties' share of the gasoline taxes in proportion to the amount of the relief funds expended in the various counties.

The arrangement was somewhat complicated, but was the simplest and, indeed, the only constitutional means which presented itself at the time for meeting a grave emergency. The Chicago members of the legislature and numerous unofficial spokesmen for Chicago pledged their support for the referendum, a pledge which they are now endeavoring to fulfill. It may be taken for granted that, if the pledge is not redeemed, downstate will show far more than its normal reluctance to support measures put forward for Chicago's welfare in future.

As the plan worked out, $18,750,000 of the state's tax notes were sold and no less than 94 per cent of the money so obtained was expended for relief in Cook county. If the bond issue is defeated the property owners of Cook county, who are unable now to bear the tax load upon them, will be required to shoulder a tax increase. If the bond issue is approved there will be no additional burden upon real estate, but Cook county's share of the gasoline taxes will be reduced from something like $4,500,000 to something like $2,700,000. That will be the maximum reduction in the first year when interest charges are heaviest. As the repayment of the bonds proceeds the interest charges will decrease.

The honor of the community, the hope of future friendly coöperation between Cook county and downstate, and the interest of property owners all over the state are all on the side of approval of the referendum.

A TIMELY HINT TO PRIVATE ENTERPRISE.

In a report of a special committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce protesting the invasion of private business by government agencies a timely hint to business is included. If government competition with private enterprise, says the report, is to cease, private enterprise must not call upon government for services it can and ought to perform for itself.

The point is made frequently by the proponents of government extension. But it does not invalidate government competition as a policy. Both parties are on the wrong track. Private enterprise is responsible for much government extension, and it is to be hoped will now realize that in seeking temporary advantages it is preparing its own injury. At this time there have been forced upon us repeated resorts to government, but they began long before the depression, and even now, when emergency conditions make them seem expedient or necessary, they should be kept at a minimum. And especially we ought to recognize that they represent at best necessary evils and a policy injurious in the long run. If we are not to have the eventual complete socialization of private enterprise we must know where our increasing resorts to government are taking us and organized business should resist the tendency and discipline those of its members who take advantage of it for their own special interest. There is much prating about socialism by individuals who are assisting it heedlessly.

DISAPPOINTING TAXES.

[New York Evening Post.]

While the federal treasury reports total revenue collections of $79,940,000 in August, an increase of $11,546,000 over those for the same month of last year and of $18,253,000 over July of this year, the yield from the new taxes has proved disappointing. It has fallen 58 per cent below treasury estimates. The new gasoline tax produced $3,550,000 less than expected and the tax on bank checks showed a discrepancy of more than $3,000,000. The most striking deficiency was with regard to the tax on telegraph and telephone messages, amounting to $1,770,000, or 94 per cent. Should this nonproductivity of the new imposts continue, congress at its coming session will have to devise new means of revenue. Resort may be had to the sales tax, for which increased support is indicated.

THERE'S A COMET IN THE SKY! It's Brooks' comet, but it doesn't make any special difference just whose comet it is; the big fact is that it's a comet, and in older days the appearance of a comet was always a portent of disaster. So much so that the churches put "Lord, save us from the Devil, the Turk, and the comet" in the litany. And now here comes Brooks' comet right when we've got worries enough already to keep us awake half the night.

THE REPUBLICANS will probably think it means the elevation of the governor of a populous eastern state whose name (the governor's, not the state's) begins with R to the presidency. Nervous Democrats say they fear it means their ticket will be elected unanimously, and they believe a minority party, no matter how insignificant (even if it only carry one county), is best for the country. And the drys are afraid that the comet may mean that the 18th, the Volstead act, and the Jones 5 and 10 law are all going to get a swift kick in the pants right away, and the wets are afraid the comet means that beer will be legalized before the new breweries and distilleries get their roofs on and their bottles ready.

NOW, DON'T THINK that fear of the comet is just a silly superstition. It means disaster. Look what happened to the Cubs yesterday! And, oh gosh, what about today?

Grandmother Steele's Sampler.

When she embroidered staggering x, y, z's
Upon that saffron piece of hand-loomed cloth,
Her youth was pink, the world sky-hung with dreams.
Completing work postponed in early youth.
She sewed serenely, summer afternoons,
Until love came, and in the following year—
Before the phlox, after delphinium,
It had already found her garden seat;
And deftly then her sampler pattern grew
As though somehow she knew the twisted silk
Was emblematic of her future life.

She drew long threads into their amber lengths,
Embroidered "Love is like a crystal urn
That holds two hearts." The hearts she made in red,
But damson days of autumn-seeing plum,
Brought mellow colors, deepened the design:
By then she knew the fate of crystal urns,

The years went by, half on one century—
Before she made these wreaths of immortelle
And stitched and-so-forth to this field of gold.

Gazing on the beautiful lambrequins that graze the lower half of Mr. Venizelos' countenance, we respectfully ask the copy reader who wrote that caption if it would not have been much more accurate to say that the premier won by a hair? BOTULISM AND PRESERVED FOODS.

THE old term ptomaine poisoning is no longer used among those who try to keep up with the times. Instead of that, we speak of botulism and of food poisoning. The first of these terms is based on facts, and, since it is not difficult to pronounce or spell, it is liable to stick. The second—food poisoning—is easy to remember and comes easy to the tongue, but it is too indefinite. In time it will be retained only as a group name, and various kinds of food poisoning will be known by their own names.

Botulism has not had the newspaper notice that was given it several years ago. The reason is that the canning industry knows all about it and has made its products safe. In the old days one canner could cause many cases by putting out a large batch of bad product.

But while making safe commercially canned goods of American origin has put an end to the old fashioned, dramatic outbreaks of botulism the disease is not due to disappear—not, at least, for many years. It is caused by a well known bacillus and this organism is found in the soil in many parts of the world. It is not killed by boiling temperatures and it thrives under such conditions as many canned goods supply. A great many people put up their own vegetables, fruits, and meats with such apparatus as they have in their kitchens. For these several reasons botulism is liable to stay with us for a long time, and the facts about it should be spread abroad.

Drs. Allen and Ecklund report three epidemics of it in North Dakota. One is an outbreak which occurred nearly forty years ago. It was caused by eating canned oysters. All who were poisoned in this outbreak died as a result. An epidemic in 1930 caused four deaths. Another in 1931 caused thirteen deaths.

In the 1931 outbreak seventeen persons had attended a party. One of the dishes eaten was a salad of canned carrots, peas, and string beans served on lettuce and garnished with whipped cream. The carrots, peas, and beans were home canned, having been put up in a farm kitchen and by means of the ordinary kitchen equipment. When an investigation was made some of these canned vegetables were found to be sour, to be biting, and to have a "limburger" taste. One of the guests did not eat the salad. The other sixteen sickened and only three recovered.

Taste, odor, and appearance, in a sense, are good signs of danger. In another, they are not. Occasionally a batch of contaminated canned stuff tastes and smells good, and occasionally the stuff is so very poisonous that tasting it may prove fatal. Trying it on the chickens is safer.

As a rule, botulism does not develop promptly and does not cause vomiting and purging, as we expect when we think of it as food poisoning. It is not a digestive disturbance. The effects are felt by the nervous system. They are: Double vision, muscle weakness, and paralysis of breathing. So far from causing prompt symptoms one may feel well for several days and then develop a fatal illness. One of these North Dakota cases visited his sick friends, went to the funerals of several, attended the coroner's inquest, gave testimony, helped put out a fire, and then, nearly five days after the party, developed his first symptoms of botulism, after which he speedily became worse and was dead a day later.

The methods of prevention are: 1. A careful selection of foods to be canned. 2. Rejection of all overripe and spoiled goods. 3. Great care in cleaning and cutting away unfit parts. 4. Use of vinegar or other acid in the pack when feasible, since botulism bacillus does not thrive in sour stuff. 5. Careful examination of canned food before serving it. 6. If in doubt try it on a chicken.

BRAN AND MILK.

T. A. writes: Is it harmful to eat a dish of all bran with milk as a cereal every morning? I have been told that continuous use of it would irritate the stomach. Is this true?

REPLY.

People with spastic colon may be harmed by eating bran. What you have heard relates to that group. It is helpful to others.

LOW BLOOD PRESSURE.

Mrs. B. W. writes: What causes low blood pressure? Is there any certain food I might eat that would help me?

REPLY.

You refer to a chronic state of low pressure. Among the causes are: Starch and sugar indigestion, prolapse of the organs, faulty training, and possibly insufficiency of one secretion of the suprarenal glands. Some cases are improved by living on a diet that is rich in meat, eggs, and other proteins, in fats, oil, and greases, and low in breads, cereals, pastries, desserts, and sweets. Some are improved by wearing abdominal supporters. Some train themselves to become interested in affairs and especially in competitive sports.

NOT LEGALLY FREE.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I had an argument with a friend who says there is a law in Illinois that a couple married, and husband or wife deserted, and not heard of nor seen in ten years or more, were legally free without divorce proceedings. I did not think it could be true. Who is right? R. T.

He is mistaken. They are not legally free.

LACK OF FUNDS DELAYS.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—[Friend of the People.]—When it rains the sewers in our locality are insufficient to carry off the water, resulting in our basement being flooded at times to a depth of three or four feet. Can't something be done to remedy this situation? P. B.

The trunk line sewers in this southeastern portion of Chicago, in general in the area bounded by 39th street, 87th street, South Ashland avenue, and Lake Michigan, are much inadequate, and have been so for some years. The city and the sanitary district are agreed on a plan for the construction of main interceptors and relief sewers for this southeastern area, the sanitary district to pay for the former and city to finance the latter by special assessments. The sanitary district cannot at this time finance this project, nor is it desirable to now spread special assessments. For these reasons the construction program is being delayed. I am unable to state as to the time when the project will go forward.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 29, 1916.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE.—Thiepval, one of our greatest triumphs, was a staggering blow to the German military prestige. The natural strength of the position is well known. With its underground defenses it was a veritable Gibraltar and the Germans never believed it could be taken. German officers captured confess they had regarded it as impregnable. The Thiepval attack was made in the afternoon. In the line of attack lay a perfect maze of trenches, studded with machine gun posts and connecting subterranean passages. The dugouts were beyond a row of shattered remnants of the apple trees which had been for two months the landmark by which the site of Thiepval was known. Tanks were used in the attacks and did valuable service. Against the tanks the machine guns were powerless, while around behind it our men stormed positions with bombs. There was a short period of hand to hand combat before the machine gunners and the rest of the defenders who had not been killed surrendered.

LONDON.—Reuter's correspondent at Athens says a telegram has been received there from Canea giving the summary of the proclamation of a provisional government by former Premier Venizelos and Admiral Coundouriotis. The main points of the document, says the correspondent, constitute a comparison of the Greece of today with the Greece of 1912-1913. Reports that a general mobilization of Greek troops had been ordered are premature, but such an order is expected shortly. Following King Constantine's decision in favor of an immediate declaration of war on Bulgaria, Premier Kalogeropoulos indicated that mobilization would logically follow.

PETROGRAD.—The Russian official war statement says: "Attempts by advanced posts of the enemy to approach our trenches west of Riga were repulsed."

BERLIN.—German troops, after heavy fighting, the German official statement says, recaptured sections of the positions which they had lost near Korytniza, and even pushed on past the positions previously held by them. Weak Russian advances on the River Aa, west of Riga, and between Miadziol and Narocz were easily repulsed.

ROME.—The war office gave out this report on Austrian front operations: "The enemy's artillery directed an active fire against Limone on Lake Garda and also against Italian positions between the Avissio and Vanoi Clemen valleys. On the Asiago plateau our infantry raided a strong Austrian entrenchment, destroying it with hand grenades. In the upper Cordevola valley the enemy again attacked the position we captured recently near the summit of Bonta Sief. He was repulsed with heavy losses."

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y.—Angry to the heart at Richard Olney's flings, Charles E. Hughes, speaking here before the Republican state convention in the hall where he was first nominated for governor ten years ago, replied so vigorously to the former secretary of state that 7,000 persons sprang to their feet and went slambang crazy for five minutes. It was a new Hughes that the state Republicans saw in action, a Hughes burning with indignation. Mr. Olney's criticism, published Sept. 23 in the course of a defense of the President's course in the Adamson bill matter, brought about the explosion.

CHICAGO.—Eugene S. Pike, father of City Controller Eugene R. Pike, one of Chicago's oldest and best known residents, is seriously ill at St. Luke's hospital. Mr. Pike has been a resident of Chicago since 1867. He was born eighty years ago near Cleveland, O. He resided for many years in what was called the "millionaires'" district, which was in Prairie avenue, between 18th and 22d streets. His present residence is at 1550 North State parkway.

WORLD SERIES

First Game—Oct. 8, 1916.

BOSTON.—[By I. E. Sanborn.]—By the exceedingly tenuous margin of half an inch the Boston Red Sox won the opening game of the world's series of 1916 from Brooklyn after a battle that produced the best and the worst baseball ever seen in the big event. The score was 6 to 5 at the finish, but it was closer than that, for the Robins had the bases full with two out in the ninth and the tying run was within a yard of the home plate when Scott's throw to first base reached Hobitzel's mitt less than an inch in front of Daubert's spikes for the third out. Four of the Brooklyn runs were scored in the ninth inning, Carl Mays replacing Ernest Shore on the slab for Boston after three runners had come in. Boston punished Rube Marquard so hard in the seventh that Pfeffer took his place as Brooklyn's pitcher. A crowd of more than 36,000 saw the game.

THE WHEAT LOAN TO CHINA.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—Trade reports indicate that a sale to China of 15 million bushels of United States wheat is practically consummated. It is stated that credit will be offered to China to enable her to purchase this wheat. The sale from this country is to be handled by the Farmers' National Grain corporation, which will discount the Chinese notes through the Reconstruction Finance corporation. It is definitely stated that this deal is being made with the consent and encouragement of President Hoover.

Several points in a matter of this kind should be brought to the knowledge of the taxpayer. In the first place, Canada has been selling wheat freely to China recently and for cash—not on credit. It is useless to pretend that notes of the Chinese government have any particular value. Certainly no bank would discount them. Consequently the Reconstruction Finance corporation is practically making a gift to Chinamen with money taken from the pockets of American taxpayers. This is doubtless a noble act of generosity, but the motive behind it is perhaps not so virtuous. Furthermore, it is obviously a rank abuse of the purpose for which the Reconstruction Finance corporation was formed and, to put it plainly, is an act of theft of United States taxpayers' money. The object, of course, is to enhance the price of United States wheat for political purposes.

United States-Canadian relations have been steadily growing worse since the Smoot-Hawley tariff reduced trade between these countries. The gift of United States wheat to China will take away that much business from Canada and will create fresh resentment in that quarter.

Those who intend to vote for Hoover should carefully analyze his stand against a dole for starving fellow countrymen while taxing Americans to furnish bread to coolies 5,000 miles away.

OFFER OF A HAT.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Now comes Alice MacKenzie, who has a grievance against some one, and says that teachers of 15 years' experience have been let out of the school system and have been replaced by carpenters and seamstresses with less than a grammar school education. You probably receive many more contributions to this column than you can accommodate. When some one contributes an article containing what purports to be facts, isn't there some one in your organization who can sense the probability of the truth or falsity of such statements? However, if Alice MacKenzie will hunt me up through the phone book I will try to put her on the right track and to make it worth her while I will reimburse her for her efforts, and if she can prove the charges she made I will buy her a new hat.

SAMUEL TUCKER.

A NEW RACKET.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—A new racket is being worked on the north side. Housewives are the victims. A neat looking woman rings your bell and, putting up a hard luck story, asks if you have any clothes to be cleaned. Her father has a cleaning shop at a certain address and she is out getting orders. She hands in a card. If you have a gown or two to be cleaned you give them to her and, yes, she gives you a receipt for them. You feel a glow of satisfaction at a good deed done and sit back and wait for their return. I have friends who have waited three weeks. To be sure there is a cleaning establishment at the given address, but the owner has no daughter or wife and no dresses of yours. So papa has to buy mamma some new clothes. F. W. J.

LOCKING THE BARN DOOR.

Waukegan, Ill., Sept. 26.—This Insull affair is another reminder that about all the action we can expect from the powers that should be in matters such as this is a disposition to lock the door after the horse has been stolen.

O. S. RYAN.

AN OVERSIZE TRUCK.

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 23.—Last Monday morning I was called by our firm in Evansville at my residence in Evansville, stating that our truck, hauling merchandise from Evansville to Milwaukee, had been arrested in Niles, Ill., because the truck was several inches too long.

Immediately I jumped in my car and drove over to Niles. When I reached there the judge informed me that our truck had left and it was necessary for him to impose a fine of $10 and costs, amounting to $15 in all. I doubt seriously if there was $20 profit in this merchandise going to Milwaukee, which our expenses amounted to, including long distance telephone calls, fine and costs, as it is necessary for manufacturers in our line to make close prices in order to meet the competition of penitentiary made merchandise.

The state of Illinois is trying to raise a fund for the unemployed, and our factory in trying to keep the men employed is doing its part. I am giving employment in this state and also paying taxes in the state of Illinois. It certainly appears to me that little consideration is given to institutions that are giving employment.

Our truck driver stated on his return from Milwaukee that the judge made the remark that it was too bad it was necessary for him to be fined. I presume the judge was sincere in his statement, but at the same time he did not fail to impose the fine.

Our man also stated the truck was measured in several towns in Illinois and Wisconsin, but they excused him, as it was only a few inches over the ruling of the Illinois highway commission, which ruling I understand went into effect July 9.

I made a second trip to Niles to prevail on the judge to waive this fine, but my efforts were without avail.

MR. BUSH AS GASOLINE DEALER.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Any and every person in the United States has a right to engage in as many lawful and gainful pursuits as he desires and can handle. More power to Guy Bush if he can handle two of them well! He employs others and pays them salaries; his service and product are as good as offered at other stations; he is an American citizen who spends his money in the United States. Would the squawkers do as much?

The idea that a man should give up the business he has worked for because some one else has less than he is absurd. He has the capital invested, he takes the losses, he does the worrying and assumes the responsibility. Your correspondent, Keen Observer, would not suggest that he give up the business if it were running at a loss, would he? Mr. Bush is taking that chance—as are all employers and business men today. They absorb the losses as well as the profits, don't forget that. If the public would rather buy from some one they admire, who is a good sport, who conducts his business well, it is their privilege and is the only sincere way of showing a friendly feeling for a great ball player and a responsible business man.

RUM SOAKED BUMS.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—It is getting to be almost impossible to attend either St. James Episcopal church or the Holy Name cathedral without being molested by beggars, who work in pairs on either side of the streets so no one can escape, especially women.

They are not deserving cases, but rum soaked bums, and the same is true on the Lake Shore drive around six in the evening.

Couldn't a policeman show up occasionally at these times? This has gone on for over a year and does not give strangers anything but the worst impression of Chicago. SARA SMITH.

SIX AIR MAIL LINES PUT ON PROFIT BASIS

More Business and Lower Operating Expenses.

Increased passenger and express volume and decreased operating costs have placed six of the air mail lines in the United States on a profitable basis this year, it is learned from authoritative air transport sources. Officials of the lines refuse to state their actual earnings, however, for fear of further reductions in the rate of air mail payments by the government and for fear that their stockholders will ask for dividends. All funds are needed for further expansion, it was said.

The six lines are operating profitably now, it is said, but their profits would disappear if the air mail payments rate were cut drastically. According to the authority, government air mail expenditures are double the government's receipts. On the other hand, the mail payment rate has been cut steadily since 1929, from an average of $1.09 per mile flown for that fiscal year to an average of 60 cents per mile flown for the fiscal year 1932. In the second quarter of this year the average payment per mile flown fell to a new low of 53 cents.

Three on Border Line.

Three other domestic air mail lines were said to be on the border line—their operating expense is cut to the minimum and they are expected to become profitable from operations alone as volume increases with business recovery.

Of the many air lines which carry no mail, only two are said to be operating at a profit.

The increased volume of passenger and express transport that has made six domestic air mail lines profitable in spite of decreasing mail payments is shown in the department of commerce figures for the first six months of this year, compared with the same period of last year. These figures include, however, all domestic lines, both mail and nonmail.

During the six months 217,588 passengers were flown, compared to 169,816 last year, and 441,192 pounds of express were carried, compared to 247,422 last year. Passenger miles—that is, one passenger flown one mile, which is regarded by authorities as a more accurate means of reckoning—increased from 40,855,654 for the first half of last year to 54,534,746 the first half of this year.

Mail Loads Show Decrease.

Meanwhile domestic mail loads decreased from 4,332,714 pounds for the first half of last year to 4,081,270 pounds for the first half of this year. Mail payments increased from $9,169,280 for the first half of last year to $9,198,060 for the first half of this year. Mail miles flown, however, increased from 18,129,168 last year to 22,204,295 this year.

One authority says that operating expense has been cut from an all time high of about $2.50 a mile for domestic flying four years ago to about 80 cents a mile now.

It is stated that the cost of operation has been reduced largely through the experience the air line operators have had in the last few years in operations on a large scale. Particularly, the cost of maintenance has been cut by the establishment of large mass production [overhaul] shops.

CHILEAN REVOLT GROWS; REBELS SEIZE GENERAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Sept. 28. — Chile is anxiously awaiting developments in the northern port of Antofagasta, where Gen. Pedro Vignola, commander of the garrison there, has adopted a rebellious attitude. Gen. Vignola yesterday wired Provisional President Blanche that the northern territory is united in a desire to terminate military intervention in politics and restore civilian rule.

Gen. Armando Marin, who flew to Antofagasta today under government orders to relieve Gen. Vignola, was taken prisoner on his arrival. Crowds of civilians, who made a hero of the rebellious general, obstructed the landing of Gen. Marin's plane and there were hostile demonstrations until he was taken into custody.

Little news is allowed to trickle through by the censors, but private messages indicate a serious movement in the north.

POLICE SLAYER PLEADS GUILTY; GETS 17 YEARS

Nicholas Bunonica, 22 years old, pleaded guilty yesterday to the murder of Policeman John Nerad of Cicero and was sentenced to serve seventeen years in the penitentiary by Judge Philip L. Sullivan in Criminal court. Four jurors had been selected to hear the case when Bunonica decided to plead guilty.

Bunonica was indicted with Jack Lawrence, 23 years old, for the fatal shooting of the policeman, which followed the robbery of a shoe store at 4111 West Madison street on June 10, 1929. A revolver was smuggled to Lawrence while he awaited trial in the county jail. He ran amuck, shot and killed Guard Leo Nicholas, and then committed suicide.

Information furnished by Bunonica had led to the arrest of Lawrence in Holland, Mich., shortly after Policeman Nerad was shot. For that reason the state recommended a sentence of not more than twenty years. The state held that Lawrence and Bunonica robbed the shoe store and rode to Cicero in a taxicab. Followed by a police squad, they engaged in a gun battle at the rear of 5100 West 25th street, where Nerad was killed.

N. Y. VOLUNTEERS PLAN TO CLOTHE 1,315,000 NEEDY

New York, Sept. 28.—[Special.]—Garments for 262,000 needy families, including about 1,315,000 persons, in New York City will be made from cotton and donated by the government.

An army of volunteers whose work will constitute the largest clothing operation to be undertaken by the New York chapter of the service agencies since the world war, will make the garments, according to a cooperative plan devised by the Red Cross and the emergency unemployment relief committee under Harvey D. Gibson, chairman.

This was announced jointly by the two organizations tonight.

DOUBT CLOUDS REPORT MISSING JAP PLANE FOUND

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Hope that a trace had been found near Anchorage, Alaska, of the missing Japanese good will flyers, aroused by an intercepted radio message late today, gave way tonight to uncertainty and silence.

The message, received by the naval radio station at St. Paul, Alaska, from the Japanese station at Otchishi, was relayed to the navy department. It read:

Believed Garbled.

It was believed at first to refer to the three Japanese flyers who disappeared last Saturday en route from Tokio for Nome and San Francisco and was sent to the Japanese embassy.

Subsequent developments, however, indicated the message may have been garbled and referred to an airplane carrying two Americans missing from Anchorage, Alaska, since Sunday.

Report Another Plane Found.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Two men reported tonight from Talkeetna, an outpost 114 miles north of here, they had found what they believed to be the missing Woodley plane, while flyers here said the search had undoubtedly been the origin of a report from a Japanese radio station that the lost Japanese good will plane might be safe.

The men said the plane was resting apparently undamaged on a bar in the Chulitna river, about 20 miles from Talkeetna. Tracks leading from it, they added, indicated that Pilot Arthur Woodley and his passenger, Harry Morton, an Anchorage attorney, were uninjured and had started to hike on to civilization.

QUIZ 43 IN CAMP OF JOBLESS ON WOMAN'S DEATH

Evanston police squads yesterday raided a collection of shacks near McCormick boulevard and Oakton street, Evanston, and arrested forty-three unemployed men who had established temporary homes there.

All the prisoners were questioned in connection with the murder of Miss Mabel Chenoweth, 60 years old, who was beaten to death in her candy store at 2712 Pratt boulevard early Tuesday. The only tangible clew to the killer's identity was the imprint of a tennis shoe in the store, and the footgear of the men taken into custody was examined to learn if there was any similarity. When no feet to fit the footprints were discovered the forty-three were released and allowed to go back to the McCormick boulevard camp.

Chief of Police William Freeman of Evanston ordered the arrests after he had received a letter informing him that four of the shack dwellers were murderers.

BAIN AND 3 AIDS TO BE ARRAIGNED NEXT TUESDAY

Indictments charging John Bain and three other officials of the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank with receiving deposits while the bank was insolvent were returned yesterday before Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court. The others named in the indictments are Bain's son, John H., his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, and Edward C. Barry, a vice president of the bank. The elder Bain was president of the Englewood bank, his son was assistant to the president, and Fisher was cashier. All of the defendants are named in three indictments and total bond of $9,000 each was set.

Judge Prystalski set the arraignment for next Tuesday on the plea of Asiastant State's Attorneys Harold Keele and Henry Seyfarth, who asked an early trial. The complainants are Nathan Wiggins, who deposited $33 in the bank; Benjamin L. Moody, who deposited $393, and John Klutsch, who deposited $160. The indictments were sought after the state expressed dissatisfaction with the result of the previous Bain trial, which grew out of the failure of the 12 Bain banks.

John Bain, tried without a jury by Judge John M. O'Connor on a conspiracy charge, was sentenced to one to five years in the penitentiary. Young Bain, Fisher, and a second son, Robert, were fined $1,000. Barry was not a defendant in the former trial.

Mrs. Helen Rentz, 23 years old, 6855 South State street, yesterday filed a bill for divorce in the Superior court, charging that her husband, Nicholas, threatened her life after she refused to act as hostess when he proposed to turn their home into a beer flat. She cited other instances of cruelty. The Rentzes were married on Oct. 23, 1919, and separated last June 2. They have two children, Lois, 8 years old, and Edward, 2 years old.

Two Held for Manslaughter.

Frank Vetter, 20 years old, 1735 East 83d street, was held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter by a coroner's jury yesterday, after he admitted he had a "half glass of beer" before his automobile killed Michael Wartz, 42 years old, 6947 Cornell avenue, Aug. 29, at 68th street and Stony Island avenue. The inquest was held in the Woodlawn hospital.

Gust Sierawski, 42 years old, 1754 Washburn avenue, was recommended held on the same charge by another coroner's jury when policemen testified he was drunk when his automobile killed Francis De Carlo, 14 years old, 1641 Washburn avenue, Monday.

De Carlo and two companions were standing on the sidewalk at Paulina and 13th streets when Sierawski drove onto the sidewalk and pinned the trio and another pedestrian against a wall. Sierawski refused to testify.

PAUL BERN'S WILL FILED FOR PROBATE; IGNORES 'OTHER WIFE'

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—The last will of Paul Bern, self-slain film executive, in which his wife, Jean Harlow, is named sole beneficiary and executrix, was filed in Superior court for probate today. The petition avers the estate will exceed $10,000 in value, which is the nearest to a valuation required under Cal. law. Bern had executed the will on July 29, about three weeks after his marriage to Miss Harlow, and five weeks prior to his death.

No mention was made in the document of "the other woman" in Bern's life, Dorothy Millette, who leaped to her death into the Sacramento river about 48 hours after Bern's body was found.

ARGENTINE HOUSE VOTES TO GO BACK INTO THE LEAGUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Sept. 28.—The chamber of deputies today approved the return of Argentina to the league of nations. The measure now goes to the senate. Argentina has been out of the league for ten years. She resigned when Germany was refused membership on an equal footing with the former allies.

The measure as passed by the chamber criticizes the Monroe doctrine. The league is notified that Argentina regards the doctrine as lacking effect in the western hemisphere.

League in Financial Difficulty.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The league of nations is in a bad way financially. This was revealed today when the proceedings of the recent secret council session were published. Reporting that only 64 per cent of the contributions for 1932 had been received up to Sept. 19, Carl Hambro of Norway, a member of the supervisory commission, asked that the true situation be disclosed to all league members.

Mexico Talks of Quitting.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Tellez was closely questioned at a recent senate session about the advisability of Mexico continuing its league of nations membership. A block of senators felt the expense of $60,000 annually which the league costs Mexico might better be spent for schools or roads.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

Wins First Victory in Caste War.

rance, ragged and servile, trying to keep out of the way of everybody. This is one of the untouchables. The nearby residences are of great beauty, then there are homes that look like packing boxes—houses patched with tin where live the outcasts.

Untouchables Win Point.

Gandhi's fast was effective in forcing an agreement between the caste Hindus and leaders of the depressed classes which for the latter doubles the number of legislative seats they are to hold and is said to remove their fear of political discrimination. It is regarded in some quarters as a move to retain control of the depressed 60 millions instead of letting them drift to opposition of Hinduism, which plans to dominate the nation. The untouchables also are to be permitted to enter public service and funds are set aside for their education.

This is to be followed by a campaign to open the temple doors to them, permit them in the schools and allow them the use of the village wells. British officials and missionaries long ago abolished the custom of making these unfortunates walk with branches to sweep away the dust their feet had polluted, and forcing them to carry private spittoons.

Win Partial Use of Temples.

The president of the All India Congress party now suggests new peace overtures to the government and says that the joy of settlement is great. London, after all, had the same end in view—agreement among the Hindus on their own political status in the future—but it was impossible until now.

The temples are open partially to the untouchables in several places. One on Poona hill permitted them a special gallery, but they could not go near the inner temple. This was unsatisfactory, so it was closed again.

Not far from the prison, along the banks of the Mula river, near burning ghats and smoldering fires of human bones, stand temples where many godlings are worshiped daily—a monkey god, an elephant god, a bull god, and other squatty stone figures are reverently approached. Hinduism, a great philosophical religion, embraces these and marks every person by birth.

Gandhi Ready to Fast Again.

Gandhi is ready to fast again in a few months unless the spirit of the pact is carried out. He says that is what he is living for and that he would delight in dying for the absolute eradication of untouchability. He wants a living pact sealed for an all-india brotherhood. He says that his life is of no consequence in contrast to this.

Wisely, however, he did not fast against this the last time, as it meant a certain end for him. He took a measurable victory instead. He has fasted many times before, once when Hindus and Moslems rioted, again when his wife did something he did not think right, and again against the actions of his pupils. Fasting as a method of political coercion is dangerous and apparently effective. Even the princes of India fear that it may be used against them in the federation plans. Tagore is starry eyed about it and says the fight will go on to the end.

All Bullfight Facts Are Told by Hemingway

His Genius for Honesty Shows in Book.

By Fanny Butcher.

ERNEST HEMINGWAY has quit the field of fiction for the field of hard fact in "Death in the Afternoon." In it he has written as completely about modern bullfighting as has any human living, probably. Not being an aficionado ("one who understands bullfights in general and in detail and still cares for them"—to quote Mr. Hemingway) and never having read of bullfighting before, except in fiction, I cannot compare his material with any assembled by any one else, but since there is no minute detail of the entire performance—the entire "art" as he feels it to be—which he does not describe, and make wholly comprehensible even to some one who never saw the inside of a blood-red enclosed ring, since he writes from personal observations of most of the great bullfighters of the present and the immediate past, since he includes in his remarkable volume "an explanatory glossary" which is so complete that to read it would be almost to know the whole story, and also sixty-three pages of as vivid photographs of bullfights and their participants and their casualties as have ever been assembled, I think that the supremacy of "Death in the Afternoon" as an informative book on bullfighting can be said to be unquestioned and unquestionable. Certainly the reader becomes through Mr. Hemingway an "aficionado" to the extent that he "understands bullfights in general and in detail," even if he can't be said to "still care for them."

ERNEST HEMINGWAY.

"Death in the Afternoon" is not for the squeamish, for, while it is mostly nothing more emotional than a mere setting down of facts, at times it reaches such heights of emotional writing as only Mr. Hemingway is capable of in his great genius for utter honesty. There are pages in the book which literally turn you inside out, not for the obvious reasons of their chronicling bloodshed and death, but for something horribly, honestly real in them. No slightest detail does he miss—often a phrase turns the trick (and perhaps the stomach). But that feeling is not like a sensation from anything one has eaten—but the grinding nausea of one's sudden spiritual realization that man—oneself—is a reed in the gale of forces wholly outside his own control. Of those forces the most commonly recognized, though by far the least terrifying, is sudden, violent death. "Death in the Afternoon" is death incarnate, and Mr. Hemingway looks upon it and records its functioning with an art which is supreme.

Page after page of the book will be merely the recitation of facts—as it should be, for the tension of the more dramatic moments would be unbearable—but at the most unexpected the author will consider life in general and the art of writing (for instance) in paragraphs which are as fine and as moving and as true as anything anybody has ever written (and humanly amusing, too. There is nothing of the solemn-bones about Ernest Hemingway).

"People in a novel," he writes, "not skillfully constructed characters must be projected from the writer's assimilated experience, from his knowledge, from his head, from his heart and from all there is in him. If he ever has luck as well as seriousness and gets them out entire they will have more than one dimension and they will last a long time. . . . If a writer of prose knows enough about what he is writing about he may omit things that he knows, and the reader, if the writer is writing truly enough, will have a feeling of those things as strongly as though the writer had stated them. The dignity of movement of an iceberg is due to only one-eighth of it being above water."

It is for such unexpected bits that one dares not skip a line, even when the recital of facts might pall a trifle on one not vitally interested in the subject of bullfighting.

Mr. Hemingway has invented an "Old Lady" with whom he converses now and then in the book. When the Old Lady asks him, "How is it young man, that you talk so much and write so long about these bullfights and yet are not a bullfighter yourself?" he answers, "I tried it in its simplest phases but without success," and explains his lack of success in detail, and at her suggesting "were there witnesses to these feats you tell of? Or do you just invent them as a writer?" he replies, "There are thousands of witnesses, although many have died since from injuries to their diaphragms or other inner parts caused by immoderate laughter."

One quality of "Death in the Afternoon" which strikes the reader all of a heap is the terrific emotional power of the absolutely unemotional honesty in it, a quality which "Farewell to Arms" had to a degree. It is, perhaps, Ernest Hemingway's greatest contribution to literature, his belief and his practicing it, that unadorned truth IS stranger, more moving, more powerful, than any possible fiction.

THICKER THAN WATER

The story of the Piera family in Chicago—through four generations. William Soskin says, in the New York Evening Post, that, although it is comparable to "Magnolia Street" and to G. B. Stern's "The Matriarch", it has an independent vitality that puts it in a class of its own.

Jimmy Cagney Gets More Pay as "Strike" Ends

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—The "one man strike" of Jimmy Cagney, $1,400 a week movie actor, against Warner Brothers studio, in quest of higher pay and changed working conditions, was adjusted today with a committee from the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Science acting as arbitrators. Cagney will resume work at the Warner studio next week.

Under Cagney's new working agreement he is reported to start at $1,750 a week, besides stipulated increases each six months he continues to have his option renewed.

Rutledge Tavern for the Fair Will Be Dedicated Saturday

The Rutledge tavern, replica of the timber hostlery in which Abraham Lincoln met and wooed Ann Rutledge, will be dedicated Saturday afternoon. The building is located on Leif Ericson drive among the World's Fair replicas of structures associated with the life of Lincoln.

A luncheon in honor of Miss Susanne E. Onstott of Forest City, Ill., granddaughter of Henry Onstott, who ran a copper shop in New Salem, and in whose home Lincoln lived, will be part of the dedication program.

Miss Onstott has placed her valuable collection of Lincolniana on exhibit at the Lincoln group. It includes a cedar cane that Lincoln whittled for Onstott, a hammer Lincoln used when surveying, articles sold from the Lincoln-Berry store, fire tongs from the Rutledge tavern and articles of furniture used by Lincoln.

School Achievement Clubs to Elect Officers Today

The achievement clubs in 185 Cook county schools will hold their annual elections tomorrow afternoon. A president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer are elected at each school from candidates nominated early in September. The balloting is done in regulation booths under the supervision of judges and clerks of election chosen by the student board of election commissioners at each school. The elections are part of a plan to make each school a working republic.

F. R. Chandler Continues His Bible Studies

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

"For age is opportunity no less Than youth itself, though in another dress."

Through the heavy paned doors, up the long wide stair, into the large high ceilinged library. There was Frank Randolph Chandler at his favorite window, dignified in black frock coat and wing collar, gentle in every manner.

Certainly Longfellow never found a better exponent of the philosophy he wrote into the lines above. For although the years are creeping up on Mr. Chandler—92, to be exact, this Oct. 2—he has found in the last score opportunity to follow through many of the things time didn't allow when he was taking part in the business and social life he watches now from his library window.

"Yes, it will soon be 92 years," he told me the other afternoon when I stopped to inquire about his birthday plans and his collection of old and rare editions of the Holy Bible, undoubtedly one of the finest to be found in Chicago. "Best of all, these last dozen years or so I have had time to enjoy and appreciate this library. From the window here I have watched four generations of society grow up."

It was 53 years ago that Mr. Chandler with his family moved into the three story red brick residence at 744 Rush street that he still occupies and that was once a favorite rendezvous of society. Eight years previous to this he had acquired the site and put up a frame house, but this building was seldom used, for during the 70s the Chandlers spent most of their time abroad. Mr. Chandler has always maintained an intimate association with London, in particular, because of his brother-in-law, Harry Gordon Selfridge, the London merchant and former Chicagoan.

"But the Bibles," he objected as we started to digress from the subject, "there are 81 in all."

And with this he took from his desk a catalogue of the old and rare volumes that are housed in a case in a corner of the library. It is like a view of paradise. There are unique editions, family Bibles several centuries old, Bibles written in many and varied tongues, and reference Bibles.

To the casual observer, at least, the unique editions, as Mr. Chandler has classified them, are the most interesting. There is the largest and most valuable among them — a heavy leatherbound copy of the Old and New Testaments printed in Dutch in 1702, valued especially for its 700 delicate engravings. There is the Lilliputian Bible in contrast, readable only with the magnifying glass set into the case that encloses it, and there is the "most handsome" Bible bound in wood from the Mount of Olives and carved and polished by oriental craftsmen in Jerusalem.

Still more there is the "star" Bible or "twentieth century" edition that Mr. Chandler has himself compiled and published. It is, as he explains, a "pure" version of the Bible that has come down to us, for it omits all of the irrelevancies. Stars replace the passages that have been deleted.

"All of the 'begats' in Genesis, and several of the stories concerning David," said Mr. Chandler. "These, for example, are indelicate and unnecessary passages that can easily be omitted. In my opinion they are not the word of God, but rather additions made in the early day.

"My whole interest in the Bible is based on this opinion," he went on to explain, "for as a child when I read the Scriptures through twice, from cover to cover, I was impressed with the abundance of irrelevant material. But it was not until recent years that I had the opportunity to do anything about it.

"My friends and many of my acquaintances in the ministry have approved this expurgated edition," he continued, "with one exception. This was a Baptist minister. He has insisted that 'the altered word of God is the work of satan.'"

During the last year Mr. Chandler has supplemented his study with an index to the Bible that assists, even the unacquainted, in locating a passage or verse.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

Copyright 1932 by King Features Syn., Inc.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

THE KEY TO THE SOLUTION.

"Come in, sergeant," smiled Prof. Fordney as he opened the door to Reynolds.

Over a cup of steaming coffee and with one of Fordney's fragrant Havanas between his teeth, Reynolds began:

"Just dropped in to run over the Younger case with you, if you don't mind."

"Fire away, my boy."

"Well, the doctor says that the cut behind his ear caused concussion all right, but that he was unquestionably drowned. We battered down the door and found Younger lying in only a few inches of water, his right arm outstretched, grasping the faucet.

"The key was on the bathroom floor, but some one could have locked it from the outside and thrown it over the opened transom.

"Morely said he was sitting in their living room (the apartment is L shaped and you can see into the bathroom, all right) when he happened to glance over and through the open window, saw Younger stand up, lose his balance, slip, hit his head on the back of the tub and lay unconscious. He says he ran around to the bathroom, found the door locked and called the police.

"Another thing, professor. The hinges of the bathroom door had recently been oiled. While we were busy removing the body, Morely closed the window. He wouldn't admit oiling the hinges, but we found an oil can hidden in his room. I've arrested him for murder."

Three Fabrics Win Favor for Evening Wear

Cire Satin, Sheer Wool, and Silk Used.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

NEXT winter's best evening gowns, at least the newest and the most spectacular models sponsored in recent fall collections, are seductively liquid. In the first place, after you have squandered your shekels for one, you'll start on a liquid diet so that you can be poured into the thing. Next, the most popular evening glory is the superslinky affair of gleaming cire satin. Evening gowns of this liquid looking stuff appear just like the black, shining wet pavements reflecting a thousand city lights after dark.

These gowns are cut and designed by experts who undoubtedly know more about the female anatomy than any one else in the world . . . these knowing wizards cut this beguiling new satin on the bias, on the straight, and at right angles, and contrive a gown that will make your best friends curl up with despair and green envy.

The skirts are almost as voluminous as the sleeves of the widest, newest 1933 models. The skirts fit cunningly about the hips and then swirl bell-like around the ankles.

The bodices, or rather the scant top sections, are as intricate as a jig saw puzzle to the person on the sidelines . . . straps, cross ties, wrap around the rib effects, slits, slots, and other maze-like devices are featured lavishly.

In these creations you look as gleaming and as polished as a bit of Chinese lacquer . . . a living slogan of the save the surface and you save all sort of thing . . . different, distinctive—a gleaming streak of evening glory!

Another new fabric that is going out late of nights, and to the smartest parties of the season, is wool—a thin, sheer, skin clinging wool, very distantly related to the wools that are used for daytime clothes. All evening woolens have a mat or dull finish, with a few exceptions that are blessed with an intriguing little silver shimmer. A gown of such sheerness makes every one doubt its woolly beginning, but the most beautiful gowns of the season will be these skin clinging beauties of black, almond green, crushed raspberry red, and deep garnet shades of dull wool.

Pages and pages could be written about black wool . . . you wear it for chic daytime dresses with just the smallest and fewest of crisp white collars and cuffs or ascot ties . . . you wear it for afternoon, festooned with priceless silver fox, accented with a blouse of silver brocade in a three piece suit, combined with large puffed sleeves . . . you wear it for swanky dinner ensembles, combined with sleek white galyak muff, pill box hat, and matching scarf . . . and you wear black wool for the most formal of evening occasions, serenely smart and fashionable in simple, long, clinging lines that drape a bit more distinctively over any silhouette than any other fabric used by skillful designers.

If neither cire satin nor dull thin wool captures your fancy, you will be interested to know of a third rather new idea . . . the heavy and picturesque folds of brocaded silk or satin. This material is best when selected in either the floral or striped patterns. Exquisitely simple gowns are fashioned of this crisp stiff stuff without any ornamentation; the rich beauty of color and silk is quite sufficient to achieve an almost medieval splendor even in this year of glitter and gayety.

Movie Close Up

I was erroneously informed that Meriam Cooper and Ernest Schoedsack were the authors of "The Most Dangerous Game." Richard Connell wrote the story, from which the picture was adapted, some years ago.

New Coiffure, Hat Transform Style of Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It used to be the recommended performances when a lady was feeling low about life and love and things in general for she goes out and buys herself a new hat. Now she's ordered to treat herself to a new coiffure—and a hat to match. That, my sisters, promises a kick that's going to turn life and love and things in general right your way! [Blame the coiff, not me, if this prophecy fails.] But it's worth gambling on.

To insure success don't get the coiffure without the hat in mind, or the hat without the coiff that's going to make it, this fashion season. Better get the new coiffure first, however, because you're not going to wear the hat in the house.

The difficulty expressed by millinery the last couple of years when it remained in anything but a fixed position is responsible for the hat-coiff alliances that distinguish the smart head from the dawdy, these times. Backward, forward, over one eye, over the other—the bonnets have skidded all over the head with as much assurance of a permanent landing place as an amateur lady driver at a motor wheel. But it has meant a change in hairdressing with every tilt.

If a hat, for instance, decides to slide down the back of the head, then something decorative has to be done with the hair over the forehead and face edges. If you're going in for a tricorne, the hair left free of hat on the side must be charmingly waved or curled.

There appears to be no hat designed for bobs that rest on shoulders, proving conclusively that this style is passé.

I'm told by several recently returned observers that the sleek, capfitting coiffure with straight or draped feathery wisps brought forward on the cheeks is a current Paris vogue. The hair in back is either tightly shingled or ends in a finely tapered wreath of small-shell curls.

Wedding Trip

Mr. and Mrs. George Munson of Chicago are expected to return this week-end from a wedding trip to Bermuda and will be at home at 1434 Sedgwick street in the Marshall Field Garden apartments. Their wedding took place on Sept. 17 in Morristown, N. J., where Mrs. Munson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Bramhall, reside. Mrs. Munson is the former Charlotte Bramhall.

Mr. Munson, who has been living in Chicago for several years, shared a house in Lake Forest this past summer with several other young bachelors who have come west from the east, and Tommy Leiter. He is the son of Mrs. Edgar Munson of Muncy, Pa. His bride, who visited in Chicago last spring as the guest of the Barrett Wendells, is a graduate of Westover, made her debut in 1929 and is a member of the Junior league. Mr. Munson went to St. Paul's and Yale.

WHEN WORDS FAIL YUH

Arts Club Will Open Quarters at Tea Party

Season to Be Launched Next Wednesday.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE attractive rooms of the Arts club in the north Wrigley building, which were closed later than usual for the summer on account of the conventions, are being renovated and gotten in ship-shape order for the opening tea party next Wednesday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock.

The restaurant service of luncheon and tea will not be resumed until the following Wednesday and the first exhibition will not be hung until about the middle of November, for, although the clubrooms are opened in October each year for the convenience of the members, the real activities of the club do not commence until a month later.

A president to fill the place left vacant by the death of Mrs. John Alden Carpenter—whose place in Chicago society and artistic circles never can be filled really—will be elected by the directors after the annual meeting in November, when new directors to take the places of those whose terms are ended will be put in office by the members.

The Casino, that chic, low building on Delaware place, a block east of Michigan avenue, opened, after a summer of being closed, on Sept. 15, and there are small numbers of persons there for luncheon, tea, and dinner every day, but except when there is a large meeting of some sort there isn't much doing around the club and won't be until about November. The greatest activity is in the manager's office, where mothers of debutantes and "subdebs" go daily to make plans for the parties that will be given at the club during the winter.

The Saddle and Cycle club in Edgewater on the lake, which didn't close at all during the summer, is having such large crowds at the Thursday night buffet suppers that it has been decided to have similar supper parties every Sunday night, starting on Oct. 16. There are occasional dances at this club which is a favorite with society folk, for it is far enough out to be something like a country club and yet close enough to the heart of the city not to be inaccessible.

Dinner Party for Marjorie Goodman.

Mrs. Laurance H. Armour is giving a dinner for about fourteen tonight at her residence in Lake Forest for Miss Marjorie Goodman, debutante daughter of Mrs. James M. Hopkins. After dinner the party will go to the Onwentsia club to dance.

The Onwentsia is having the last of its popular Thursday buffet suppers and dancing parties tonight, and the dining room of the club will close Sunday night. After that members will be able to have sandwiches and tea for luncheon or tea, but beyond those simple things there will be no dining room service.

Rehearsals for "Stepping High," the Service club revue, are progressing to the satisfaction of the director, the cast and every one concerned. Although the morning and evening practice periods began only last Monday at the Illinois Women's Athletic club, outstanding talent is beginning to shine out above the average in the general tryouts.

Miss Ethel Dixon, the debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Dixon, has been singled out as a comedienne and is to have a little specialty act of her own. Another new find is Miss Elinor Page, who's to star in a song and dance number.

Miss Katherine Drake, whose talent for burlesque is well known to the Service club, is to do a comic skit in which she will appear as a boarding house landlady. There will be a cast of about 50 girls and 75 young men in the show, which is to be given on Oct. 21 and 22 at the Goodman theater.

Miss Imogene Bucklin, who's busy these days keeping the papers informed about the doings of the Service club, is to be hostess at a buffet supper on Sunday evening for Miss Elinor Page, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Page of 1209 Astor street. There will be about 16 guests.

Hunting Plans at Lake Geneva.

Those of the Lake Geneva summer colonists who enjoy shooting pheasants are planning to spend the coming week-end at the lake for the three day season that starts on Saturday in Wisconsin. Numerous house parties are being planned, one of which the Chauncey B. Blairs will give, the Walter Paepckes and the Paul Moyers being their guests. The Illinois season for shooting pheasants is longer than the Wisconsin one, starting on Oct. 10 and ending on the 15th.

Writing of shooting pheasants reminds me of the John Bordens who imported a number of pairs of pheasants to Glenwild, their Mississippi plantation, several years ago, but I'm told that not one can be found in that part of the country now.

There are plenty of quail, however, and since the season for them is from Nov. 20 to Feb. 1 in that state the Bordens undoubtedly will be having their usual number of house parties during the winter to shoot the little "bob-whites."

Mr. Borden is spending most of the time in Michigan nowadays so he probably will be taking advantage of the opening of the duck season there on Saturday, but Mrs. Borden won't be there to enjoy it for she left yesterday for a visit of several weeks in Washington with her mother, Mrs. Frank C. Letts. Mrs. Letts spent a day with her other daughter, Mrs. George F. McLaughlin, in Lake Forest, and then joined Mrs. Borden at Sylvan Beach, Mich., near Muskegon, where the Bordens have had a house

Von Stroheim Gets Realism in New Movie

Fires Gun to Frighten Boots Mallory.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 28.—Erich Von Stroheim says: "I was the first man in the movies ever to slap a girl's face for screen realism. Now every picture has some actor trying to make a big scene by slapping a face. The face I slapped—it was more than ten years ago and it belonged to Mae Busch. You know how a fellow at times thinks to himself, 'I would like to slap that girl's face!' But he doesn't do it.

"Well, I did it. Nobody knew it in advance. It was for 'Foolish Wives.' I told the cameraman I must step back a little, because I was going to raise my hand to scratch my head. Then I let Mae have it.

"It was a great piece of realism. She just looked at me, fascinated and glaring. Then she cleared her throat and, O, boy, she added another great bit of realism. Mae let me have it, hard as she could, right on my nose." And his hand involuntarily went to his nose as though there was a throb after all these years. "It made a great scene."

In directing his present film, "Walking Down Broadway," with Boots Mallory, Jimmy Dunn, Zasu Pitts, and Terry Ray at Fox's, Von did his earnest best to add some new and uneffete touches. He slapped Miss Mallory's face, not once but twice, when she least expected it in order to make Boots cry for scenes supposed to register agitation and bitter humiliation. The Austrian even sneaked up near Boots with a revolver hidden behind his back and fired it off to get the realistic portrayal of shock.

Fox's allowed an original budget of $350,000 for the Von Stroheim production. The ante is now up to $400,000, but everybody feels satisfied, for they think that they are going to finish up with a highly interesting film, certain to bring back the $400,000 and a lot more.

Henry Wales, former foreign correspondent, is working as scenarist at the Fox plant. He assisted in the screen adaptation of the Phil Stong best seller, "State Fair," and is now preparing an original story of war adventure, "Wooden Crosses," for film purposes.

Maybe Greta Nissen will not get that divorce from Weldon Heyburn, which she said she was going to apply for, as hastily as she first thought. Greta moved out of the Beverly Hills home to a hotel last week. Heyburn remained at the house. This week Greta has been back at the house a lot, just like old times.

The part that Karen Morley was to have played in Radio-RKO's "Animal Kingdom" is going to Myrna Loy. Did any one ever tell you that Karen Morley is really an Iowa girl named Mildred Linton, that she read the works of Christopher Morley and fancied the name of a heroine, "Karen," for an artistic screen handle, after which, what's more natural than to borrow the "Morley" for the rest of it? The reason she isn't working in "Animal Kingdom" is because she is too popular on her own lot—MGM—to have her services lent.

The title of the Tallulah Bankhead-Bob Montgomery story about the penniless rich, which was known as "Tinfoil," has been changed to "Faithless."

Joe Von Sternberg, director; Jules Furthman, scenarist, and three cameramen are hurrying to the Haiti hurricane belt in quest of shots and first hand impressions of how a tropical tempest really behaves. The next Marlene Dietrich-Von Sternberg film—as yet untitled—has a West Indies hurricane as part of the plot. The five film men will fly from here to Mexico and then across the gulf to Haiti via Cuba. They will be gone four weeks. They leave Saturday.

One outfit that Joan Crawford brought back from Paris and flashed on the boulevard this week has made much impression on feminine Hollywood. It's white corduroy with short jacket and high waisted skirt, combined with a powder blue, bow tied linen blouse, velvet beret and velvet gloves of the same hue as the blouse.

GASOLINE ALLEY—THE ONLY PERMANENT WAY

NO, COUSIN PHYLLIS, I WASN'T REALLY IN LOVE WITH PRIGGY, BUT HE'S SO STUBBORN HE WOULDN'T TAKE NO FOR AN ANSWER.
BUT, LORA, THAT'S HARDLY A GOOD REASON TO RUN AWAY AND GET MARRIED.
I KNOW AND I'M GLAD WE WERE STOPPED. BUT WE HAD BEEN GOING TOGETHER UNTIL IT GOT TIRESOME.
THEN THE THING TO DO WAS TO BREAK OFF THE ENGAGEMENT.
YOU COULD HAVE TOLD HIM YOU WEREN'T INTERESTED IN HIM THAT WAY AND THAT YOU WEREN'T GOING TO SEE HIM ANY MORE.
BUT YOU DON'T KNOW PRIGGY. IT WAS REALLY THE ONLY WAY I COULD GET RID OF HIM.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—United States Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett today transmitted to the German government the testimonials awarded by President Hoover to Capt. Friedrich Alers and other officers and sailors of the German steamer Gen. Osorio "for humane and heroic services. They rescued 85, including passengers, three of them women, and members of the crew of the American Munson liner Western World when the latter struck the rocks at Ponta do Bel [north of Santos, Brazil], Aug. 8, 1931."

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Neil is mystified by the peculiarities of Miss Bundy, who is broken in health and mentally disturbed. She has hired a photographer, named Tilbury, as bailiff. He and his wife, a common, illiterate couple, occupy the lodge, and hold a strange influence over Caroline. Natasha Andrejev, Caroline's half Russian niece, beautiful but fiery tempered, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline puts Neil in charge of the library in the daytime, cautioning him to admit no one. She tells him her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly meetings in the library. Neil has a friend, Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish, who lives with his sister, Rachel. Neil has lunch in Bath with Rachel and Tasha. He sees Tasha hold a secret meeting with a strange man and later sees her pay the stranger's bill in the tearoom. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. Emily Braselton, Caroline's one close friend, calls to investigate the ominous rumors she'd been hearing.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

RESCUED FROM EVIL INFLUENCES.

"Really, now that Emily Braselton is there," said Rachel, "I should leave her to handle the situation. She'll look out for Carrie, never fear—though I must say it's odd for Carrie to do this the very moment her friend arrives."

"It's more than odd." Neil's annoyance vented itself in a false direction. "Till now I've taken Natasha's suspicions with a grain of salt, but just now, believe it or not, I got the impression of something—well, sinister."

Rachel looked at him intently, but the vicar snorted with scorn.

All the evening Neil felt Rachel watching him tentatively. When he took his leave she made an excuse to accompany him to the gate.

"About Tasha—" she whispered in a troubled voice. "Do you think by any chance she's avoiding me? Is she unhappy or anything?"

After his promise it was hard to answer this. He rattled off an unconvincing explanation about the girl's being kept busy over her aunt's illness, uncomfortably aware of his companion's steady gaze.

"Neil, you like her, don't you?"

"Very much," he replied, anxious to be gone.

"But I take it she's told you nothing about—herself?"

"I never expected she would. She's not the sort who bestows confidences freely. Why?"

"Nothing, only—— Forgive an old maid's impertinence, but when you were at the telephone this evening I rather thought—that is, I got the impression you might be falling in love with her. Am I right?"

He flinched and grew hot in the collar. "Good God, no! See here, my dear, are you trying to steer me into matrimony? Because if so I must warn you it's a hopeless job. I'm in the difficult between-stage, long past the calf period and nowhere near the dangerous forties. Not that it matters a damn what my inclinations are. She wouldn't look at me in any case."

"Well," she said smiling, "we'll have to let it go at that. Only please don't give up trying to—to get a bit nearer. You needn't lose your heart over that."

"No, only my temper."

He gave a short laugh to hide his embarrassment. Hang Natasha and her cursed entanglements! If Rachel wanted them cleared up, let her do it herself. She knew something. Well, why didn't she act on her knowledge? The natural answer was that she couldn't. But at the moment it seemed to him that every person with whom he had contact was guarding some secret—the vicar, Miss Bundy, Natasha, Rachel, Emily Braselton. It grimly amused him to speculate on what would happen if all the lot got together and laid their cards on the table. . . .

And Alfred and Con—he was forgetting them. Did they too have something up their sleeves? He was inclined to consider this question very seriously when at 1 o'clock he heard the back door open softly and from his window saw their two stealthy forms slipping round the terrace. That meant Miss Bundy had pulled off what she had planned after her guest was wrapped in slumber. He gloated over the surprise he was going to spring on Natasha next morning. Little did she realize how the old lady had stolen a march on her.

Yet on the following day events showed such a gratifying tendency to smooth themselves out that he felt his conclusions reversed and himself made to appear wholly ridiculous. He began indeed to share the vicar's belief that Miss Braselton's coming had put everything right.

"I don't suppose you know that your aunt had those people here again late last night?"

Having fired this announcement with brutal intent, Neil was unworthily triumphant to see his shaft take effect. Natasha lowered the bonnet of the car and fixed searching eyes on him.

"I went out. How do you know this?"

He supplied her with the facts, only to find her less perturbed than he had anticipated.

"O, well, it's probably the last time. You see, everything's worked out most satisfactorily—far better, indeed, than one could have hoped. We've had the doctor here, and he's told Caroline she must get away—that change is what she needs, and now's the opportunity to go with some one who'll look after her. To my astonishment she gave in like a lamb. I really don't know why, but there it is. She means to—S'sh! There's that chauffeur coming. Emily's leaving in a few minutes—has to be in Paris tomorrow for some conference."

"Then Miss Bundy's not going with her?"

"No, joining her on Saturday. She insists on a few days to prepare for the journey, and of course it will be better to get her strength back before she goes. What a gorgeous day! Like to come with me for a long drive? I've got to do some shopping for Caroline right after lunch."

Miss Bundy, at lunch, wore that look of concentrated purpose he had noticed ever since her attack, while her midnight seance, far from harming her, seemed to have brought her fresh vitality. Not only was she apparently reconciled to the holiday she had so strenuously opposed but she had the air of having settled harassing difficulties to her entire satisfaction. Why, she looked positively smug! The cat that has eaten the canary occurred to him as the correct comparison. He could not understand this complete change of front, and it was equally hard to see why she should urge her niece to spend the whole afternoon out and make the most of the sunshine. Never before had he known her to display concern over Natasha's pleasure.

"Mr. Starkey's going too, is he? That's excellent. You must show him some of the sights. You won't mind venturing as far as Exeter, I hope? I've rather set my heart on some things from the Scotch wool shop there."

What had come over her? And for that matter, what had turned Natasha into a being totally different from her recent self? When he met her at the garage she was singing "Sous les Toits de Paris" with carefree jubilance, her scarlet beret was set at a provoking angle, while her eyes sparkled in a manner which sent his own spirits soaring.

"By Jove!" he marveled. "You look ready for any deed!"

"That's how I feel," she threw at him over her shoulder. "Funny, isn't it, how a little thing like a trip to London can brighten one's point of view? I'm driving Caroline there, you see, in order to speed her on her way. Just what I was banking on—only these events so seldom materialize. Come along. Let's be off."

While he was cogitating on her elation they came upon the Tilburys climbing into their neat car. Connie waved to them brightly.

"We've got the afternoon to ourselves too," she announced. "Alf and me are going to the Cheddar gorge."

In the lane Natasha muttered vindictively: "Beastly little leeches! Why, to see them now you'd think they were glad Caroline was going away. They'd sing another tune if they guessed what a bloodhound Emily is."

"You seem quite confident this move will clear everything up," he remarked, far from envisaging how the sleuth propensities of Miss Braselton were to involve other people than the Tilbury couple in disaster.

"I am confident. I feel quite sure Emily will drag the whole mystery out and restore Caroline to a normal condition. She's arranged for Caroline to spend Friday night at her flat in Kensington so as to break the journey, crossing by the 10 o'clock boat Saturday morning. She's even getting her ticket and visa, so there'll be nothing to bother about. So that leaves me free to tackle my own problems," she finished in an undertone.

"And is the answer to them to be found in London?" He was thinking of the scrap of conversation heard last night over the telephone.

"I hope so, God knows!" She shuddered and grew very grave. "I still can't get hold of a thing against those two smooth little people, and yet a sixth sense warns me Caroline is in their clutches and doesn't know it. They possess her body and soul, so much so that I should have been in terror to leave her alone with them."

Reader Queries Topic of Food Expert Today

Proportions Given for Ginger Ale Punch.

BY MARY MEADE.

So many calls have come in recently requesting recipes for dishes mentioned in our daily menus that I have boarded a few of the requests and am handing them forth in a surprise package this morning instead of waiting for our Saturday question day, which already has a full docket.

GINGER ALE PUNCH.

2 cups grape juice
4 tbsp. sugar
¼ cup lemon juice
2 bottles ginger ale
4 sprigs crushed mint
Crushed ice

Mix the ingredients until the sugar is dissolved. Pour over one quart of crushed ice and shake till cold. Serve in tall glasses with a spike of mint slipped inside the edge of each glass.

Miss R. is also interested in cheese sandwiches mentioned in our column. Having a sandwich toaster, she is eager to use it.

TOASTED CHEESE SANDWICHES.

Cut slices of white of whole wheat bread one-third inch thick and butter each thoroughly but lightly. Cut American, pimiento, or your choice of other cheese into thin slices to fit the bread. Arrange the cheese on one slice of bread and sprinkle lightly with prepared mustard and minced green peppers. Press the second buttered slice firmly over the cheese and trim the crusts. Place in the sandwich toaster till golden brown on both sides. Cut either in three fingers or in triangles and garnish with pickle fans.

GINGER SAUCE FOR PEAR FRITTERS.

2 tbsps. butter, melted
4 tbsps. flour
¼ tsp. salt
Dash of white pepper
1 cup water or meat stock
Grated rind of half an orange
¼ cup orange juice
¼ cup sirup from preserved ginger.
¼ cup chopped preserved ginger paste

Prepare a smooth paste from the butter, flour, salt, and pepper. Simmer gently till slightly brown. Stir in the water or meat stock and let simmer six minutes. Add the remaining ingredients and continue cooking below the boiling point until hot and well blended in flavor. Serve over cored pear halves which have been dipped in a heavy fritter batter and fried to a golden brown in hot fat.

From Mrs. M. M. comes an SOS for a pie meringue that won't get "liquidy." This condition is always a nuisance and really unnecessary, if we simply know the tricks and apply them. The reason for this separating out of water on to our otherwise perfect pies is frequently due to too much beating or a too high heat in baking. The following recipe will solve the problem:

PASTRY MERINGUE.

2 egg whites
Dash of salt
2 tbsps. water
2 tbsps. sugar
¼ tsp. vanilla
Few drops lemon juice

Chill the egg whites and turn into a dry bowl with a rounded—not flat—bottom. Beat, preferably with a whisk, until foamy, but far from dry. Add the water gradually and continue beating until the mixture just holds its shape when the bowl is inverted. Fold in the remaining ingredients and pile on top of a filled crust. Bake in a slow oven [300 degrees F.] ten to fifteen minutes. The meringue should be just set and pale brown. Too much beating—especially "beating till dry"—will break down the egg white cells and allow liquefying. The added water dilutes the whites and makes possible the imprisoning of more air.

Light Bodice for Formal Evening Gown Is New Note

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Though your frocks this season may be in darkness from bust to hem, they must have light at the top. Paris not only approves the light topped dress, but insists upon it, for formal daytime and any kind of evening wear. Many light topped dresses have little jackets to go over the delicate top, so that one frock looks like two, and so that the delicacy of the top may be kept under cover when you want to look practical.

Madelaine Vionnet is one of the French couturieres to take to lightening the tops of frocks, and what Vionnet does a hundred other dressmakers are sure to do a bit later.

The evening frock shown in our sketch demonstrates Vionnet's fashion of making the upper part of the evening dress light. It has, as you see, a bodice of white, and in this case it is white satin, cut in a V to the waistline in front, and over a fitted satin slip. The skirt is of black satin, and is one of the new full skirts that do not look wide. This kind of skirt is the smartest evening skirt so far shown in Paris.

House Plans Blamed for Family Woes

BY DORIS BLAKE.

In sleuthing around some forty states to find out about homemaking and furnishing, one of our government agencies discovers a few reasons why our marriage problem keeps on being a problem.

"Poorly planned and inefficient housing is largely responsible for much needless impairment of homes and family life in present day America," the agency reports.

"The detailed analysis of 3,000 typical urban and rural dwellings scattered throughout the country to discover causes of family friction and unhappiness reveal conditions which practically every reader will recognize as startlingly familiar, however conscious of them he may have been," the report continues.

Our single living room for recreational activities is a friction builder of first order. Too many people want to be in it at the same time. They have to occupy it since there is no small sitting room to retire to to read or rest, such as the old "den" supplied the man of the house. In this living room where children, parents and grandparents gather, whether the political news or a croon song shall be turned on becomes another domestic stick of dynamite. The children's radio taste rarely agrees with the elders'.

The children have to be shushed while the older ones listen to a Thomas, Hard or Kaltenborn. In fact, as houses are arranged today and as radios are kept going, the top floor is still no escape from the radio when one would have quiet. In an apartment the radio gives even less chance of escape.

Then, there is bathroom competition offered by the government agency as another cause of family disturbance. Too many of the family want to occupy it at the same time.

"The commonest defect discovered," according to the report," is lack of adequate storage space for children's things. Next in order comes lack of playroom or workshop, lack of privacy, poor sleeping quarters and inconvenient bath, or none at all."

Let First Child Welcome the Second Baby

Parents Who Have Tried It Approve of Method.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Whenever I write an article on the subject of preparing the older child for the coming of the new baby I get many letters. These letters tell me how successful this plan has been not only in preventing jealousy of the newcomer, but in making the new baby a welcome addition.

"The articles concerning the new baby in the family helped so much. Our little boy's attitude toward the baby is splendid and has meant a lot to us."

And another: "Our little girl planned as much as we did for the new baby and greatly to her grandparents' surprise shows no jealousy whatever now baby is a year old. The grandparents thought us so foolish in having her plan for the newcomer, as a 'child of 5 should not have such thoughts.'"

The last letter mentions the often expressed opinion that a "child of 5 should not have such thoughts." But of course, any one who has told her children about birth knows how utterly matter of fact children are about all these things. If their questions are answered naturally, the replies fall into place with all the other replies to all their other questions. Their attitude is quite uncolored by the emotions that becloud the average adult's association with birth.

But to go back a minute. Mention is made in some of these letters of the fact that no jealousy is shown over the new baby when the older one is prepared for its coming and shares in anticipating it.

It seems to me that jealousy over the new brother or sister is not often shown or felt. In fact, even if it were, I don't believe it is direct jealousy that we want to prevent as much as it is the less obvious but more subtle effects of "springing" the new baby on its older but often still little brother or sister.

To go further, I'd almost say that it isn't actually jealousy, so called, at all. I think it would be better described as a hurt experienced by a child because he feels less loved, less needed and less important to his parents. This hurt may look like simple jealousy when it is direct. But more often the hurt will show itself indirectly in behavior—as in a reversal of toilet habits to get attention, tantrums and disobedience, mealtime blues, impudence—and in older children sometimes additional and more serious actions.

This does not always happen, of course, with the coming of a new sister or brother. Some parents, even if the new baby comes as a surprise, do act so that the older one never feels dethroned. But is is safer and much more fun to share the coming of the baby with the children who are already on the scene.

COUNCIL LOWERS MAXIMUM RATE FOR TAXICABS

Curbs Excessive Charges by "Pirate" Drivers.

The city council yesterday passed an ordinance reducing the maximum taxicab rates which are charged by some independent cabs to 25 cents for the first quarer mile and 10 cents for each half mile thereafter. These are the rates charged by the Yellow and Checker taxicab companies, operating a majority of the cabs in the city.

The city code, prior to the action yesterday, allowed a maximum of 40 cents for the first half mile and 10 cents for each one-quarter mile thereafter. The attention of Mayor Cermak was called to this law several weeks ago, when he entered one of the so-called "pirate cabs" by mistake and was charged $2.85 for a trip to his west side home. The mayor was accustomed to paying $1.35 for the trip.

Visitors Often Victimized.

Ald. John Toman [23d] pointed out that visitors to Chicago are often victimized by the independent cabs who cruise about railroad stations and charge the maximum rates formerly allowed by the city code.

The ordinance was passed unanimously by the thirty-eight aldermen who attended the first council session since the summer vacation. The ordinance permits a charge of 25 cents for each additional passenger in a cab, a charge which has not been enforced in Chicago by the taxicab companies for some years.

A resolution was adopted making the Chicago Board of Trade band of the American Legion the city's official band. The band won national honors at the Legion convention in Portland.

George D. Gaw, the city's greeter, appeared with the Board of Trade band, which played a march of his composition entitled "Greetings: Chicago Welcomes You." The words and music by Mr. Gaw were transcribed and arranged by Frank Barden. A resolution was introduced to make the composition Chicago's official song.

Legalize Forget-Me-Not Day.

An ordinance legalizing a Forget-Me-Not tag day on Nov. 11, recommended by the finance committee, was also adopted.

Another resolution adopted called for the surface and elevated lines to sell tickets good for fifty rides for one dollar to school children whose parents obtain aid from the emergency relief commission. Ald. Toman, who introduced the resolution, asserted that children of destitute families in many cases find it necessary to use street cars and elevated trains to reach school.

The council yesterday adjourned until Nov. 10, two days after the general election.

COUNCIL URGES SUBWAY TO OAK STREET BEACH

Corporation Counsel Sexton was directed by the city council yesterday to draft a legislative bill or city ordinance, as may be necessary, providing for the construction of a subway approach to the Oak street beach. The action was taken in the adoption of a resolution submitted by Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th].

The resolution also called upon the Chicago Association of Commerce to call into conference officials of the city and the park boards with a view to working out a program for improving existing beach facilities, giving special attention to the Oak street beach and the proposed construction of a subway under the Illinois Central tracks in 47th street.

POLICE SHOOTING JUSTIFIED.

The shooting of Nicholas Justice, 36 years old, 3805 West 60th place, was termed justifiable homicide by a coroner's jury yesterday. Justice was shot by Policeman Solomon Butler of the Pekin station, a Negro, who was summoned by a woman whom Justice had been annoying. Justice was armed.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The music of old Mark Beaubien's fiddle that charmed the frontier village of Chicago 99 years ago may be heard to this day in the new million dollar Chicago Historical society building, Clark street and North avenue, which will be opened to the public towards the last of next month.

It is a winter's night in 1833. Off toward Lake Michigan looms Fort Dearborn, a shadow in the moonlight, and slightly to the left at the mouth of the Chicago river four tall poplars guard the dooryard of John Kinzie's cabin, the first white man's house.

Beaubien's tavern, the Sauganash, is in the foreground brilliantly illuminated. Belles and beaux glide gayly over the dance floor to the strains of "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms," the popular waltz written by the Irish poet, Thomas Moore, only 30 years or so before.

The music that may be heard today is furnished by Mark's own fiddle and a flute used in old Fort Dearborn, electrically recorded for the phonograph.

Back to the Early Days.

Forget all else and you are back a century, seeing with your own eyes the life of young Chicago, hearing with your own ears Beaubien's enchanted fiddle. Forget that this diorama is a diorama, that this miniature of movement and song is only an illusion fashioned by a clever artist; forget all that, and this and other treasures in the new historical society building become a living history.

The diorama of the early water front town is one of eight models shown in the new building which visualize the great epochs and events in the history of Chicago. The diorama gallery is one of the 38 exhibit halls portraying in chronological order every stage of American history from the time of Christopher Columbus in the 15th century down to the present.

It is this studied effort to record accurately the historical chronology that led up to and was responsible for Chicago's being, a treatment new to museums in this country, that will be of especial interest to the members of the Chicago Historical society when they view for the first time the interior of the new building on Chicago day, Oct. 9.

Preview for the Members.

The members are to have a preview before the building is opened to the public later in the month. They will be conducted through the halls by Charles B. Pike, president of the society; L. Hubbard Shattuck, the director, and others.

Already the low, wide spreading building of brick in the Georgian colonial manner appears deeply rooted, despite its newness, in Lincoln park's greensward. When the visitor passes through the wide doors at the top of the steps his eye travels ahead to the main foyer of white columns and arched doors. It is an exact reproduction of Independence hall in Philadelphia in the same dimensions. On beyond one glimpses a wide walnut stairway. Mr. Shattuck explains that this is a copy of one still well preserved in the famous Jeremiah Lee mansion at Marblehead, Mass.

The visual story of Chicago opens in the Columbus room directly to the left of the main entrance in the south wing. You pass into the room beneath the same portal that was once a part of Porto Santo, the home of Columbus' father-in-law in the Madeira Islands. Here to the right, leaning against the wall, is a rusted hand wrought anchor, the one Columbus used on his flagship, Santa Maria. There is a larger, heavier anchor weighing 1,200 pounds which was used on the explorer's third voyage, and a third belonged to his son, Diego.

There is a piece of a tree taken from the place where Columbus witnessed the first battle between the Spaniards and the Indians. Here in wall niches are the first bells wrought on this side of the Atlantic—in Santo Domingo—and over there, above a shuttered window, is the slim iron cross from La Rabida mission where Columbus once lived. The walls of the room are of Coquina rock (shell rock), found in Florida and used by the Spanish explorers in the building of St. Augustine.

Paul Revere's Home Shown.

From Columbus to Paul Revere. Here is reproduced a portion of the exterior and interior of Paul Revere's home in Boston built between 1680 and 1690 and occupied by him from 1770 to 1782. Here are the brick paved street, the gray weathered clapboards, the split joists, the leaded windows. Inside the door is the heavy beamed living room with an exact copy of the original wallpaper, the furniture all in the design of the times, the hooked rug, the tilt top table and mirror that came to America on the Mayflower's third voyage, the corner cupboard filled with pewter.

Mementos of Washington.

There is a Washington room filled with relics of the first President's private and public life—portraits, clothing, and furniture.

In the north wing is the Civil War room, with equal consideration given to the Union and confederate armies. The Victorian room is next, with its bronze clock and candelabra, the gift of Albert Edward, prince of Wales, to James C. Spencer of Chicago. From this room opens the Chicago room, containing, among other treasures, the city's first fire engine, of 1833, and the chairs of Eugene Field and Henry Dearborn. On the top floor, not yet completed, will be the Lincoln rooms and others.

The Chicago Historical society for the last 36 years has occupied the building built for the purpose at 632 North Dearborn street. The society was founded in 1856 with twenty charter members. It was first housed in a small building in La Salle street between Lake and Randolph streets. Later homes were twice burned out, first in the fire of 1871 and again in 1874.

The effort of the executive committee of H. O. Stone & Co. to oust Henry F. Norcott from the presidency of the concern in 1929 in a final effort to save the company was revealed yesterday in the court of Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. Norcott and eight associates are on trial before a jury on charges of using the mails to defraud.

Charles H. Binney, manager of the real estate department of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, told of the meeting, after describing Norcott as a "poor business executive who made a muddle of things." Binney, as a trustee of the Victor Lawson estate, attended the meeting held by the executive committee in the absence of Norcott.

"The members of the committee complained that Norcott could not be controlled," Binney said. "They said that he had spent $2,000,000 on the Lawsonia development, an H. O. Stone project at Green Lake, Wis., and had contracted other debts without their knowledge and consent. They wanted him to step aside as president, but did not want him separated from the business."

Tells Loan Negotiations.

Binney told of the efforts of the committee to borrow $500,000 from the Continental Illinois bank and the First National bank. The loan was refused because of the condition of the company, the witness said, but the Stone company was finally successful in getting $150,000 from the two banks.

Subsequent loans were made by the Continental Illinois, the witness said, after Norcott had been forced to turn over most of his stock in H. O. Stone & Co. as security.

Binney told of a conference with Charles P. Packer Jr., then a banker in Hammond, Ind., who became an official of H. O. Stone & Co. and who is now a defendant.

"What would you do if you were offered an executive position with H. O. Stone & Co.?" Binney said Packer asked him.

"I would not accept it," Binney replied. Packer revealed that he had taken the position, the witness said, and told of an offer of Norcott to put up $1,000,000 any time the money was needed in the company business.

"Reminded of Money Offer."

Packer reminded Norcott of the offer when the money market became tight, Binney said, and received the answer that "the time is not ripe to put up the money." In the course of this conversation Packer became angry, Binney said, and remarked to Norcott:

"When you find yourself with a tin cup at State and Madison streets remember you have no one to blame but yourself."

NEW EVIDENCE LINKS M'DANIELS TO BOMB BLAST

Supervising Captain John Prendergast declared yesterday that additional circumstantial evidence has been obtained against William McDaniels, 50 year old bootlegger, held as a suspect of the bombing of the home of Judge John P. McGoorty. A piece of fuse such as is used in bombs was obtained by police after the arrest of George "Red" Gustafson, 32, 1116 West 59th street, who said it belonged to McDaniels.

Gustafson, it was stated, helped McDaniels to hide thirteen and one-half sticks of dynamite the day after the explosion. McDaniels asked him to dispose of the fuse, also, he said, and he put it under some rocks in a quarry at May and 58th streets, where police found it. McDaniels has a writ of habeas corpus pending before Judge John Prystalski and will be given a hearing tomorrow.

Lee Wilbur Koeppen, 18 years old, blinded in the explosion that occurred as he was passing the McGoorty home, listened to the ball game on the radio yesterday. Doctors and nurses say he doesn't yet know he will never recover his sight. Mrs. Ada Moyer, also injured in the explosion, is about ready to leave the Chicago hospital, although her sight is affected and physicians say an operation on her eyes may be necessary later.

WORKER DIES OF INJURIES.

Michael Pindelski, 32 years old, 5017 Slocum street, died yesterday afternoon in the Ravenswood hospital of a fractured skull incurred when a steel bar fell on him while he was at work in the plant of the Stewart Die Casting corporation, 4535 Fullerton avenue.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Edward Christensen, Frank Baczkowski, and Walter Skrydel, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary; Daniel M. O'Neil, assault to rape, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary; and John J. Hillman, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge John J. Sullivan.

John Corly, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Harry A. Lewis.

PAROLED ROBBER SENT TO CELL AS HABITUAL THIEF

George Atkinson, 25 years old, 12117 South State street, was sentenced to serve 20 years in the penitentiary yesterday by Judge Michael Feinberg under the habitual criminal act. Atkinson was found guilty by a jury of the theft of two automobiles.

Police records showed he had been sentenced to the penitentiary in 1925 on a charge of robbery and paroled on March 16, 1931. He was arrested on July 9 in a garage at 4471 Lake Park avenue, where police found automobiles stolen the day before from Mrs. Anna Zuetschel, 848 Cornelia street, and Ray Titus, of the Motor Acceptance corporation.

"It looks as though your trip to the penitentiary didn't do you any good," Judge Feinberg said. "The community would be better off if you were returned. I'm going to give you the maximum sentence under the habitual criminal act."

PHONE GIRL'S AID FREES VICTIM OF KIDNAPING

Through intelligent aid rendered the police by a Glen Ellyn telephone operator early yesterday, Jess Minkowski, kidnaped owner of a large night club at Kenosha, obtained his freedom little more than twenty-four hours after he had been seized by gangsters and held for ransom.

Minkowski, who reported yesterday to the authorities at Kenosha that he was safe at home, refused to talk about the kidnaping. He was unable, or unwilling, to identify Richard Nolan, 32 year old garage mechanic of Glen Ellyn, who was arrested as a result of the clew furnished by the operator, Miss Anna Morris.

The kidnaping occurred late Monday night. Telephone operators in the western suburbs were asked to watch for calls to the café number, Kenosha 8622, after one call had been traced to Melrose Park.

Shortly after midnight Miss Morris had such a call from a public booth in Glen Ellyn. While she delayed transmission of the call Sergts. J. M. Melville and Roy Beuerman of the Glen Ellyn police hurried to the booth and arrested Nolan.

Minkowski declared no ransom had been paid for his release. This is doubted by the investigators, however. They say the kidnapers and the victim agreed on a compromise figure of $17,000 after $25,000 had been demanded.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 28.—The Cubs were growling tonight.

They were in a fighting mood and eager for the second game of the series. There was little evidence of downheartedness over the drubbing they took from the Yankees today.

Guy Bush, the Cubs star, who walked four men and then walked out himself in the sixth, summed it all up as he stretched his lean length in his room at the Commodore hotel after the game.

"All we've gotta do is stop two men—Ruth and Gehrig—and we'll do that all right. All I hope is that I get another shot at the Yankees, here or in Chicago—or anywhere. I'll take 'em next time."

"I just went wild and got beat," he explained.

It is customary to look to winners for a story about a ball game, but sometimes a loser can spin a good piece. From here on this is Guy Bush's yarn and it is not a sob story in any respect.

"Cubs Will Win."

The dark haired pitcher might have sulked when a reporter called on him, but he didn't. He responded to a knock on his door with a drawling, "Come on in." He had plenty to talk about. Bush is the sort of fellow who looks like a baseball pitcher even when he's walking out of the box with the bases loaded. He looked like a pitcher tonight as he sat on his bed and talked, asking advice from time to time from his cheerful wife and seeking to bring his father-in-law, L. J. Richardson, into the conversation without very much help from Mr. Richardson, who appeared pretty glum about the game.

"We're going to win this series," said Bush, and he meant every word. "The Yankees didn't look as hot as I thought they would. There's two heroes on the team, Ruth and Gehrig, and Gehrig looks like the most dangerous of the two to me.

"That was a screw ball I pitched to him in the fourth when he hit the homer. That home run didn't upset me. I had one down when it happened. They still didn't look hot to me in spite of all the stories about them. I knew Gehrig was dangerous. He's a mighty hitter and hard to fool. He's got a lot of power, but I'd like to pitch to him again. I might throw him another screw ball."

Bush Stays on Bench.

"I wanted to see what the Yankees had in the way of a team," he drawled, "and I didn't see the team I had heard about. We can take those fellows. They are not as hard to pitch against as the Philadelphia National club.

"You never walked five men in one inning before in your life, did you?" Bush was asked.

Bush was asked when the break in the game came.

"The break against me came in the fourth," smiled the defeated pitcher, "when I walked Combs. Afterwards I just went wild. No, I don't know that anything caused it. A fellow just goes wild—that's all there is to it. There ain't no reason for it. It wasn't the weather and it wasn't the Yankee stadium—although I do believe the Yankee park was built for Ruth and Gehrig. Those two fellows are going to find Cubs park harder for them. It will be a different story out there. I'm not trying to alibi, though, put that down. I just went wild and got beat. That's how it happened.

"Now the break for the Yanks came in the fourth when we got three men on bases. That was the time I got walked. Herman hit a hard one to left field and Chapman made a long run and a sensational catch. Now it

Glenna Vare, Enid Wilson Win in Golf

Peabody, Mass., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—With two exceptions, today's second round matches in the national women's golf championship tournament at the Salem Country club were one sided, with the favorites moving one step closer to their goals.

Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, five time winner of the title, and Miss Enid Wilson, the two time British champion, had easy matches, the former defeating Mrs. C. E. Eddis, Canadian, who was runnerup last week for the dominion title, 7 and 5, and the powerful Miss Wilson beating Miss Grace English, her inexperienced Boston rival, 8 and 7.

Miss Ada Mackenzie, many time winner of the Canadian championship, beat Miss Jean Armstrong of Winnetka, Ill., 6 and 5.

Charlotte Glutting of Short Hills, N. J., who twice has won the New Jersey state crown, reached the quarter-finals of her first national championship tournament by conquering Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis. Miss Wall, who eliminated Mrs. Opal S. Hill, western champion, yesterday, weakened at the 16th hole to give the easterner a 3 and 2 triumph.

Only a rally prevented Maureen Orcutt from being eliminated by her district rival, Mrs. Leo G. Federman of the Glen Oaks Golf club. She finally won, 2 and 1, after being 1 down with only three holes left to play.

'WHAT DID I TELL YOU?' GLOATS BABE McGRIMM

He Called the Turn on First Series Game.

BY JOHN J. (BABE) McGRIMM
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 28.—Well, fans, here we are again in the thick of the annual fall classic of the world series strife, and I just want to say by way of starting off my analysis of the way the game went that the dope certainly ran true to form in the inaugural encounter, just as I predicted in my advance figures.

According to my rating, the Yankees maintained an average efficiency of .983 in combined fielding, pitching, hitting, and the factor of timely aggressiveness, which is one of the most important features in the inside workings of the game that the ordinary fans do not have the opportunity to appreciate fully.

"What Did I Tell You?"

The Cubs, on the other hand, cannot be given any better than a figure of .981, and, if you will remember my advance analysis of the series before the opening clash, that was practically the way I had them figured on a study of their showing in the long and thrilling grind pennantward down the homestretch of the summer months when the boys were straining every oar in true thoroughbred fashion.

But I want my friends among the fans to bear in mind that it is easy to be misled by some deceptive factor in figuring the outcome of the blue ribbon contest of the national game, because you cannot get around the fact that anything can happen in a short series like this. The teams are evenly matched, representing the best there is in the grand old game and worthy representatives of their respectful circuits, the Yankees being the supreme club of the junior loop and the Cubs the recognized outstanding champions of the senior organization.

There's That Strange Factor.

Sometimes some factor enters in which it is hard to dope in advance and you find that you have a case on your hands like the one in the series of 1905, when the Destiny Team completely swamped all the figures in a veritable blaze of aggressive power that simply would not be downed. I do not look for history to repeat itself in the present case, although it is always best to keep in mind the old axiom of the national pastime, "Take nothing for granted in baseball."

I have been sitting here wondering as the brilliant panorama ebbed and flowed in kaleidoscopic ranks whether it was the right thing to fill the bases there in the fifth inning when so much depended on the mere turn of a card in the loom of fate and I have come to the conclusion that these things are not to be decided by any hard and fast rule.

There have been cases where such strategy was brilliantly successful, but I can also remember many other instances where it did not work out strictly according to Hoyle and the wolf pack of the second guessers bombarded the unfortunate manager of the losing team with a torrent of unfair and thoughtless criticism.

Ah, Those Impulsive Fans!

Mind you, fans, I have always said that the American baseball fans are generally as fair minded as any body of men and women on earth, always willing to lend a helping hand to a player or manager that is deserving of their bouquets, but there are some impulsive elements not truly representing the great body of American baseball fans who are too quick to judge a man strictly on the results of one game and shower them with a perfect upheaval of blows, although they may be strictly in the right as far as inside strategy goes.

One thing to remember about this kind of a case, instead of hasty, thoughtless criticism, is the percentage of chances of success in favor of the move or against it, as the case may be. In some cases if the bases are filled it is considered a shrewd policy

BLAME BIG TEN BAN FOR IOWA'S BOND DEFAULT

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—Suspension of the University of Iowa from the Western conference in 1929 is given as the principal reason for the default of bonds on both the Iowa fieldhouse and stadium by a committee of bondsmen attempting to refinance the structures.

In a letter to all bondholders it is pointed out that the total indebtedness is $480,000. Since March 15, 1932, the stadium bonds are delinquent $10,000 in principal and $24,000 in interest. The fieldhouse bonds are in default $25,000 in principal and $3,750 in interest. It is the plan of the committee to recall the old bonds and make a new issue with no maturity date.

Koenig May Not Play Today; His Wrist Injured

New York, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Mark Koenig, veteran shortstop of the Chicago Cubs, injured a wrist in the opening game of the world series against the Yankees and may not be able to play tomorrow, Manager Charley Grimm announced tonight.

"Mark hurt his wrist sliding into third," Grimm said, "and I am doubtful he will be able to play. If he is out Bill Jurges will take his place.

"But, no matter who is in there, you can tell the world we will be fighting and that this series isn't over yet by a long shot."

Simmons Happy

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., Sept. 28.—News that he had been sold to the Chicago White Sox along with Mule Haas and Jimmy Dykes did not surprise Al Simmons, Philadelphia Athletics' slugger. Simmons, here on a barnstorming tour, said tonight that money was the motive behind the deal.

"Mack and I are on the best of terms," he said, "and we've had no falling out. The White Sox probably offered a lot of money and Mack gave in, I think, because he and the other owners need cash."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 28.—Al Simmons, one of the American league's greatest hitters, and two of his team mates George [Mule] Haas and Jimmy Dykes, will be wearing White Sox insignia in 1933.

Their sale by the Athletics to the Chicago club on a straight cash basis was revealed tonight following the last of a series of conferences between J. Louis Comiskey, owner of the Sox, Harry Grabiner, vice president, and Connie Mack, the veteran manager and part owner of the Philadelphia club.

The announcement of the biggest player deal since Rogers Hornsby was transferred by the Boston Braves to the Cubs for cash and five men is regarded as the first step by the American league to build up its cities having the best drawing power but the weakest teams.

"Biggest Deal."—Comiskey.

No intimation was given as to the amount of cash involved. President Comiskey admitted only that it was the biggest affair in which his club ever has been involved. The late Charles A. Comiskey some ten years ago paid $100,000 for Willie Kamm.

The sensational transfer of three Athletics into the holding of the Chicago club is suspected to be only the starter of moves calculated to reestablish the White Sox in their own league.

It is probable that prior to or during the winter meetings in December a star pitcher may be turned over to the Sox. When and if this happens the Sox may have to part with Ted Lyons for Bob Grove or George Earnshaw, provided the Athletics are involved. If the Athletics are not involved the Sox will put up straight cash for some notable now with another club and the stout hearted, capable Lyons will be retained for future services on the south side.

At Last—a Hitter!

In the capture of Simmons, the duke of Mitchell street, Milwaukee, the Sox own a hitter such as they have not been able to boast since the powerful aggregation of 1919 succumbed to treachery. Simmons not only is a hitter but he is a great defensive fielder.

He is 29 years old but perfectly fitted to carry on impressively for at least another three years. He'll be playing close to home. His neighbors can run down over a week-end and keep close tab on him.

Simmons, after a course of training with Aberdeen in the Dakota league; Milwaukee, Shreveport, and then Milwaukee again, was sold at a fancy figure to the Athletics by the late Otto Borchert, owner of the Brewers. In 24 games with Milwaukee in 1923, after his recall from Shreveport, he hit .393. His sale to Philadelphia followed. He's been a Mackman steadily since 1924, his best batting work in that time being .390 in 1931. He batted .323 for the 1932 season.

Star in 1929 Series.

In five of his big league seasons Simmons has made 200 or more hits. He has a life time average up to the 1932 season of .363. In three world series he averaged .333, which is exactly one hit out of three attempts. It will be recalled by the north side Cub fans that his bat played no small part in the memorable series lost by the Cubs to the Macks in 1929. He hit a home run off Carlson in the eighth inning of the second game at Chicago. His single in the fourth inning scored a pair of runs and knocked Malone out of the game. And in the fourth game he hit a home run and a single in the famous ten run seventh inning which was the most boisterous in world series history.

Simmons has a contract calling for more than $30,000 for another season, which may have been one reason why the Philadelphia owners decided to dispense with his services.

Dykes 36, But Still Good.

Dykes, who probably will be played at third base, is no child, but should be able to carry on for a couple of years. Mack picked him up as a local product in 1917 when he was 21 years old. He was farmed out on a part time basis until late in 1919. He has been with the Athletics since then, playing in turn every infield position. He is a better bet than anybody the Sox had trying to guard third base in the recent campaign. He gave the Cubs a shock with a .421

BY FRENCH LANE.

The racing jackets of Otto W. Lehmann, president of the Arlington Jockey club, and Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney of New York grabbed all the rays of the spotlight at Lincoln Fields yesterday.

Two long shots scored for the sportsmen. Mr. Lehmann's Subtlety raced to victory in the mile and a sixteenth sixth race and in the mutuels paid $85.30 for a $2 ticket. Habanero came from behind and won the Keystone Country club purse. He was the extreme outsider in the field of six and when he romped home the mutuel price was $19.26.

Subtlety, a home bred from Mr. Lehmann's breeding place on Lake Villa, is a daughter of Fair Wind-Chesney Lady. She found a drying out heavy holding track just to her liking and once she started running at the head of the stretch she made a show of the horses who were endeavoring to keep pace with her. She finally won by five lengths from the favorite, Dawn Mist, while Prettl Sing, a Kentucky filly, landed in third place.

Habanero also downed a very short priced favorite, Altmark, when he started his rush down the stretch. Altmark hung on to be second and Switch was third. Habanero ran his seven furlongs in 1:30 4-5, which was trotting horse time on any sort of a track except under the running conditions which existed at Lincoln Fields yesterday.

Favorites Win Daily Double.

The prices which prevailed indicated that neither Mr. Lehmann nor Mr. Whitney nor any of their stable connections wagered heavily on the outcome of the races which their horses won. Jockey Willie Moran was aboard Subtlety and G. Elston piloted Habanero to his triumph.

The victory of these two long shots added all the more to the work of handicappers who apply figures as they attempt to pick the winners. For only two of the "figure horse" favorites were able to win all afternoon. They were Panchio and Kilmore, which captured the second and third races.

Shaker Lady Beats Plumage.

Plumage, a proud winner of an Ashland Oaks in Kentucky, bowed her head in defeat in the Winnetka purse. The folks couldn't forget the noble Oaks triumph she had rolled up and made her a short priced favorite.

Then they came to the conclusion that a good horse of yesterday is not so good today when they watched Shaker Lady outrun her all the way.

Shaker Lady, a daughter of Dis Done and closely related to the champion filly, Top Flight, rolled past the finish line four lengths in front of Plumage and wasn't even extended as she came galloping down the stretch. Durva was third and for a time threatened to take second money away from Plumage.

Calvert Brings Her In.

Shaker Lady ran six furlongs over the difficult track in 1:16 2-5. She was at $9.84 in the betting. Jockey M. Calvert guided her home. It was one of his finished rides. This youngster is a skillful rider. If he had been in the saddle on Plumage or Durva either might have won.

FAIRMOUNT ENTR

'WE'LL GET EVEN WITH WARNEKE PITCHING'; GRIMM

Cubs Are Hitting; There's No Need to Worry.

New York, Sept. 28.—[Special.]—With the cheers of the New York Yankees victory from 41,000 throats still ringing in their ears, the Chicago Cubs solemnly walked into their dressing room today a few minutes after Mark Koenig had grounded out to Tony Lazzeri to end the first game of the world series.

There were no wild demonstrations. One by one they began to remove their uniforms. In one corner stood Guy Bush, who had held the slugging Yankees until Lou Gehrig drove a home run into the right field bleachers to start the rally which brought New York the opening victory.

Warneke Next.

Bush, baseball uniforms strewn about him, kept silent. Finally the silence was broken when Manager Grimm shouted to a player in one of the far corners of the large dressing room. Grimm was approached for a statement.

"We were beaten and there isn't much to say about it,' said Grimm as he removed his spikes. "There is still a long time to go before losing the series. We have no alibi for losing the game today, and I know Guy gave his best. He always does.

"We are going to use Lon Warneke and he'll stop them tomorrow. Lon says he is feeling great and if the boys hit like they did today, the series will be evened up tomorrow."

"Get 'Em Tomorrow."

The voice of Gabby Hartnett was heard from the shower room and the cocky Cubs, who blazed their way to the National league pennant apparently were beginning to forget what happened today.

"We'll get them tomorrow" was the slogan as they filed out of the clubhouse.

There was a different scene about twenty feet away. Here in the Yankees' room a happy group of players shouted, talked and sang. Bill Dickey, who had charged into the room with his mask and protector on, led the squad as they came in.

On a large trunk in a corner was Bill Robinson, colored tap dancer, shuffling his feet and singing as the Yankees removed their suits. In another corner was Joe McCarthy, wearing a large smile and probably thinking of the brilliant victory of his team over the club he once managed.

Lou Hit Screw Ball.

Several players slapped Charlie Ruffing on the back as he came in. Ruffing told them he would have done much better on a dry day and said his foot kept slipping on the wet turf.

"If it was dry I would have tied the record for strikeouts," he said. "Ten strikeouts. Gee, it certainly was pretty hard working against those fellows. But it's just like pitching to Philadelphia and Washington."

"I would like to see you win four straight," Ruppert said.

"Cubs Need Pitching."

"A good ball club, those Cubs, hustlers and fighters. They had to be to win the National league pennant. The whole story of their defeat today was bad pitching. That's all they needed to win, good pitching.

"Bush pitched fine ball until that fourth inning, then it seemed like he ruined himself trying to pitch too hard to our reputations, Ruth and Gehrig. He tried too hard to make them hit bad ones and lost his effectiveness. And wasn't that a beauty Lou hit?"

Some one called for McCarthy and he left. He was followed by the players, who had to push their way through autograph seekers at the clubhouse door.

Just Got Wild, Bush Explains After Game

he had missed we'd have piled up some scores. But Chapman caught that ball and the Yankees got the jump a little later."

Bush was candid about the game. There was no great fielding by either side in his opinion. He was, however, skeptical about the fighting spirit of the Yankee team. The fight just was not there on the part of the New Yorkers, so far as Mr. Bush could see—and he watched closely on and off the mound.

Wants One More Chance.

"We'll make more doubles than they will all during the series," he ventured, "and today's two doubles goes to prove that. It was a slow field today because of the rain and that slowed up the entire game. That high score sure did surprise me, though."

Bush was interrupted from time to time by telephone calls. He refused to accept condolences, however, and told each caller:

Downstairs in the lobby one could get a hundred versions of how the game was won and lost, but no one was able to quite sum it up as well as Pitcher Bush. He wants another chance to bite a Yankee—and he is likely to get it.

WORLD SERIES "GOATS."

FRED SNODGRASS was the "goat" of the 1912 world series, which strung out to eight games, one tie game included, before the Boston Red Sox defeated the New York Giants for the title. There were other misplays, indeed even in the final contest, but that of Snodgrass came at a time which caused it to be singled out and remembered.

Boston obtained an early lead of three games to one, only to have New York tie it up at three games. Then the eighth and final contest was played in Boston, with Hugh Bedient and Christy Mathewson the opposing pitchers.

Going into the tenth inning, the score was tied at 1 to 1. With New York batting first, Jack Murray doubled to left after one was out and scored what looked like the winning run on Fred Merkle's hard single over second base. Herzog struck out. Pitcher Wood, who had gone to the slab when Bedient retired for a pinch hitter in the seventh, threw out Chief Meyers for the third out. Meyers' drive was a hard hit ball, which probably would have gone to the fence had it gotten through the infield. The impact crippled Wood's hand, which had a bearing on subsequent events.

Wood was first up for Boston in the last half of the tenth, but owing to his injured hand Engle was substituted. He lifted a long fly to Snodgrass, who played the ball perfectly and was squarely under it when he made one of those unexplainable fumbles which at rare intervals are perpetrated even by the greatest outfielders. Ninety-nine times out of one hundred, possibly 999 out of 1,000, he would have made the catch.

Engle went to second base on the error. Snodgrass came right back with a brilliant catch of Hooper's long fly which looked good for three bases. One out. Mathewson apparently attempted to strike out Yerkes with wide curves and ended by walking him. Speaker hit the first ball for an easy foul, which should have been caught by Merkle. Instead, Mathewson and Meyers also started for the ball and in the confusion it dropped among the three of them.

Speaker, with another opportunity, then singled to right, scoring Engle with the tying run. Yerkes went to third on the hit. Gardner flied to Devore in right field. Devore caught the ball and made a desperate throw to the plate to head off Yerkes, who had started from third as soon as the catch was made. Yerkes outraced the throw and the game and series were over.

This detail shows that the walk to Yerkes and the foul fly which fell to the ground also were vital factors, but Snodgrass' error stood out and has been remembered down through the years.

A Lullaby for the Babe.

I have thrilled at Speaker's catches and I can still see Ty Cobb when second base he snatches, though the catcher's on the job. I admired the graceful Sisler, he who did the batsman rob when he gobbled up a whistler and electrified the mob. I liked Peckinpaugh and Bucky, and old Walter, staid and true, but I count that day most lucky when I see Babe Ruth come through.

Many stars have aged and faded since the big Bambino came; some retired, sold, or traded, but he keeps on just the same. Oh, there are a lot of hitters—Goslin, Gehrig, Hurst, and Klein; and at Foxx nobody titters, for his average is fine; but there's something so appealing in the way Babe doffs his hat—there's a tenseness that comes stealing when the big Babe comes to bat.

I forget the curves of Faber, I forget the speed of Vance, and I draw my breath with labor as I gaze upon his stance. He's the poetry of motion—hit or miss he brings a roar from the crowd which shares my notion—we'll see his ilk no more. He may never match the season with his sixty record blows, but he's still a mighty reason why folks flock to baseball shows. Dwight Packard.

No Series for Firemen; Stands Kill Their View

Only the pitcher at Wrigley field will be visible to the firemen of engine company 78 at Waveland and Seminary avenues during the world series games, they discovered yesterday. Heretofore they have lolled on the roof of the fire house and viewed the games, but the erection of temporary left field bleachers has reduced their vision.

SERIES GAINS DECISION OVER WEATHER MAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 28.—Baseball's big fall show opened to thousands of vacant seats at Yankee stadium this afternoon, but after a lot of posing and a couple of tilts with the weather man, the world series got under way, with Mayor Joseph V. McKee right in the front row of Col. Jacob Ruppert's private box.

The big ruffing and ready boy from Illinois who pitched for the Yanks had more steam than a Pennsylvania locomotive and probably had more fun than any other player on either team this afternoon.

The crowd was slow in gathering and there were great open spaces in each of the tiers of the stadium at game time.

At 1:20 the coy sun slid behind a black cloud from the northwest and rain began to fall. The bleacher crowds donned paper hats, the civil war uniformed band scurried for cover and four umpires got wet before they reached a haven in the Cub dugout. The ground keeper's crew spread protecting cover over the base paths and the boxholders fled to the dark interior of the grandstand—and then the sun came out.

The apartment house roof crowd came out after the shower but the roofs were no better filled than the grandstand, several roofs remaining bare throughout the game.

Hartnett gave a fan the first souvenir ball of the series when he fouled one into the stand behind third base. There was a major scramble for the ball.

The clouds had rolled away by the fourth inning and a cool wind made topcoats popular in the damp grandstand. The crowd was quiet for a world series turnout, there being a minimum of cheering just for the sake of cheering.

The deliberate walking of Koenig in the fourth was roundly booed. It was a strategic move to get Pitcher Bush and end the inning. But it went wrong, for Bush walked, too. It did not cost anything, however, for Herman flied out.

Bush threw one right at Babe's appendix in the fourth, but the Babe dodged the operation and singled to bring in the Yankees' first score. Then Gehrig socked one into the bleachers for the first real thrill of the series. Murderer's row had begun work.

Grimes relieved Bush in the sixth and Guy walked slowly, with head down, to the dugout to an accompaniment of cheers and boos. Bush had allowed only 3 hits—walking caused his downfall. The Yanks got five runs, but somehow the crowd didn't appear very excited about it.

The Yankees got their first eight runs on only four hits. Mayor McKee applauded the economy.

ROOSEVELTS GET WORLD SERIES BY RADIO ON TRAIN

Fort Morgan, Colo., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential candidate, was too busy today to listen to the radio account of the world series opener, but other members of his party followed the broadcast in the club car closely. Gov. Roosevelt was preparing a series of speeches to be delivered at McCook, Neb., Sioux City, Ia., Milwaukee, and Chicago.

Among those who heard the broadcast of the game between the Yanks and Cubs were James Roosevelt, his son, Mrs. Anna Dall, his daughter, and Mrs. James Roosevelt.

Babe Breaks 5 of His Records in Series Game

New York, Sept. 28.—[Special.]—Babe Ruth broke five of his own records when he played with the New York Yankees in the opening game of the world series against the Chicago Cubs today.

He set a new record for participating in world series when he stepped into Yankee Stadium for his tenth series. He increased his batting records to 34 runs, 28 runs batted in, 86 total bases, and 31 bases on balls. A single was Ruth's only safe hit in today's game.

Yankees Couple Timely Hits with Bush's Wildness to Defeat Cubs in Opener, 12 to 6

two-third innings, which was long enough. He gave up one base on balls, three hits, plunked a batter, and delivered a spectacular wild pitch. Smith was around only for one inning, the eighth, but it was sufficient to let the Yanks rip off another pair of hits, good for their final run.

The Cub pitchers weren't the only ones who were offensive when they should have been defensive. English kicked one, but Bush, although weakening at the time, was able to overcome it. But he was not able to overcome the ve run storm which broke in the next inning. Billy Herman blankly held a batted ball while men were running in the three run seventh. Hartnett lost a play at the plate, although it was excusable. He also made a wide peg to second when a good throw would have helped. This didn't cost anything. And Johnny Moore ducked away from a high fly that caused Smith's troubles in the eighth.

There may have been a little bit of mental anguish in what the Cub pitchers did. Apparently they went into the game with some fear of the things they had heard about Ruth and Gehrig. Bush stopped both of them once while he had his stuff, but one was checked only because of a brilliant stop by Grimm. After that they were terrors.

When Ruth singled in the fourth it was the first of three successive trips to base, two on passes. Bush gave one and Grimes the other. After Gehrig had knocked the bottom out of the game with his homer in the fourth, he was on base twice more on a pass and a single off Grimes. Between them they carried across the plate exactly half of the Yanks' dozen runs.

Ruffing Fans Ten.

A few words can well be devoted to Ruffing, the Nokomis, Ill., speed baller. One of the two runs scored off him in the first inning was unearned because of Ruth's fielding. He then tightened and rolled up a total of eight strikeouts up to the end of the sixth inning. He added two more later to make ten. Two runs in the seventh resulted from Crosetti blundering on what should have been the third out.

The two other Cub tallies, registered in the eighth, were actually legitimate, but by that time the show was as good as over and the customers, who had been moistened by rain at the start, were walking out on the sad spectacle.

Herman Leads Off with Hit.

Once the preliminaries had been disposed of and the sun came out in a serious way there wasn't much of a wait before the fireworks were touched off. Ruffing opened his part of the struggle with two pitches that Herman, the Cub leadoff man, refused to notice. The next came over. It was slapped along the third base line for a foul. Then Ruffing threw another right through the middle and Herman lined it straight into center for a single.

English came up and got himself into a jam with a pair of strikes. Then the hit and run was called for. Twice Herman broke for second and twice English tried to drive the ball behind the runner, but it went into foul territory. He tried it a third time and it worked. The ball shot toward right, too high for Gehrig to reach. Ruth ran over to cut it off, reached down to grab it on the first hop, but let it bounce over his hands.

Woody Dives Into Third.

Ruth turned in pursuit. His aged legs buckled under him and he went down, but he was up in an instant to clutch the ball as it bounced back off the wall. There were sickening groans from the multitude because the Babe's infirmities had shown up so early. And there were cheers as Herman went tearing around to the plate and English to third, where he arrived with a headlong slide just as Ruth's long throw hit the ground in front of Sewell.

Then Ruffing started to pitch. He fooled Cuyler so completely that the veteran fly chaser folded up with a futile third strike. There was none of that for the unerring Stephenson, the so-called Ol' Hoss. A typical Stephenson hit bounced past Ruffing and Lazzeri for a single, on which English scooted home with the second run. And then Ruffing put on a real burst of pitching that sent Moore and Grimm spinning backwards on strikes.

Hartnett fell the same way to start the second inning, giving Ruffing four strikeouts in as many men retired.

Cuyler Singles, Steals Second.

The Cubs put on another flareup in the third, but it was too mild to be of importance. After Herman and English had been set down on infield rollers, Cuyler banged a single high over short and came close to making an attempt to stretch it into a double. He made the break for second, but turned back. A moment later he went tearing down there on a steal that was so unexpected by Dickey, the Yankee cather, that he threw high to Lazzeri. The steal availed nothing, because Stephenson's low liner sailed straight into Combs' hands.

The Chicagoans were pounding on the door again in the fourth but the hit needed to blast it open didn't appear. Moore popped out to start the inning and Grimm struck out for the second time. Ruffing's fast ball was causing all this trouble. Hartnett, however, timed one properly and pulled around to drill a low liner against the low left field wall for a double.

There was no hesitancy on Ruffing's part about obeying Manager McCarthy's order to pass Koenig. But when Ruffing tried to get the ball over for Bush he couldn't and the Chicago pitcher walked to fill the bases. A moment later Chapman charged over toward the left field line to get Herman's fly and that was all.

Bush Perfect for Three Innings.

Here's what Bush did in the perfect first three innings he pitched: For a starter on his big assignment he fanned Combs, the leadoff man, which, according to baseball superstition, is the equivalent of an invitation to disaster. Sewell fouled to Grimm and the latter dived for a low, hard grounder to rob Ruth of a hit.

Dickey flied to Cuyler for the only ball driven beyond the infield in the second inning. It was almost the same in the third. And then came the first display of the Yanks' dreaded power on attack.

During his brilliant three innings Bush hadn't shown even a semblance of wildness. He never was in the hole to the hitters. But when Combs stepped up to open the uphappy fourth Bush was plainly on the verge of weariness. Combs just stood around the plate patiently until a base on balls was forced on him. Sewell tried to poke a ball past Grimm, but the manager-first baseman grabbed it for a putout, Combs going to second.

Along Comes Gehrig.

The famed Mr. Ruth didn't unload any of his specialties, but he did hammer a single past Grimm on which Combs scored. Then Gehrig broke up the show. Bush pitched cautiously, but couldn't carry the battle any farther than a 2 and 2 count. The next pitch was the one sent away to distant parts. The ball sailed into the right field bleacher well back of the 350 foot sign. Ruth jogged slowly around the bases, Gehrig followed him, they shook hands at the plate, and the Yanks were out in front, 3 to 2.

It probably was a stroke of fortune for Bush that the Yanks didn't blemish his record some more in the fifth. His mates did the best they could to bring on this annoyance, but the Mississippian hung on doggedly until he pulled himself out. English started the inning by momentarily fumbling Chapman's grounder and then, with still enough time to get the man, pulled Grimm off the bag with the throw. Hartnett picked up Crosetti's bunt and made a valiant attempt to catch Chapman going to second, but the throw wasn't close to the bag. Hartnett did throw out Chapman at third on Ruffing's bunt, and a double play, started by Herman, ended the inning abruptly.

Bush Walks Three in Row.

The terrifying sixth, in which five Yanks thundered across the plate and Bush went on his way, began with Sewell walking. Bush by now was devoid of all his cunning. He tried to pitch to Ruth and couldn't. The Babe waited until given a pass. It was the same with Gehrig. He waited until Bush had produced another pass, filling the bases with none out. Lazzeri helped the Chicago cause a bit by popping to Koenig, but the real bad news came right after this.

With the infield drawn in, Dickey slammed a hit between Herman and second base. It sent Sewell and Ruth skipping across the plate and Gehrig to third. The infield was still drawn in when Chapman bounced to Herman, but Hartnett couldn't handle the throw in time to keep Gehrig from scoring. Bush walked Crosetti, filling the bases again, and the situation was turned over to Grimes.

Combs Drives in Two More.

Ruffing was the first man to face the bewhiskered veteran spitballer and he sent a hopper to Koenig on which Dickey was nailed at the plate. Then Combs singled to center to drive in Chapman and Crosetti with the last of the five run cluster. Grimm ran over in front of Herman to make a beautiful pickup of Sewell's bounder, which he threw to Koenig to end the panic.

It didn't make much difference to anybody that the Cubs scored a pair of runs in the seventh. Grimes fanned for a starter and Herman singled to center. As a means of protecting Ruth Combs dash over into right field for English's tall fly. Cuyler bounced gently to short and Crosetti hastening for a possible double play, let the ball roll through his hands. The blunder put Herman on third and Cuyler on second. Stephenson contributed the hit that sent them home. Then Moore walked and the third out was produced on Grimm's grounder back to the pitcher.

Herman Hesitates, Is Lost.

Grimes discovered in the Yankee seventh that the handling of Ruth and Gehrig was as much a problem for him as it had been for Bush. Burleigh walked the Babe to open the inning and Gehrig burst forth with a scorching single through short. Ruth taking third. In this spot Herman committed an unpardonable offense. He picked up Lazzeri's grounder and started to throw for the plate, but changed his mind. He turned to throw to Grimm, who was waving frantically for the ball, but Herman couldn't let it go. Ruth scored on the lapse and Lazzeri was presented with a hit.

The third run scored by the Yanks in the seventh was the outcome of Grimes' wildness. He hit Dickey on the right ankle with a pitched ball. A fly and a force play registered outs on the next two men, but when Ruffing was at the plate Grimes let loose with a beautiful wild pitch that sent Hartnett tearing back to the grandstand. Lazzeri scored and Crosetti was killed off making a half hearted attempt to reach third on the crazy pitch.

Koenig Smacks Triple.

Two hits were all the Cubs needed for two runs in the eighth. They proved productive because they traveled for extra bases. Hartnett whipped a two bagger to left and scored on Koenig's triple which dropped between Combs and Ruth. Gudat, batting for Grimes, struck out, but on Herman's infield out, Gehrig to Ruffing, Koenig ran home.

The Yanks enlivened their eighth with a run they could hardly avoid, making the score 12 to 6. Smith fanned Ruffing, after which Combs boosted a fly to center. It fell for a double when Moore lost it in the sun. Combs scored on Sewell's single through short. And the inning ended with Cuyler backing up against the right field fence for another Gehrig drive which for a few moments carried the earmarks of a homer.

Rain, Not Game Worries Wives of Cubs in Stadium

New York, Sept. 28.—(AP)—A group of nervous wives were sitting down in the boxes of the Yankee stadium today a half hour or so before the opening game of the world's series and they weren't worrying about their husbands. They were anxiously scanning the drab skies overhead.

"It's going to rain any minute now," said Mrs. John Moore, wife of the Cubs' center fielder, as she pulled her smart grey caracul wrap about her red clad figure.

"If it rains, I'll just die," said Mrs. Ralston Hemsley, equally busy preparing for the first warning drops. She was looking for something to protect the green bagheera turban atop her auburn locks.

They were the wives of the Chicago Cubs, en mass, troopers all of them, and loyal to each man. But here they were in New York, like a group of mannikins fresh from a fashion show. The rain, they surmised, would spoil their new fall togs. They were not thinking about the game just then.

It did rain and they scampered for shelter, the whole group led by Mrs. Guy Bush, just recovered from a tonsilitis attack, and dressed in her newest ensemble, a stunning mustard colored woolen suit with a matching satin blouse and hat.

GOVERNMENT TO TAX ROOF GAZERS NEAR CUBS' PARK

Bargain hunting fans who patronize the roofs and upper windows of apartment buildings near Wrigley field will be taxed for their privilege if they pay more than 40 cents to see world series games. This was announced yesterday by Gregory T. Van Meter, collector of internal revenue.

The size of these unofficial bleachers will be limited, however, because of building department and police restrictions, and the government's revenue from such a source is not expected to greatly exceed the cost of keeping deputies at the buildings to check the "ticket takers," Van Meter admitted.

Acting on instructions from Washington, Van Meter also detailed deputies to check and collect a 10 per cent tax from all brokers who charge more than the prices marked on tickets for the games.

Hornsby Will Not Attend Series; Remains at Home

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby, deposed manager of the Cubs, will not attend the world series. He has been a regular attendant at series for several years. He is at his ome at Robertson, Mo.

Hunters Will Forget Series on Saturday

BY BOB BECKER.

Chicagoans are expecting to hear the boom of bats against baseballs next Saturday when the world's series is continued on the north side. But on that same day, just across the line in Wisconsin, there should be plenty of booming from hunter's guns, the like of which hasn't been heard for many years. The occasion is the opening of the upland game and waterfowl hunting season in Wisconsin.

The shotgun schedule for Wisconsin, beginning Saturday, offers a line-up that is expected to take several thousand sportsmen from their radios and baseball broadcasts. First, there is a generous open season on ruffled grouse or partridge, that sporty game bird which has been protected for many years. The season starts at noon Oct. 1 and continues to Oct. 6. The daily bag limit is four birds and the possession limit is eight.

Prairie Chicken Season Opens, Too.

On the same day the open season on prairie chicken and sharp tailed grouse also will start. This gives the hunters who have been boarding pointing dogs and spaniels a chance to see their pets work. The bag limits for chickens and sharp tails are the same as those for ruffled grouse.

There is an experimental season on quail in two counties, Crawford and Richland. This will be a treat for Wisconsin upland game hunters. It is the first time in the present century, according to the conservation commission, that Wisconsin sportsmen have been allowed to shoot Bob Whites. There are more quail in certain spots in Wisconsin than there have been at any time in the last 35 years. This year the season opens at noon on Oct. 1 and continues through Oct. 3.

Here's Dessert for Hunters.

As if this outdoor sport menu were not enough, Wisconsin hunters have a dessert this year in two more kinds of upland game hunting: a season on pheasant cocks and an experimental season on the Hungarian partridge. Kenosha, Racine, and Walworth counties, which are close to Chicagoland, have a season for partridge hunting from Oct. 1 to 3. Eight counties are open for pheasant cock shooting.

Apparently the whole state will take on a holiday atmosphere beginning Saturday. Railroads will run specials for hunters. Resorts are keeping open to care for sportsmen. With this background Wisconsin may expect to stage a real upland game hunting festival.

SCHMELING GETS BACK $250 FINE AT COURT SESSION

New York, Sept. 28.—[Special.]—Max Schmeling, former holder of the world's championship, who last Monday night defeated Mickey Walker, was examined behind closed doors in the county courthouse today. Schmeling appeared in court for an examination before trial in a $100,000 suit brought by Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, who charges the German fighter broke a contract to meet him in September, 1931.

Schmeling received $250, which he had paid as a fine imposed upon him for contempt of court last week.

because if you do not have any runners on the bases you can only make one putout at a time, whereas if there are runners on the old hassocks you may get a chance for a double play or even a triple.

But it certainly was good to see the way the old Bambino handled himself out there in the outer garden, deceiving the opposing hitters into hitting his way where Combs was prowling with his eaglelike swoop to turn apparent doubles into sudden defeat. As I doped the right field station, I figured that Ruth would probably kick one for strategic deception which is something that you cannot get away from as a factor of victory in any game where brains count as well as brawn.

Just What Dope Figured.

This turned out exactly according to the advance dope and the Cubs were led repeatedly into the tangled quagmire of a cul-de-sac when Combs swooped down like a jack rabbit and struck them back repeatedly with sudden flashes of brilliance that stunned them with sledge hammer force.

But it is easy to be swept away on a sudden burst of enthusiasm over one victory, and one cardinal rule of baseball is to remember that tomorrow is always another day, bringing its developments which nobody can foresee in advance.

My theory is that the Cubs are not beaten yet, although the Yankees undoubtedly now have the psychological advantage of the aggressive, victorious feeling which is hard to beat when the teams are as evenly matched.

In the last analysis it is the pitching and the hitting that will tell the final story of victory and glory, and I still stick to my predictions which have been borne out 100 per cent by the ebb and flow of today's gala conflict of the old gala ceremonies at the House that Ruth Built.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 28.—On a slight upturn in business the bond market developed uniform strength today, with the exception of treasury obligations, which were for the most part slightly lower.

The high grade corporation list displaced the speculative railroad issues as market leaders. Advances were spread evenly over the list to include both rails and utilities.

The feature of a generally firm foreign section were Australian bonds, which posted gains up to 6 points on buying, in which London was reported to have been a principal source.

High Grade Rails Up.

Gains in high grade rail and utility bonds included such issues as Atchison general 4s, Chesapeake and Ohio general 4½s, Consolidated Gas of New York 4½s, Delaware and Hudson refunding 4s, Detroit Edison 4½s, Kansas Gas and Electric 4½s, Union Pacific first 4s and many others.

Among the high grade domestic issues to better their 1932 peak prices were Union Pacific refunding 4s, Santa Fé general 4s, Hocking Valley 4½s, Public Service Electric and Gas 4s, Philadelphia Electric 4s, Pennsylvania 5s of 1964, and New York Steam 5s. New York Central 3½s advanced a point on a few trades.

Easy Money Helps Prices.

Persistent demand for high grade bonds, while in some measure related to the more favorable tenor of today's industrial news, was attributed primarily to the extraordinary ease in money rates and to the widespread restoration of confidence in the country's underlying financial stability.

Second grade rails were only moderately active and in only a few instances were their gains more than fractional. Ontario Power Service rose to a new high and are now more than three times the low price of early summer.

Wide gains in Australian bonds were most pronounced in issues of the state of Queensland, although obligations of the commonwealth enjoyed substantial advances. The street has little gossip concerning the cause of the buying, though it is believed to be of good quality, coming as it does from London. However, it was pointed out here that the rapidity of the gains was partly owing to the virtual absence of offerings.

Hudson and Manhattan.

Please inform me as to Hudson and Manhattan Railroad company stock.—T. C.

Hudson and Manhattan Railroad company operates a double track interurban passenger service from New York City, under the Hudson river, to Hoboken and Jersey City, N. J. It owns two buildings in downtown New York.

The company is under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission and is therefore not governed by the 5 cent fare rule in New York City, although enjoying the results of the growth of the city.

Unemployment has cut down commuter traffic and New York real estate conditions have reduced rental income from its properties. The Holland tunnel and the George Washington bridge are competitive factors.

Gross revenues for the first seven months of 1932 were $5,596,000, against $6,468,000 for the corresponding 1931 period. Net income was $541,000, which was 3.54 times preferred dividends and equal to 97 cents per common share. For the first seven months of 1931 net income was $1,082,000, which was 6.74 times preferred dividends and equal to $2.20 per common share.

Total railway and rental revenues for 1931 were $7,838,000, against $8,639,000 for 1930 and $8,965,000 for 1929. Net income for 1931 was $1,629,000, or $3.44 per common share, against $2,139,000, or $4.69 per common share, for 1930. Net for 1929 was $2,247,000.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $3,680,000 and current liabilities were $2,414,000. Cash assets were more than $3,000,000. Working capital was $1,467,000, against $3,653,000 the year before.

Bonds represent about 61 per cent of capitalization, preferred stock, 4 per cent, and common stock, 35 per cent.

Bonded debt totals $71,567,000. There are outstanding 52,249 shares of 5 per cent noncumulative convertible preferred [par $100] and 399,954 shares of $100 par common.

The common has paid semi-annual dividends of $1.75 per share since 1930.

LETTERS TELL STORY OF REAL BUSINESS GAINS

Smaller Firms Find Sales Better.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

How's business?

The carloading figures say that the railroads' volume of traffic is up. Steel operations are expanding. Other accepted indices have been pointing upward for weeks.

But these are impersonal things. The most encouraging aspect of the business picture has been the renewed hope and enthusiasm of the individual business man.

For about three years while the big moguls of industry and finance have been making august remarks about the fundamental soundness of American business the ordinary business man has watched his order book get thinner and has kept his mouth shut.

Things Getting Better.

But since midsummer things have been getting better for these fellows, judging by the letters that have been coming in to me during the last few days. Better sales have been restoring confidence to business men throughout the middle west, and this is an even better omen than the rising barometers of trade.

"We have checked our telephone calls and personal calls and find since the last two weeks that each of them has increased more than fivefold," writes William Rapp, Chicago manager for the United States Gauge company.

"We have had long distance telephone orders, which we had not had for a long time. That is also true of telegraphic orders.

"Analyzing the orders we have received, we find that a great many of them are for replacements ordered by jobbers whose customers are consumers and they are intended for replacements upon high pressure boilers—in other words, for large and small factories that are going over their plants and getting ready for renewed business.

A Decided Upturn.

"There was a slight hesitation a few days before the Maine election and a practical stop a day or two after the Maine election, but there has been a very decided upturn since a day or two before the Wisconsin election which has continued in increased measure since.

"We believe that improvement has definitely set in. We are hopeful that the improvement will not be a too violent one, as we fear that a buyers' panic would not be favorable for a great many smaller and many larger manufacturers to whom credit is not available to take advantage of a sudden offer of business.

"Many of our customers advise that their own experience has been very similar to ours."

Large Number of Orders.

E. C. McComb of the Renard Linoleum and Rug company's Chicago office writes to report the largest number of orders in many months.

"The response thus far from Chicago and other branches indicates a decided increase both in number and volume of orders," he says. "The feeling in general throughout the floor covering trade seems much better."

A letter was received yesterday afternoon from Vallee O. Appel, president of the Fulton Market Cold Storage company, Fulton and Morgan streets, Chicago, announcing that his company was backing with cash its belief that better times were on the way. A 2 per cent dividend on the company's $1,109,300 of preferred stock has been declared, he announces.

A Pleasant Surprise.

"This is the first dividend ever declared by this company since its organization in 1920," says Mr. Appel. "It was felt by the directors that while the earnings of the company were considerably less than in previous years a dividend was nevertheless warranted and would be particularly acceptable to stockholders at this time.

"The cold storage industry has suffered appreciably, but it is believed that we have passed through the worst of difficult times and that from now on there would be a recovery in business connected with perishable food commodities."

Reports Big Orders.

Charles G. Munn, president of the Reynolds Spring company of Jackson, Mich., announced yesterday that the company now has more than $1,000,000 worth of orders on hand for its new line of household utensils and that large scale orders aggregating between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 are now pending.

"We are confining our present efforts to distribution through the large chain store systems and negotiating large scale orders. We expect to announce shortly completion of several contracts whereby we will supply these companies with from 5 to 30 million units of special articles we have designed for them. Our first such order has already been closed for 3 million units."

Transit Group Approves Test of 'Ideal' Car

A broad program of expansion and selling for the coming year was adopted by the American Electric Railway association at the final session of its convention at the Stevens hotel yesterday. The delegates, representing 200 companies that carry $6,000,000 passengers daily, indorsed the national plan presented by Guy A. Richardson, president of the association and head of the Chicago Surface lines.

GUY A. RICHARDSON. [Toloff Photo.]

Outstanding in the program is the completion of the model electric car on which Dr. C. F. Hirschfeld of Detroit and a group of international engineers have been working for the last year.

Ready to Build New Car.

Financed with a $500,000 appropriation Dr. Hirschfeld has been endeavoring to build a lighter, speedier and less noisy street car. He reported that virtually all the research work is done and that during the coming year he expects to build the car. Indications are that it will embody the improvements that are sought, he said.

"We must compete with the speed and comfort of the automobile to better advantage," Richardson said. "To do this we must use the best available equipment for each class of service. We must keep before the public the essentiality of our service."

Walter A. Draper of Cincinnati was elected president of the association for 1933, W. E. Wood of New York and Edward A. Dana of Boston vice president, and Fred W. Doolittle, treasurer.

Include Bus Operators.

The delegates voted to change the name of the organization to the American Transit association, and to change its by-laws to allow representatives of independent bus operating companies to become members. The bus lines that will be permitted to membership operate 15,000 units throughout the country. The combined service of the two groups, electric rail and independent bus operators, approximate 100,000 miles.

One immediate advantage that is expected to grow out of the joining of electric rail and independent bus operators is federal legislation covering the bus lines, officials said.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 28.—The Standard Oil company of New York today cut the price of gasoline one cent a gallon in the New York metropolitan area. The same reduction was made in Albany and Buffalo. At the same time the company cut the price 1½ cents a gallon in Boston.

The new price in New York is 11 cents a gallon exclusive of a 4 cent tax. In Boston the reduction brings the tank wagon price down to 10 cents and the service station price to 11 cents, excluding tax.

The reduction made by Standard Oil company of New York follows a cut of 2 to 3 cents a gallon made by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey in its territory and one of half a cent a gallon made by the Standard Oil company of Ohio throughout its entire territory. The Atlantic Refining company and the Standard Oil company of Pennsylvania also reduced prices throughout Pennsylvania.

Canadian Milled Exports to United Kingdom Increase

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 28.—(AP)—The export of Canadian milled products of the United Kingdom in the first five months of the present year was valued at $4,179,388, compared with $3,848,542 in the same period last year, according to a report issued by the dominion bureau of statistics today. The export of wheat flour was 960,627 barrels valued at $3,304,185, compared with 851,435 barrels at $3,033,210 in the same period last year.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

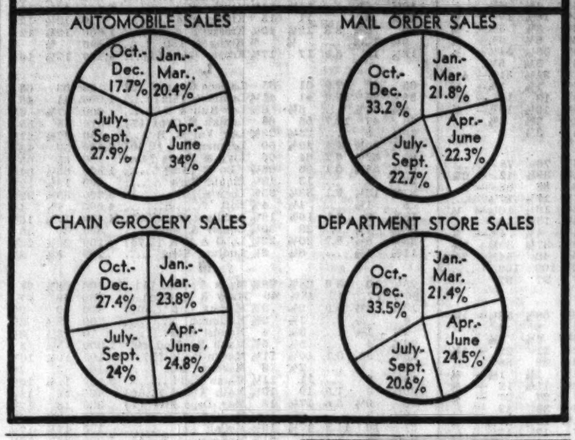
New York, Sept. 28.—Electric power production for the week ended Sept. 24 showed some improvement over the preceding period and was heartening in that the central industrial region, which has been lagging behind the rest of the nation, picked up.

The gain during the week of 14,000,000 K. W. H. reversed the downward trend of 1929, 1930, and 1931, when losses were registered and the percentage decrease from last year was narrowed compared with the preceding seven days. Total output was 1,490,863,000 K. W. H., compared with 1,476,442,000 in the preceding week. This was a decrease of 10.2 per cent from last year, against 11.2 per cent previously, according to the National Electric association.

Production in the Atlantic states, excluding New England, was 6.9 per cent below last year, whereas the week before it was 7.3 below; New England production was 6.0 per cent below, against 4.1 last week; the central industrial states, 13.8, against 15.3, and the Pacific coast states 8.1, against 5.6.

The electricity output for the Chicago district for the week ended Sept. 24 was 87,599,000 kilowatt hours in comparison with 100,352,000 in the corresponding week of 1931—a decrease of 12.7 per cent. In commenting on the situation the Commonwealth Edison company says the percentage shows a decided improvement, establishing a definite trend upward when consideration is given to the effects of unfavorable weather comparisons during the two preceding weeks.

The Last Quarter Is Best of the Year for Many Lines of Retail Business



Small Buyers Big Factor in Steel Upturn

Steel production in the Chicago district increased materially last week as the result of orders received from small buyers, including many small shops. The major steel consuming industries contributed less than their share to the week's orders. The increased activity in the Chicago steel area was the main factor in lifting the rate of operations for the country as a whole to 17½ per cent of capacity.

These facts concerning the trend of steel operations last week are set forth in weekly review of Iron Age which was released yesterday.

Operations in this district increased from 13 to 17 per cent of capacity. The pick-up lessened the discrepancy which has existed between the rate in the Chicago area and the nation as a whole.

Other Areas Gain.

Other factors which contributed the rise in operations throughout the country were the modest gains registered by the mills in the Pittsburgh and valleys districts. The gains in these sections were smaller than in the Chicago area.

Particular significance was attached to the fact that it was the small users who created last week' demand. The trade journal points out that the major industries are expected to become a greater factor in the market within the next 30 to 60 days. Supporting this prediction it sets forth that the railroads are opening up their shops. While purchases by the carriers are small at the present, it is said that they will need material in the near future.

Railroads Prepare to Buy.

Several indications of increasing railroad activity are cited. The Pennsylvania will ask for prices this week on about 9,000 tons of shapes and bars for the building of 1,285 cars in its own shops and has placed orders for 7,500 light rolled steel wheels. The New York, New Haven and Hartford has formally applied to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a loan of $700,000 for the repair of 93 locomotives and 160 freight cars.

The Central of New Jersey, which has applied for $500,000, will repair 75 locomotives, 900 freight cars, and 55 passenger cars and marine equipment. Large construction projects to be financed by federal loans will be slower to reach the steel mills than the requirements of the railroads, but progress is being made on several important applications.

A loan has been granted for the belt line bridge over the Mississippi river near New Orleans which will require 58,000 tons of structural steel and 5,000 tons of reinforcing bars. The structural material has been allocated to two fabricators. An early report is expected from R. F. C. engineers on a tunnel from Brooklyn to Staten Island which will require 25,000 tons of steel.

Structural steel inquiries total 18,400 tons, the largest since the last week of August, and lettings amount to 15,200 tons.

Nation's Monetary Gold Stock Increases $2,828,100

New York, Sept. 28.—(AP)—A net gain of $2,828,100 in America's monetary gold supply was reported today by the Federal Reserve bank of New York. It resulted from a release of that amount from gold earmarked for foreign account. There were no imports or exports.

Bradstreet's Finds Trade Reports Best of Year

Chicago, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Bradstreet's today said: "Reports, covering all lines of trade and manufacturing, are the best of the year." The R. G. Dun & Co. report was less enthusiastic, but emphasized the improvement in the wholesale field.

Shipping Board Approves Uniform Rates for 14 Lines

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.—(AP)—The shipping board today approved an agreement for uniform rates between 14 intercoastal steamship companies operating between Atlantic and Pacific ports via the Panama canal.

PACKERS POINT OUT PICKUP IN PICKLE PRICES

Pickle prices are picking up according to a bulletin received from the National Pickle Packers' association which is opening its annual fall convention at the Palmer house today. J. E. Mitchell, president of the association, says that the price upturn follows the harvesting of the smallest cucumber crop in the history of the industry.

The 1932 raw pickle harvest is estimated at 1,000,000 bushels, a decrease of more than 80 per cent from 1931 when 5,976,000 bushels were grown.

The small 1932 crop will go a long way toward solving the overproduction problem which has been vexing the industry in recent years. And this is being accomplished without the benefit of government stabilization efforts.

"Overproduction of both raw and packed products resulting in a flooded market and consumer prices below packing costs appear to have been ended in the pickle and condiment industry, as well as in many other food lines," G. S. Callender, president of the association, declares.

Fur Industry Brightens.

The fur industry is beginning to show signs of life again. Intentionally or not, the designers of women's coats have opened up a new vista of hope for the furriers. The unexpected change in styles, which mean opportunity for the industry, comes after three years of adverse conditions during which buyers have held the whip hand.

That the buyer's market is gradually giving way to a seller's market is the opinion expressed by R. G. Dun & Co., in a review of the industry. The forces, this agency says, which have turned the tide in the long dormant cotton, wool, rayon, silk and shoe industries are now at work in the fur trade. The change in cloth coat styles has made "fur trim" the outstanding feature, the company reports.

The change is welcomed by an industry which reported 177 business failures with liabilities of $4,371,244 for the first six months this year. This insolvency record surpassed the entire preceding 12 months when the industry reported 85 defaults representing liabilities of $3,187,885.

Sell Stock to Cut Bank Loans.

In prosperous times keen corporation managers retire their bank and bond indebtedness through common stock financing. In periods of depressed stock prices such a course is seldom feasible. The Curtiss-Wright corporation, however, has arranged to pare down its bank debts by such a financing method. Yesterday the firm applied to the New York stock exchange for listing of an additional 508,100 shares of common stock. The company stated in its application that it has arranged to sell 108,000 shares at $4.25 a share and has been authorized to dispose of the remaining 400,000 shares at prices to average $4.25. The identity of the purchasers was not revealed. With the proceeds, it was stated, the company will reduce its bank loans. Curtiss-Wright was quoted at $2.62½ at the close yesterday on the New York exchange.

RAILROAD GAINS BRING PLANS TO HIRE MORE MEN

Start Improvements and Repairs.

Business appears to be improving for the railroads. Carloadings are better and the general outlook is sufficiently bright to cause two of the most important systems in the country, the New York Central lines and the Baltimore and Ohio, to undertake repairs and improvements which will give work to thousands of men. The Norfolk and Western proposes an extensive track laying program.

The New York Central's announcement of its plans to put 4,000 to work in its various shops was particularly heartening since this action is being taken as a result of improved business rather than through help from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

N. Y. C. to Employ 4,000.

The New York Central's statement follows:

"Improvement in business has led the New York Central to announce a tentative program of increased operations in its cars and locomotive shops commencing Oct. 1. The program calls for the employment of about 4,000 men and its continuance will depend upon the course of business.

"Locomotive shops at Bucyrus, O., Jackson, Mich.; St. Thomas, Ont., and passenger car shops at West Albany, N. Y., and Beech Grove, Ind., will be opened for the first time since July. Operations will be continued on a greater scale in locomotive shops at West Albany, N. Y.; Cleveland, Beech Grove, Ind., and St. Thomas, Ont., and in passenger car shops at West Albany, Beech Grove, and Cleveland.

"Smaller groups of men will be put to work on light car repairs at scattered points on the system."

B. & O. to Add 1,800.

Coincident with this announcement dispatches from Washington said the B. & O. had applied for a loan of $3,000,000 from the R. F. C. to finance maintenance and construction work in its own shops. From its head offices the railroad revealed that a change in working hours to 30 hours a week and an increase in available employment had enabled it to add 1,800 men immediately, with more to come if the R. F. C. loan is granted.

Already the Pennsylvania railroad has received a loan of $2,000,000, to build freight cars in its own shops, and the New Haven has asked $700,000 for similar work in anticipation of increased traffic needs.

The Norfolk and Western plans to push a track replacement program, assuring longer employment this fall for its maintenance of work forces. The carrier stated that it will purchase immediately 5,000 tons of 130 pound steel rails with fastenings for current renewals.

Carloadings for Week Up.

Carloadings figures of the Pennsylvania and the New York Central, issued yesterday, indicate that for the week ending Sept. 24 there were substantial increases in the volume of freight moved. New York Central

Taxpayers' Millions Pouring Into U. S. Construction Jobs

BY SCRUTATOR.

For the benefit of advocates of additional vast public works schemes to relieve depression, as well as for taxpayers who want to know where their money is going, it may be pointed out that the government has spent more on construction in the last year than in any other year since the world war. Moreover, it is doubtful if the states have ever before spent as much money in a similar period.

For the fiscal year ended June 30 the government's construction cost was $636,772,000, not including naval ships or aircraft, according to the magazine Steel. In comparison, the federal expenditures in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1919, representing largely war obligations, was $715,300,000. This included $377,700,000 for floating equipment and $241,000,000 for buildings. Thus a sum approaching that of a wartime emergency was poured out to fight the depression.

Moreover, the government has planned a program covering the next three years that calls for only slightly lower annual expenditures. For the current fiscal period the tentative plan calls for $475,600,000, and this is independent of $322,000,000 contemplated by the emergency construction act. For the next fiscal year the plan calls for $551,000,000 direct government construction expenses and for the succeeding year an outlay of $498,800,000 is contemplated.

Thus, in four years the government's program calls for a total expenditure of well over two billion dollars and possibly nearer three billions. Beginning with an outlay of about $300,000,000 in the fiscal year 1929, federal construction has been steadily expanded as private work has shrunk. In fact, it is estimated that expenditures so far during the depression have been expanded to about double the amount that otherwise would have been authorized. Moreover, contracts awarded by the various states indicate that they, too, have increased their expenditures on public works proportionately.

It is indicated that much of the federal government's outlay so far this year has gone for postoffices. Steel says that three-fourths of the structural steel tonnage awarded this year has been for public construction, which represents an unusually large proportion. Federal jobs, mainly postoffices, account for 190,000 tons of the total of 570,170 tons delivered so far this year.

Aid to States.

Then, too, the government's program of giving financial aid to the states for building highways has stimulated the demand for bridges. State, county, and municipal construction, chiefly state highway bridges, has required 227,190 tons of steel, based on figures shown in awards taking 100 tons or more of structural steel. Therefore, it is unofficially estimated that public works as a whole, all tonnages considered, have taken more than 75 per cent of the structural steel output.

The justification for the federal, state, and local governments undertaking construction work on such a vast scale is that unemployment would be reduced. It probably is true by far the largest portion of the expenditures has gone to defray the cost of labor. However, the futility of expecting public construction to stem the tide entirely is evident.

The slump in building operations during 1931 and this year has more than offset the great expenditures of the federal and local governments. In fact, the total value of building contracts award in thirty-seven states during the last two years has been only 75 per cent of the average for one year in the preceding six years.

RAIL LEADERS PRAISE COOLIDGE INQUIRY GROUP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 28.—Appointment of a committee of five prominent men, headed by Calvin Coolidge, to study legislative and other means for helping the railroads met with favorable comment in railroad circles today, although officials who discussed the move were particular to stress that the railroad managements were not involved in its activities.

"No committee could be more satisfactory to the railroads in respect to personnel," said Daniel Willard president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. "They are men who will take a large view of all phases of transportation. It would seem that conclusions reached by such a committee would be helpful and that they would carry much weight in view of the standing of its members.

"The railroads were not consulted in the formation of this committee. They did not name its members and they were not even asked for suggestions as to its scope. The more this is understood the better for the railroads."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 28.—Good news helped the stock market to register gains of one to two points in leading shares today.

Reports of a further increase in steel production, a further gain in the electric output figures, further curtailment in the oil industry and word that the Baltimore and Ohio and the New York Central railroads were planning to take on additional employés were the chief items. A rally in wheat in the early afternoon stimulated trading in farm implement and mail order issues.

Trading volume continued light—due in part to the extra competition which the market encountered in the opening of the world series. Hundreds of fans left the financial district around noon and many of those that remained paid more attention to the ticker accounts of the doings of Babe Ruth & Co. than they did to price movements on the big board.

Total Sales Steady.

As usual, a dozen or so issues accounted for the bulk of trading. Two of these, Montgomery Ward and United Aircraft, both reputedly pool favorites of the moment, rolled up a good 20 per cent of the total. American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Atchison, Union Pacific, Allied Chemical, American Can and American Tobacco were all conspicuously active and strong.

United States Steel had an early dip, but rallied to record a net gain of nearly 2 points.

The strength in Allied Chemical which made it one of the outstanding strong spots of the market was attributed to a folding up of the short interest which had been built up in that issue in anticipation of a possible cut in dividend yesterday. The closing sale at 82½ reflected an advance of nearly 3 points over Tuesday's final figure.

Mack Truck Up 3 Points.

The pool backing Mack Truck had another merger rumor with which to help their pet along today. This time it was Chrysler with which the company was to be consolidated. Last week it was Studebaker, and a month or so ago it was White Motors. Today's report like the others was denied when it was carried to official quarters, but buying boosted the price of the issue nearly 3 points more. Other motors merely played along with the market.

ACTIVE BUYING PUSHES PRICES OF WHEAT HIGHER

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat market continues to receive support when it appears to be needed. While there was a decline of around 1c in the early trading yesterday aggressive buying by houses with eastern connections absorbed the surplus in the pit and caused a rally of 1¾c, which carried the December to 55½c, a new high for the week. Buying against bids helped to check the early decline and selling against offers was in evidence on the bulge.

There was nothing in the general run of news to account for the early decline or the subsequent rally, although an upturn in the stock market had some effect on local sentiment at one time. It was noticeable that the Winnipeg market failed to follow the break in the local market at the start. Final trades were ⅛@⅛c higher, with September showing strength. The latter closed at 52⅝c; December, 54⅝@54¾c, and May, 59¾c.

Local Element Bearish.

Pit traders were generally bearish at the start. Liverpool failed to reflect the firmness in North America late Tuesday and closed ¼@⅜c lower, with the December at 56¼c, or over 2¾c over the same delivery in Chicago.

According to pit gossip the early selling of futures here reflected spreading operations with Winnipeg, and there was also some selling attributed to a local professional. However, the latter was said to have taken the buying side later. Winnipeg October wheat sold at 50¼c, failing to get as low as on Tuesday. Closing prices in the Canadian market were unchanged to ⅝c higher, with December at 52⅝c in Canadian funds.

The trade had a report during the day that Japan was attempting to buy 720,000 bu of wheat from Russia, but cables from England indicated there was little prospect of the business being put through owing to the short crop in Russia. Russia also has numerous European contracts to fill.

New Low on Corn.

All deliveries of corn sold at a new low for the season, the September touching 26½c, the lowest since January, 1898, while the December at 28c was the lowest since August, 1899. Scattered liquidation and stop orders selling caused the decline and there was also some pressure from cash interests. Buying against bids and short covering checked the break and later a rally carried prices back to around Tuesday's finish, with the close unchanged to ¼c lower, the latter on May. September was 26¾@26⅞c; December, 28½c, and May, 33⅝@33¾c at the last.

Country offerings of cash corn to arrive were again liberal, with purchases of 165,000 bu reported by local handlers. Nothing was heard during the day regarding export demand.

Cash interests sold oats futures early and bought them late, with the close unchanged at ⅜c lower, the latter on September, which finished at 15⅜c; December was 17⅜c, and May, 20½@20⅝c. All futures sold within a fraction of the lowest figures of the season during the day. Rye was unchanged to ½c lower, with a light trade. September closed at 33¾c; December, 36c, and May, 39c.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was quiet and slightly easier today under liquidation, promoted by the late reaction in cotton. Final prices were 2 points net lower on active positions, with sales of only 600 brls. Bleachable spot closed 4.30c; October, 4.48c; December, 4.50c; January, 4.56c; March, 4.73c; May, 4.90c.

COTTON BREAKS AT CLOSE

Cotton market was unsettled, and, while showing fair strength early, there was pressure in evidence toward the last, and the close was at net losses of 10@15 points on the active futures in Chicago, while other markets were 6 to 13 points lower, with New Orleans leading. Hedging sales were not large, but there was a lack of support except from trade price fixing orders, and when professional selling started the market dropped rather sharply.

Liverpool cables were higher than due, but had only a little effect. The trade was also disposed to ignore the settlement of the English strike and also favorable reports from the textile trade. Liverpool is due around 4 points lower today based on the action of the Chicago market late yesterday.

Spot cotton in New Orleans finished 15 points lower at 7.35c, while New York was off 10 points at 7.40c. Galveston and Houston were 7.30c. Prices follow:

BUTTER FUTURES RALLY

Fractional advances were made by butter and egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, November butter rallying after an early decline to close ⅜c higher. October eggs moving up ¼c and November eggs up ⅝c. Selling pressure started heavily in butter at the opening as a result of bearish storage news overnight. Later, a heavy outward movement of stocks from the four markets halted the selling and brought in better support. Egg news showed a lower movement of stocks than last year but the total supply withdrawn was heavy and new buying came out in fairly heavy volume. Sales: Butter, 61 cars; eggs, 112 cars. LARD FUTURES EASIER

Scattered commission house selling appeared in lard futures and despite the firmness in hogs prices declined moderately. Offerings were taken by cash interests. Closing trades were unchanged to 5c lower. Reports continue to indicate a good domestic cash trade is passing. Cash lard was quoted at $5; at the last with loose at $4.87½, and leaf at $4.87½. Bellies were neglected and closed nominally unchanged to 5c lower with cash bellies at $5.87½. Liverpool lard futures were 6d higher to 3d lower, the latter on January, while cash was 3d higher. There were no deliveries on September contracts. Hogs were 5@10c higher with receipts smaller than a week and a year ago. Prices follow:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Brokers who stood in the wheat pit all day claimed they were considerably puzzled as to where the buying orders originate which have been appearing on all the breaks below 54c for the December the past three days. In some quarters the belief prevailed that they came from the east through a house that does not clear its own trades.

Local traders are inclined to favor the selling side of wheat, but have made little progress as indicated by the range of prices so far this week. The December has sold between 53⅝@55½c in the past three days with good support in evidence around 54c, while selling has appeared around the outside figure.

Bids of 2½@3c under Chicago December for November-Dec. 15 shipment from the country are being made for new No 3 grades of corn and 4½@5c under for new No 4 grades. On the basis of 28c for the December local handlers claimed this was equal to slightly below 10c per bu for No 4 grades net to the producer in Iowa and somewhat under 13c in Illinois.

In some quarters a belief prevails that President Hoover in his speech scheduled to be delivered at Des Moines Ia. on Oct. 4 will say something which is likely to have considerable influence on the grain markets. The fact that his address is to be delivered in the largest corn producing section of the country is also attracting considerable attention.

Part of the heavy sales of cash corn by Iowa farmers of late has been to secure money to meet taxes, according to reports to J. E. Bennett & Co. The taxes would have been overdue in a few days. With the money secured to meet the latter the movement is expected to fall off sharply. Reserves of cold corn have been materially reduced in the last 30 days and only 5 to 10 per cent of the 1931 crop is now regarded as remaining on farms.

PARIS, Sept. 28.—Evidence that Franco-American trade relations are improving was seen today in a promise by the ministry of commerce to increase the quota on radio equipment imported from the United States. The action is a result of the establishment by the American Chamber of Commerce in Paris of a bureau to control the distribution of import permits among agents of American radio manufacturers in France.

Heretofore the French customs officials adhered to the policy of "first come first served" in issuing these licenses. Now all applicants will be referred to the Chamber of Commerce bureau, which will take into consideration three factors:

First, the applicant's total volume of imports from the United States in 1931; second, the importance of the manufacturer in the United States whom the applicant represents, and third, the ratio of applicant's sales in France to the volume of his imports over a period of twelve months.

Bright Spots of Day's Business News

The Wahl company, makers of fountain pens and automatic pencils, has added over 100 employees since Aug. 15, according to J. C. Parsons, president. Many departments of the plant are operating full time in order to supply unfilled orders on hand for several new products recently added to the line.

Employment in the silk industry increased 26.6 per cent in August over July, the Silk Association of America, Inc., reported yesterday, and was 2.5 per cent over August, 1931. Machinery operations during August increased 43.5 per cent for broad looms, decreased 16.6 per cent for narrow looms, and increased 22.4 per cent for spinning spindles compared with July.

Rand, McNally & Co. report that with two days remaining, bank closings for September show a decrease of 83 per cent, compared to September, 1931.

Frigidaire corporation sales of household electrical refrigerators for first twenty days of September showed a 25 per cent increase over same period of August.

NEW YORK.—Dow, Jones & Co. projected yesterday General Motors will finish out 1932 with its position backed by working capital in an amount close to that held at the start of the slump. Improvement in retail sales was given as the reason.

During the last month orders at the saw mills increased appreciably over the record of previous weeks, the National Lumber Manufacturers' association reports. The figures indicate more active buying of retailers and more demand in rural and small town sections than in urban centers.

There was a slightly improved tone to the hog market yesterday. Light supplies offset the adverse influence of narrower eastern demand and lower wholesale quotations. Better grades moved forward 5@10c in the mild rally that followed on the heels of a somewhat topheavy opening. Other grades dragged along at a slower pace to a steady to strong close.

The general average price advanced 5c to $3.95, while the extreme top showed 5c gain at $4.40. The big improvement in quality the last few days has stirred up a lot of local interest and larger houses are among the leading buyers of top grades.

Clear Out Pens.

The clearance yesterday was the best of the week, only 3,000 pen holders and inferior grades of underweights remaining in the pens at the close. Light hogs that topped the market a few days ago are hard to sell 50c under the top quotations because of the abrupt increase in offerings of stock weighing 175 lbs. and under.

However, there is nothing alarming in this situation, according to leaders in the trade. They point out that it is not only time for a larger movement of the new crop, but also that country taxes are due before the 1st of October. As meat animals are so readily turned into cash any time it is needed, it is logical to expect a few more of the spring pigs at this time.

Cattle Drop Halted.

Yesterday ended the sharp decline in cattle. The market perked up early in the forenoon and improved as trading progressed, with the close slightly above the general selling of Tuesday. Action was good all over the yards and a better clearance was effected in the plainer grades which have been a drag for several days.

Quality showed a big improvement and this made prices appear sharply higher on paper. For instance, the majority of yesterday's sales of beef steers were made within a range of $7.00@10.00, while the Tuesday offerings which were of a plainer class bulked at $6.50@8.50. Prime 1,282@1,305 lb steers topped at $10.35, equaling the highest since last January. Corn belt feeders turned in a large number of well finished light and medium weight steers and also some of the best beeves of extreme weight seen here in many months. Some "overdone" cattle averaging 1,651 lbs that carried too much fat to attract competition, cashed at $8.50. Not many of the light weight steers got over the $9.50 line, while most cattle at $10 and above averaged 1,200@1,400 lbs. Grassers sold downwards from $6.00. Butcher stock ruled steady to strong. Calves finished 25@50c lower. Stockers and feeders were slow and weak. The few loads of range cattle brought steady prices.

Lambs Sell Steady.

The lamb market was almost devoid of features. Trading moved along slowly at about steady rates most of the day and finished a little top heavy. The lower wholesale markets for dressed lamb carcasses curbed local buying, but light receipts blocked attempts to slash quotations. Range lambs sold largely at $5.85 and below, while only hand picked natives reached $5.75. Aged sheep sold steady.

Bellas Hess President Reports Business Increase

C. D. Berry, president of National Bellas Hess company, said yesterday that the company's fall business was showing a steady increase, with daily orders running at times fully 50 per cent above original estimates. Five hundred additional workers have been employed at the Kansas City plant and this number will be "materially increased" as the fall season advances.

August Passenger Car Sales Decline 10 Per Cent
